PART IV.

Bill of the Bengal Council.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Preliminary Report of the Select Committee, together with the Bill as preliminarily amended by them, is, by order of the President, published for general information :—

We, the Members of the Select Committee on the Bill to extend the system of Local Self-Government in Bengal, having considered the amended Bill which has been laid before us, have the honour to submit the following preliminary report.

As the orders of the Secretary of State, communicated in Government of India letter No. 1009, dated 30th July 1883, take exception to no part of the general scheme of the original Bill apart from the system of control, and as the whole measure still awaits the expression of the views of public officers and public bodies, the amended Bill makes no very great change, beyond re-arrangement and appropriate verbal alterations, in those sections which relate to the duties and powers of local authorities, and to the local funds. In regard, however, to the constitution and control of local authorities other than Union Committees, the scheme has been entirely recast.

The orders of the Secretary of State, to which reference has just been made, contemplate the establishment of District Committees, which should be controlling and not administrative bodies. It has not, however, been considered possible to devise a scheme upon these lines which should be applicable to all parts of this province. In some districts only one Board could be established, and it is obviously undesirable that there should be two Boards for a single area—one of administration and one of control. The principle that has been adopted in framing the amended Bill, therefore, has been to take the District Board as the first unit—to be an administrative body where there are no Local Boards, and to be, either wholly or partly, a controlling body where there are such Boards. Of that principle we desire to express our approval. The scheme of the Bill is that a District Board shall be established in every district ; that a Local Board—as far as possible upon a representative basis—may be constituted in any sub-division or sub-divisions, and must be constituted in any sub-division in which the subordinate system of Union Committees has been introduced ; and that the District Board or the Lieutenant-Governor may transfer to the administration and control of a Local Board all or any of the matters entrusted under the Bill to the District Board, subject to the general control and responsibility of the latter authority. The Union Committees remain, as in the original Bill, the agents of the Local Board for the discharge of the duties laid upon them.

The Bill provides that the District Board shall consist wholly of nominated members where there is no Local Board, that, where Local Boards exist, each Local Board shall be entitled to send a delegate or delegates to the District Board, and that where the whole area of a district is under Local Boards one-half at least of the members of the District Board shall be delegates from the Local Boards. It is also provided that in no case shall more than half of the nominated members be persons holding salaried offices under Government. These provisions appear to us to be appropriate and sound. We are of opinion that where the people are considered capable of exercising electoral rights there a Local Board should be established, and that no attempt should be made to form District Boards on a basis of election where it has not been found possible to form Local Boards even on a basis of nomination. We are also of opinion that in districts where it has been possible to establish Local Boards throughout the whole area it may safely be provided that one-half of the District Board shall consist of delegates from the Local Boards. Even in the not very probable event of the representative members ranging themselves against the nominated members there would still be the vote of the Chairman to turn the scale, and it will be observed that, in accordance with the orders of the Secretary of State, power has been reserved to Government to appoint the Chairman in all cases in which it deems it necessary to exercise this discretion. The Bill has been in our judgment rightly framed so as, while providing Government with powers, direct and indirect, of safeguarding the public interests, to admit of full expansion of the representative system. Under section 5 the whole of the District Board might, should the Lieutenant-Governor so direct, consist of elected members, and under section 14 the Chairman might, under a similar direction, be elected by the members of the Board from among their own number.

It is provided that when Union Committees have been established the Local Board shall be constituted on an elective basis, not less than two persons being elected from each thana in which such Committees exist. It has not been considered desirable, however, to restrict the application of the elective system to such areas, but power has been given to the Lieutenant-Governor to frame rules for the election of the members of all Local Boards. A proviso has been introduced that once the elective system has been put in force in regard to any Local Board it shall not be replaced by the system of nomination, unless a majority of the electors declare that they so desire, or the Governor-General in Council sanctions the proceeding. Following the lines of the original Bill, the amended Bill restricts the proportion of appointed salaried officers of Government as members of a Local Board to one-third, except in special cases where the departure from the rule is to be sanctioned by the Governor-General in Council. The members of the Local Board, as in the original Bill, will be allowed to elect their Chairman subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor, and their Vice-Chairman absolutely.

No change has been made in the provisions for the constitution of Union Committees, except that the qualifications of the electors are to be fixed by rule, and not by specific provision of law.

It has been considered desirable to replace the miscellaneous sections relating to the conduct of business by a single section giving the Lieutenant-Governor, and, subject to his direction, the different Boards power to make rules to regulate the various matters connected with this subject. Two important points have been specified,—the manner in which notice of meetings shall be given, and the means of securing due record of dissents and discussions. The latter is indicated in the orders of the Secretary of State as deserving of special attention.

Two points relating to finance require notice. The first is the fixing of the rate of road cess. Under the existing law the District Road Committees have the nominal power of fixing the rate, but the Lieutenant-Governor has the power of altering it. Under the original Bill the power was absolutely given to the Local Boards in conference. We are of opinion that this power should not be exercised by a bare majority. There is probably no district in the province in which it is desirable that a smaller sum should be expended upon communications than the rate now levied provides. Indeed, we understand that Government is constantly asked to contribute to the Road Funds, though the cess is in every district, except Backergunge, where the circumstances are special, levied at the maximum rate. While, however, we consider that the present rate should be maintained as a rule, we are not prepared to recommend that it should be fixed otherwise than in accordance with the views of the District Board. At the same time, no change should be permitted unless a large majority of the Board is of opinion that it is required. We consider that the interests of the district will be sufficiently safeguarded by a provision that the rate now in force shall not be reduced unless a resolution in favour of a lower rate shall have been carried by the votes of not less than two-thirds of the whole Board.

The second point is practically one of control. Under the original Bill estimates of expenditure were to be submitted to the Central Board direct. It is now proposed that the estimates of the District Board should be submitted to the Commissioner through the Magistrate of the district, and that, when the last-named officer is not Chairman of the Board, he should have power to return the estimates for re-consideration, if he considers them faulty in any respect. The estimates of the Local Board will be disposed of by the District Board as it thinks fit, subject to the orders of the Commissioner on the district estimates.

We do not consider it necessary to make any remarks upon Part III of the Bill, which treats of the duties and powers of local authorities. This part of the Bill, with the exception of a proposal by our colleague, Colonel Trevor, to appoint an Inspector of Works, is practically a reproduction of the corresponding provisions of the original Bill. In regard to the payment of this officer we are not agreed. Some of us consider that he should be paid by the Boards, as the Divisional Supervisor of Works is now paid. Some of us consider that his services should be supplied at the cost of Government. We have decided to admit the section for public discussion.

The provisions under the head of control are based upon the principle that when the Magistrate of the district is Chairman of the District Board, he will, as such, have sufficient controlling authority to render it unnecessary to vest him with special power of this nature. When he is not Chairman of the District Board, he will have special power to inspect works, to suspend work, and to provide in cases of emergency for the execution of work. When he is Chairman of the District Board, these powers will be exercised by the Commissioner. The Commissioner will further have power to provide for the performance of duty in case of default. All orders, however, issued by Magistrates and Commissioners under the sections conferring these powers will be submitted to the Lieutenant-Governor with a statement of the reasons for making the order, and with any explanation which the local authority concerned may wish to offer, and the Lieutenant-Governor will have power to modify or rescind the order. The District Boards will have similar coercive powers over Local Boards. Copies of the orders issued will go to the Commissioner, and the Commissioner, if he is dissatisfied with them, may move the Lieutenant-Governor to modify or rescind them. It appears to us that these provisions will supply an efficient system of control, while guarding against undue interference with the proceedings of local authorities.

We desire to recommend that the amended Bill be published, and that the opinions of the officers of Government and of public bodies be invited upon it.

[AS PRELIMINARILY AMENDED.]

A Bill to extend the System of Local Self-Government in Bengal.

WHEREAS it is expedient to extend the system of Local Self-Government within the territories subject to the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal: It is enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

Preliminary.

Title. 1. This Act may be called the "Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885."

Extent. It shall extend to all the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal which are not included within the limits of the town of Calcutta, or within the districts of Singbhoom, the Sonthal Pergunnahs, Chittagong Hill Tracts, or any place or town to which the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act of 1884 shall have been, or may hereafter be, extended:

Commencement. And it shall come into force in any other district, or part of a district, on such date as the Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification, direct.

But any notification, order, or rule, and any appointment to an office, may be made, or election held, under this Act at any time after it shall have received the assent of the Governor-General, but shall not take effect in any district, or part of a district, until this Act comes into force therein:

Provided that the election of any Union Committees held under the direction of the Lieutenant-Governor before the passing of this Act shall be deemed to have been held under the provisions of this Act.

Enactments repealed and amended. 2. On the commencement of this Act in any district, or part of a district, the enactment specified in the first schedule shall, as regards such district, or part of a district, be repealed to the extent mentioned in the third column thereof; and the enactment specified in the second schedule shall be amended to the extent mentioned in the third column thereof.

But this repeal shall not revive any office, authority, or thing abolished by such enactment, or affect the validity of anything done or suffered, or any right, title, obligation, or liability accrued before the commencement of this Act.

And no appointment to an office made under the Bengal Act IX of 1880, shall continue to be valid in any district, or part of a district, after this Act shall have come into force in such district, or part of a district.

3. Notwithstanding anything in section one, this Act shall not take effect in any cantonment without the consent of the Governor-General in Council, previously obtained.

Act not to be extended to cantonments without consent of Governor-General.

4. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context :—

Interpretation.

"Commissioner." "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of a division.

"Local authority." "Local authority" means any District Board or Local Board, Joint Committee, Union Committee, or Joint Union Committee constituted under this Act.

"Municipal authority." "Municipal authority" means the Commissioners of a Municipality constituted under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884.

"Notification." "Notification" means a notification published in the Calcutta Gazette.

"Prescribed." "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under section one hundred and thirty-three.

"Magistrate of the district." "Magistrate of the district" includes any Magistrate subordinate to the Magistrate of the district, to whom he may delegate all or any of his powers under this Act.

"Salaried servant of Government" The term "salaried servant of Government" does not include a retired servant of Government in receipt of a pension.

"Year." "Year" means the year commencing on the first day of April.

PART I.

Authorities for execution of Act.

CHAPTER I.

OF DISTRICT BOARDS AND LOCAL BOARDS.

A.—Constitution of District Boards and Local Boards

Establishment of District Boards and Local Boards. 5. The Lieutenant-Governor shall, by notification establish a District Board for each district.

The Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification, establish a Local Board in each sub-division of every district or in two or more sub-divisions combined, and may cancel or vary any such notification.

Provided that a Local Board shall be established in every sub division to which the provisions of the next succeeding Chapter shall have been extended.

A District Board shall have authority, for the purposes of this Act, over the entire district for which it is established, and a Local Board shall have authority over such sub-division or sub-divisions as the Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification, direct.

Constitution of District Boards. 6. A District Board shall consist of such number of members, not being less than eight, as the Lieutenant-Governor shall by notification fix in this behalf, and may include appointed and elected members :

Provided that, if there be no Local Boards within a district, the whole of the District Board shall consist of appointed members.

Where Local Boards have been established in any district, the elected members of a District Board shall be delegates elected by the members of each Local Board within the district from among their own number in the proportion of such number of delegates from each Local Board as the Lieutenant-Governor shall from time to time direct :

Provided that in all cases where Local Boards have been established throughout the whole area of any district the number of elected members shall be not less than one-half of the whole District Board exclusive of the Chairman if appointed under section fourteen.

The appointed members (if any) shall be :—

Such persons as the Lieutenant Governor shall from time to time, either by name or official designation, appoint :

Provided that not more than one-half of the appointed members shall be salaried servants of Government.

Establishment of Local Boards. 7. A Local Board shall consist of such number of members, not less than six, as the Lieutenant-Governor may by notification fix in this behalf.

The members may be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor, either by name or by official designation, or may be elected in accordance with rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor under this Act, or some may be appointed and some elected, as the Lieutenant-Governor directs :

Provided that for every thana in which one or more Union Committees may have been established under the provisions of the next succeeding Chapter there shall be elected not less than two persons, in the manner prescribed, to serve as members of the Local Board established in the sub-division in which such thana is situate :

Provided further that—

(a) when the Lieutenant-Governor has directed that all or any proportion of the members shall be elected, he shall not thereafter direct that they shall be appointed, unless a majority of the electors declare that they so desire, or the Governor-General in Council, for some reason affecting the public interests, sanctions the direction ;

(b) except with the approval of the Governor-General in Council, or unless salaried officers of the Government are elected, not less than two-thirds of the members of every Board shall be persons other than salaried officers of the Government ;

(c) when, under a direction issued under the second paragraph of this section, any places on a Board are to be filled by election, and a sufficient number of members is not elected, the Lieutenant-Governor may fill those places by appointment.

Term of office of members 8. A member of a District Board or Local Board, when appointed by virtue of an office, shall, unless and until the Lieutenant-Governor otherwise directs, continue to be a member of the Board while he continues to hold that office.

The term of office of all other elected and appointed members, respectively, of a District Board or Local Board shall be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor by rules made under this Act, and may be so fixed as to provide for the retirement of members by rotation, but shall not exceed three years.

An outgoing member, if otherwise qualified, may again be elected or appointed.

Resignation of members.

9. A member of a District Board or Local Board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so, in the case of a member of a District Board to the Lieutenant-Governor, and in the case of a member of a Local Board to the Commissioner, and on the acceptance of such resignation by the Lieutenant-Governor or Commissioner respectively, the member shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

Powers of the Lieutenant-Governor as to removal of members.

10. The Lieutenant-Governor may remove any member of a District Board or Local Board—

(a) if he refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member;

(b) if he has been declared by notification to be disqualified for employment in the public service;

(c) if he, without an excuse, sufficient in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, absents himself from three consecutive meetings of the Board;

(d) when he is a salaried officer of the Government, if his continuance in office is, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, unnecessary or undesirable

Filling of casual vacancies.

11. When the place of an elected member of a District Board or Local Board becomes vacant by the resignation or removal of the member or by his death, a new member shall be chosen in accordance with the rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor under this Act to fill the place:

Provided that the Lieutenant-Governor may direct in any such case that the vacancy shall be left unfilled.

When the place of a member of a District Board or Local Board appointed by name becomes vacant as aforesaid, the Lieutenant-Governor may, if he thinks fit, appoint a new member to fill the place.

A person chosen or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office, but may again be elected or appointed.

Incorporation of District Boards.

12. Every District Board shall be a body corporate by the name of "The District Board of [name of district]," and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immoveable, and, subject to any rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor under this Act, to transfer any such property held by it, and to contract and do all other things necessary for the purposes of this Act, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

Time for District and Local Boards coming into existence.

13. The several District Boards and Local Boards constituted under this Act shall come into existence at such time as the Lieutenant-Governor may by notification fix in this behalf.

Chairman and Vice-Chairman.

Chairman of District Board.

14. Every District Board shall be presided over by a Chairman who may be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor, or, if on any occasion the Lieutenant-Governor so directs, elected from among their own number by the members of the District Board. The election of a Chairman shall not be deemed valid until it is approved by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Vice-Chairman.

15. Every District Board shall elect one of its members to be Vice-Chairman.

Term of office of Chairman and Vice-Chairman of District Board.

16. An appointed Chairman shall hold office for one year, but may be re-appointed on the expiration of his term of office. Every appointed Chairman shall be deemed to be a member of the Board so long as he continues to hold office as Chairman.

The term of office of an elected Chairman or of a Vice-Chairman of a District Board shall be the residue of his term of office as a member of the Board.

Chairman of Local Board.

17. Every Local Board shall, from time to time, elect one of its members to be Chairman. The election of a Chairman shall not be deemed valid until it is approved by the Lieutenant-Governor.

The term of office of a Chairman shall be the residue of his term of office as a member of the Board.

Vice-Chairman.

18. Every Local Board shall from time to time elect one of its members to be Vice-Chairman, who shall hold office for the residue of his term as a member of the Board.

Resignation of Chairman and Vice-Chairman of District Board or Local Board.

19. A Chairman of a District Board or Local Board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Lieutenant-Governor, and on such resignation being accepted by the Lieutenant-Governor, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office. A Vice-Chairman of a District Board or Local Board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Board, and on such resignation being accepted, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

Removal of Chairman and Vice-Chairman of District Board and Local Board.

20. The Lieutenant-Governor may remove any Chairman of a District Board or Local Board from his office if he refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, a defect of character which unfits him to be Chairman or, on the application of the Board, if he is shown to have persistently neglected his duty as Chairman.

A District Board or Local Board may remove the Vice-Chairman from his office if he refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies in the opinion of the Board a defect of character which unfits him to be a Vice-Chairman, or if he persistently neglects his duty as Vice-Chairman.

Casual vacancies in office of Chairman or Vice-Chairman of District Board or Local Board.

21. If an elected Chairman of a District Board, or a Chairman of a Local Board, or a Vice-Chairman of a District Board or Local Board, dies, resigns, is removed, or becomes incapable of acting, the Board shall, at a special meeting held for this purpose within the period prescribed, elect one of its members to be Chairman or Vice-Chairman, as the case may be.

A Chairman or Vice-Chairman elected under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office for the residue of his term as member of the Board.

If an appointed Chairman of a District Board dies, resigns, is removed, or becomes incapable of acting, the Lieutenant-Governor may appoint another Chairman.

Joint Committees.

Joint Committees.

22. A District Board may concur with any other District Board, Municipal or Cantonment authority, or with more than one such Board, Municipal or Cantonment authority, in appointing, out of their respective bodies, a joint Committee for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, and for delegating to any such joint Committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the Boards, Committees, or authorities concerned, and in framing or modifying regulations as to the proceedings of any such joint Committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which the joint Committee is appointed.

Conduct of Business.

Record and publication of proceedings.

23. Minutes of the proceedings at each meeting of a District Board or Local Board shall be drawn up and recorded in a book to be kept for the purpose, and shall be signed by the Chairman of the meeting and shall be published in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, direct, and shall, at all reasonable times and without charge, be open to the inspection of any person resident within, or owning or holding land within, the jurisdiction of such Board.

A copy of every resolution passed by a Local Board at a meeting shall, within three days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the District Board and to the Magistrate of the district.

A copy of every resolution passed by a District Board at a meeting shall, within three days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded through the Magistrate of the district to the Commissioner.

Power to make rules as to business and affairs.

24. Every District Board and Local Board may make rules as to—

(a) the time and place of its meetings, the business to be transacted at meetings, and the manner in which notice of meetings shall be given;

(b) the conduct of proceedings at meetings, the due record of all dissents and discussions, and the adjournment of meetings;

(c) the custody of the common seal and the purposes for which it shall be used;

(d) the division of duties amongst its members;

(e) the powers to be exercised by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman or by Sub-Committees or members to whom particular duties have been assigned;

(f) the persons by whom receipts shall be granted for money received under this Act;

(g) the duties, appointment, leave, suspension, and removal of the officers and servants of the Board; and

(h) other similar matters:

Provided that every rule made by a Local Board under this section shall be subject to confirmation by the District Board.

Provided further that every rule made under this section must be consistent with this Act and with any rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor under this Act, and shall be published in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor may direct.

Establishments.

Establishments and salaries how to be fixed.

25. The District Board, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, may determine and from time to time alter the details of the establishment of officers, clerks, and servants to be employed by it or by any joint District Board as hereinafter appointed, and the salary to be paid to each such officer, clerk, or servant; provided

(1) that no appointment carrying a monthly salary of not less than one hundred rupees shall be created or abolished without the consent of the Commissioner, and that every nomination to and dismissal from such an appointment shall be subject to confirmation by the Commissioner;

(2) that the aggregate salaries and allowances in any one year of the establishment employed by any District Board for the purpose of headings E to G, both inclusive, of Part III, together with a proportionate share of the cost of the general establishment of such Board, shall not exceed twenty-five per centum on the total amount available for expenditure by such Board upon public works during the year;

(3) that every District Board shall be required to conform to such general rules regarding teh qualifications to be required of candidates for employment as may from time to time be laid down by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Leave of absence to officers.

26. The District Board shall, subject to the provisions of the last preceding section, make such rules as to leave of absence and absentee allowances as it from time to time may think fit for its own officers and servants.

Pensions, gratuities, &c.

27. The District Board may, with the approval of the Commissioner, make rules for pensions and gratuities to be granted and paid out of the District Fund to its officers and servants, and may from time to time, with the like approval, repeal, alter, or add to such rules:

Provided that no officer shall be entitled to any pension or gratuity under this Act from the District Fund in respect of any period during which he was not serving under the District Board:

Provided also that no officer lent by Government, and contributing from his salary to any pension fund, shall be entitled to claim any pension from the District Fund.

CHAPTER II.

UNION COMMITTEES.

Operation of Chapter.

28. No provision contained in this Chapter shall apply to any district, or part of a district, unless and until it has been expressly extended thereto by notification in that behalf by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Formation of Unions.

29. The Lieutenant-Governor may, for the purposes of Local Self Government in each district, by order in writing, constitute any village or group of villages into a Union:

It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor by order in writing, from time to time, to vary or annul any order made under this section.

Union Committees.

30. There shall be established for each Union a body to be called the "Union Committee," consisting of such number of members, not being less than five or more than nine, as may be specified in the order constituting such Union.

Election of members of Union Committees.

31. Save as is hereinafter provided, the members of the Union Committee of each Union shall be elected in accordance with rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor under this Act.

Appointment on failure to elect.

32. If the electors of any Union shall fail to elect the full number of members allotted to the Committee of such Union, the Commissioner shall call upon the Magistrate of the district to nominate one or more members to complete the number so allotted as aforesaid, and the Commissioner shall accept such nomination or nominations, and appoint the person or persons so nominated to be member or members of such Committee.

Appointment in substitution of election.

33. Notwithstanding anything in this Act contained, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor to direct, by order in writing, for special reasons to be stated in such order, that any Union Committee shall consist, either wholly or in part, of members nominated by the Magistrate of the district in which such Union is situated. The Magistrate shall thereupon nominate one or more persons as by such order directed, and the Commissioner shall appoint such person or persons to be member or members of such Union Committee.

Tenure of office.

34. The members of a Union Committee shall be elected or appointed (as the case may be) for a term of two years, and at the expiration of such term shall cease to be members of such Committee, but may again be elected or appointed:

Provided that the said term of two years shall be held to include any period which may elapse between the expiration of the said two years and the date of the next subsequent election or appointment, not being an election or appointment under the next succeeding section.

Successors how appointed.

35. In the case of the death or resignation of a member of any Union Committee, his successor shall be forthwith appointed or elected in the manner hereinbefore provided, and such successor shall remain a member of the said Committee for the residue only of the term for which the member who has died or resigned was originally appointed or elected:

Provided that no act of the Committee or its officers, or of the Committee in meeting, shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only that the number of the Committee did not, at the date of the performance of such act, amount to the number specified in the order creating such Union.

Joint Union Committees.

36. Any Union Committee may from time to time, with the consent of the Local Board to which it is subordinate, concur with any other Union Committee or Committees, in the same subdivision, in appointing out of their respective bodies joint Committees for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, and in delegating to any such joint Committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the Union Committees, and in framing or modifying regulations as to the proceedings of any such joint Committee.

It shall be lawful for the Local Board to associate not more than two of its members with any joint Union Committee appointed under this section.

If any dispute arises between two or more Union Committees acting under this section, the decision thereon of the Local Board shall be final.

PART II.

Finance.

GENERAL.

Lieutenant-Governor may make order as to vesting in new local authorities of funds of existing local bodies.

37. The Lieutenant-Governor may, in the order extending this Act to any district, or part of a district, direct that all or any portion of the funds vested in any local body existing in such district, or part of a district, shall vest in any local authority constituted under this Act, immediately upon such local authority being constituted.

CHAPTER I.

38. The District Board, on or before the prescribed day in each year, shall hold a meeting for the purpose of fixing the rate at which the road cess shall be levied in the district during the ensuing year.

District Board to fix rate of road cess annually.

Provided that the rate fixed shall not be lower than the rate prevailing at the time when this Act shall come into force in such district, unless a resolution in favour of such lower rate shall have been carried by the votes of not less than two-thirds of the whole District Board.

39. Every District Board shall submit to the Commissioner, through the Magistrate of the district, Estimates, reports, and statements to be submitted to Commissioner.

on or before the day prescribed—

(1) a statement of the requirements and an estimate of the probable expenditure of the District Board for the coming year,

(2) a report of its proceedings,

(3) an account of its receipts and expenditure for the past year, and from time to time

such other reports as the Commissioner may from time to time require.

The Magistrate of the district, when he is not Chairman of the Board, shall, on or before the day prescribed, signify in writing to the Board his approval or disapproval of the statement of requirements and estimate. When he disapproves of the statement of requirements and estimate on the ground that the expenditure on salaries and works, or otherwise, proposed therein appears to be insufficient or excessive, or that any particulars contained therein appear to be erroneous, defective, or improper, he shall state the nature of his objection. The Board shall then consider his objection, and may modify the statement of requirements and estimate, or signify in writing their reasons for adhering to such statement and estimate.

Every estimate framed under this section shall be subject to the approval of the Commissioner, and the Commissioner may revise or modify such estimate, subject to the provisions of sections forty and forty-one.

40. If such estimate shall have been approved by any number, being less than two-thirds of the members of the District Board present at the meeting at which such estimate was adopted, the Commissioner may, before approving such estimate, make such alterations as he shall think fit in the details or total of such estimate, or may return such estimate to the District Board with instructions to make any such alterations in such details or total:

Procedure when estimate has been approved by less than two-thirds of District Board present at meeting.

Provided that the Commissioner shall not make, and shall not require the District Board to make, otherwise than with its own consent, any such alterations as shall have the effect of raising the total of such estimate above the total of the sum estimated to be at the disposal of the District Board for expenditure during the year in question, the cess being levied at the rate which may have been determined for such year by the District Board under section thirty-eight.

On receipt of such instructions the District Board shall proceed to make such alterations, and shall resubmit the estimate to the Commissioner, who shall thereupon approve the estimate framed by the District Board.

41. (1) If any estimate prepared under section thirty-nine shall have been approved by a number not being less than two-thirds of the members of the District Board present at the meeting at which such estimate was adopted, the Commissioner may, before approving such estimate, make a communication to the District Board, bringing to its notice any alterations which, in his opinion, should be made in the details or total of such estimate;

Procedure where estimate has been approved by not less than two-thirds of District Board present at meeting.

and on receipt of such communication, the District Board shall proceed to reconsider such suggestions, and may either

(a) adopt such suggestions or any of them and revise the estimate accordingly, and submit such revised estimate for the sanction of the Commissioner; or

(b) may resubmit the original estimate to the Commissioner with its reasons for adhering thereto.

(2) On receipt of such estimate so resubmitted the Commissioner may sanction the estimate, or may make such alteration in the details of the estimate as he may think fit:

Provided that the Commissioner shall in no case raise the total of such estimate above the total of the sum estimated to be at the disposal of the District Board.

42. When the estimate prepared by the District Board shall have been approved by the Commissioner under sections forty and forty-one, the rate determined by the District Board shall be reported by the Commissioner to the Lieutenant-Governor, who shall cause the same to be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Rate determined to be reported to Lieutenant-Governor.

43. Any estimate prepared under section thirty-nine and approved as hereinbefore provided, may be amended or revised at any time with the sanction of the Commissioner, provided that the total of the estimate of expenditure as amended shall not exceed the sum estimated to be available for expenditure during the year.

Estimates may be amended.

44. It shall be lawful for the District Board, subject to the provisions of any law relating to the raising of loans by local authorities for the time being in force, to raise a loan for the purpose of carrying out any of the provisions of this Act, and to guarantee the payment of interest on such loan, and to form a sinking fund.

District Boards may raise loans.

45. Every Local Board shall submit to the District Board annually, on or before such date as the District Board may appoint, a statement of the requirements and an estimate of the probable expenditure of the Local Board for the ensuing year, and shall submit, as often as the District Board may require, accounts of its receipts and expenditure.

Estimates and accounts of Local Boards.

The District Board may sanction such estimate or may make such alteration in the details of the estimate as it thinks fit.

Provided further that during the currency of any year the Magistrate of the District may sanction transfers of provision within the estimate finally approved, when inconvenience or undue delay would be caused by a previous reference to the District Board.

The District Board shall make arrangements, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, for the examination and audit of accounts submitted to it under this section, and may arrange for the publication of such accounts.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE DISTRICT FUND.

46. There shall be formed for each district a fund to be called the "District Fund," and there shall be placed to the credit thereof—

Constitution of District Fund.

(1) The balance of the District Road Fund of the district, after payment of the expenses mentioned in section one hundred and nine of the Bengal Act IX of 1880, as amended by this Act;

(2) All sums levied within the district as fines, penalties, or otherwise under the provisions of this Act;

(3) All sums accruing within the district, under the provisions of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, from pounds which have not been vested in any Union Committee under section fifty-five of this Act.

(4) The proceeds of public ferries within or on the boundary of the district which have been placed under the charge of the District Board under the provisions of Part III of this Act.

(5) All receipts in respect of any schools, hospitals, dispensaries, railways, tramways or other buildings, institutions or works, which may have been constructed by, or have become vested in, the District Board under Part III of this Act.

(6) Any sums which may from time to time be allotted to the District Board from the Provincial revenues by the Lieutenant-Governor for any of the purposes mentioned in Part III of this Act, or for any other purpose.

(7) All sums contributed to the District Board by local bodies or private persons.

The District Fund shall be vested in the District Board, and the balance standing to the credit of the Fund shall be kept in such custody as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct.

47. The District Fund shall be applicable to the following objects, and in the following order:—

Application of District Fund.

Firstly.—To the payment of any sums which the District Board may have undertaken to pay as interest upon loans raised by it for the purposes of this Act, and to the formation of a sinking fund, when required.

Secondly.—To the payment of such percentage as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct towards the cost of audit, and towards the cost of establishments in any office of account or in any treasury:

Provided that the total amount which any District Board may be required to pay on this account shall not in any year exceed two per centum on the whole amount of the District Fund for such year.

Thirdly.—To the payment of establishments entertained by the District Board for the purposes of this Act, and to the payment to Government of such percentage as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct on the salaries of such establishments, in consideration of the Government undertaking to pay the leave and pension allowances of such establishments.

Fourthly.—To payment of such share as the Lieutenant-Governor may direct of the salary of the Inspector of Local Works and the cost of his establishment, and to the payment to Government of such percentage as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct on the salaries of such establishment in consideration of the Government undertaking to pay the leave and pension allowances of such establishment.

Fifthly.—To the payment of expenses incurred by the District Board in the performance of the duties imposed by this Act, and in the construction and maintenance of any works which may become vested in such Board under the provisions of this Act.

Sixthly.—To the payment of expenses incurred by the District Board under the provisions of section eighty-one of this Act.

Seventhly.—To the payment, at such rates as the Lieutenant-Governor may direct, of the travelling expenses of members of the District Board attending meetings of the Board or meetings of a joint Committee.

Eighthly.—To investment in any local debenture loans issued by the Government of India, or by the Lieutenant-Governor, for the construction of public works which may directly improve the means of communication within the district, or between such district and adjacent district.

Provided—

(1) That no sum shall be expended from the District Fund in the construction of any channel for the purposes of irrigation, or for the purposes of drainage connected with any irrigation works in charge of public officers, or for the improvement or maintenance of any water-channel on which tolls are levied, when no portion of the proceeds of such tolls is paid into the District Fund.

(2)—That no part of the District Fund of any district shall be applied to the construction or maintenance of any road within any municipality under the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, unless such road shall have been expressly excluded from the operation of the said Act under section thirty thereof.

Accounts of District Fund.

48. Account books of the District Fund shall be kept by an officer to be appointed by the District Board.

An account showing the receipts and expenditure during the quarter, arranged under the proper heads and duly balanced, shall be prepared immediately after the close of each quarter and published in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor may direct, and any person resident in, or owning or holding land in, the district may at all reasonable times inspect any such account or estimate without payment of a fee.

A similar account showing the income of the District Fund under each head of receipt, the charges of establishment, the works undertaken, the sums expended in each work, and the balance, if any, of the Fund remaining unspent at the end of the year shall be prepared for each year as soon as possible after its close, and shall be open to inspection as aforesaid.

Copies of the yearly and quarterly accounts shall be submitted to the Lieutenant-Governor.

Finance Committee.

49. Every District Board shall appoint a Finance Committee consisting of so many members as it thinks fit. It shall be the duty of such Committee to prepare estimates, under the provisions of section thirty-nine, to keep such books of account as the Lieutenant-Governor may direct, and generally to superintend all matters connected with the finances and accounts of the District Board.

The Finance Committee shall at all times, when required so to do, produce its books of account for audit by any officer who may be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in that behalf.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE UNION FUND.

Constitution of Union Fund.

50. There shall be formed for each Union a fund to be called the "Union Fund," and there shall be placed to the credit thereof—

(1) All sums accruing within that Union under the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871.

(2) All sums assigned thereto by the Lieutenant-Governor or District Board, whether as a contribution towards the cost of making village roads or otherwise.

(3) All other sums received by the Union Committee in the execution of this Act.

The Union Fund shall be vested in the Union Committee, and the balance standing to the credit of the Fund shall be kept in such custody as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct.

Application of Union Fund.

51. The Union Fund shall be applicable to the following objects, and in the following order:—

(1) To the payment of establishments entertained and expenses incurred by the Union Committee for the purposes of this Act.

(2) To the payment of the expenses incurred by the Union Committee in respect of the duties imposed upon such Committee under Part III of this Act, and of any expenses that may be incurred through the default of the Union Committee in carrying out any of such duties.

Accounts of Union Fund.

52. Account books of the Union Fund shall be kept by an officer to be appointed by the Union Committee.

An account showing the receipts and expenditure during the quarter, arranged under the proper heads and duly balanced, shall be prepared immediately after the close of each quarter, and shall, with the account books, be open to the inspection of any person entitled to vote at the election of members of the Union Committee.

A similar account shall be prepared for each year as soon as possible after its close, and shall be open to inspection as aforesaid.

Copies of the yearly and quarterly accounts shall be submitted to the Local Board to which such Union Committee is subordinate.

PART III.

Of the Duties and Powers of Local Authorities.

GENERAL.

Operation of Chapters I and II.

53. The provisions included under the headings A to G (both inclusive) of this Chapter shall be in force as regards every District Board, unless and until the Lieutenant-Governor shall otherwise direct.

Operation of Chapter III.

54. No provision included under the headings H to L (both inclusive) of this Chapter shall apply to any District Board, unless and until it has been expressly extended thereto by notification in that behalf by the Lieutenant-Governor.

CHAPTER I.

DUTIES AND POWERS OF DISTRICT BOARDS.

A.—Pounds.

Powers of District Board in respect of pounds.

55. Every District Board shall exercise such powers in regard to the establishment, maintenance and management of pounds as may be vested in it by notification under Act XVIII of 1883.

B.—Ferries.

Public ferries vested in District Board,

56. All public ferries situate within the limits of any district shall, subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Lieutenant-Governor may make and impose, be vested in the District Board.

District Board may lease its ferries or manage them direct.

57. Subject to such rules as the Commissioner, with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, may make in this behalf, and subject to any law for governing public ferries for the time being in force in Bengal, every District Board in which a public ferry shall become vested under the provisions of the last preceding section may either retain such ferry under its own immediate management, or place it under the management of a local authority, and levy, or authorize such local authority to levy, such tolls on persons using the same, as the Commissioner may from time to time approve; or lease such ferry on farm, to such person or persons, for such period, and on such terms, as it thinks fit:

Provided that the lessee of any such public ferry shall not be entitled to charge on persons using the same any tolls in excess of such rates as may be approved by the Commissioner.

District Board to provide establishment, boats, &c., for working ferries.

58. Any District Board in which a public ferry may become vested under section fifty-six shall (subject to the provisions of section twenty-five) provide such establishment, boats, landing stages, and appliances, and shall do all things necessary to provide for the safety and convenience of travellers and the safety of property to be conveyed in such ferry, or may require the lessee of such ferry to provide and do the same.

When a public ferry shall have been placed under the management of any local authority under the provisions of the last preceding section, the District Board may require such local authority to make such provision, and to do such things as aforesaid.

Cancellation of ferry lease, &c.

59. Every lease of a ferry given by a District Board, as hereinbefore provided, shall be liable to be cancelled at once, if it shall appear to the District Board, at a meeting, that the lessee has failed to make due provision for the convenience or safety of the public within fifteen days after being required to do so by a notice in writing from the District Board.

On the cancelment of a lease, the District Board may take possession of all boats and other appliances which have been used by the lessee in the working of the ferry; and may either retain the same permanently on payment of a fair price to the proprietor, or may retain them for such time as may be necessary, not exceeding three months, until it can make arrangements for such other boats and appliances as may be necessary, in which case the District Board shall pay a fair sum to the owners for the use of the said boats and appliances:

Provided that within a week of taking such possession the District Board shall be bound to give notice to the said lessee of its intention to retain the said boats and appliances either permanently, or for a period to be specified in the notice.

District Board may establish new or close old ferries.

60. The District Board may, with the consent of the Commissioner, establish a new ferry at any place within the district, and every such ferry, when established, shall become vested in the District Board, and shall be subject to such of the provisions of this Chapter as refer to ferries.

The District Board may, with the like consent, close any existing ferry which has become vested in it under the provisions of section fifty-six or may direct that such ferry shall be removed to such other place as it thinks fit.

Commissioner may make rules as to public ferries.

61. It shall be lawful for the Commissioner, with the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor, from time to time, to make rules consistent with the provisions of the five last preceding sections for the guidance of District Boards in which public ferries have become vested under section fifty-six and for the apportionment of the profits of such ferries between any two or more local authorities, and such rules from time to time to alter, modify or revoke.

Act to be read with Regulation VI of 1819 and Act I (B.C.) of 1866.

62. The six last preceding sections, so far as is consistent with the tenor thereof, shall be read with, and shall form a portion of, Regulation VI of 1819 of the Bengal Code and the Bengal Act, I of 1866. Every District Board shall, for the purposes of the said sections, have and exercise the functions of the Magistrate of the district under the said Regulation and Act, but subject to the provision of section fifty-six of this Act.

C.—Education.

District Board to have management of schools.

63. Subject to the provisoes hereinafter contained, every District Board shall be charged with, and be responsible for, the management, maintenance, and visiting of all schools within the district, the appointment (subject to the provisions of section twenty-five) of all masters and assistant masters of such schools, and the payment of the salaries of such masters and assistant masters:

Provided that—

Saving of powers of Union Committees.

(1) Nothing in this section shall be taken to affect the powers of any Union Committee in respect to primary schools within its Union.

Saving of powers of Managing Committee of aided school.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in this Act contained, any Committee which has been, or may hereafter be, appointed to manage any school receiving a grant-in-aid from the Government, shall continue to exercise, in the management of such school, all the powers which may be vested in it by the Lieutenant-Governor.

District Board to conform to Government rules.

(3) The District Board shall conform to such rules as the Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, make in respect to the allotment of grants to primary and secondary schools, the appointment of teachers and sub-inspectors, the standards of education, the conduct of examinations, the award of scholarships, and all other matters connected with the administration of such schools.

Government may exclude any schools from management of District Board.

64. Notwithstanding anything in the last preceding section contained, the Lieutenant-Governor may at any time declare that a particular school, or class of schools, shall be excluded from the management of the District Board within whose district such school or class of schools is situated, and may make such other order regarding the management thereof as he thinks fit.

The Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, extend, modify or revoke any order made under this section.

High English Schools may be placed under Joint Committee.

65. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor to declare that the management, maintenance, and visiting of any High English School, situated within a town which has been constituted a municipality under the Bengal Municipal Act of 1884, shall be entrusted to a Joint Committee, consisting partly of members delegated by the Commissioners of such municipality and partly of members delegated by such District Boards as may be named in the order.

Every order issued under this section shall specify the number of members to be delegated, and the proportion of the cost of maintenance of the school to be provided, by each of the local authorities named therein.

Every Joint Committee appointed under this section shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same liabilities, as are by this Chapter imposed on District Boards.

If any dispute arise between two or more local authorities acting under this section, the decision thereon of the Lieutenant-Governor shall be final.

D.—Medical.

Public dispensaries or hospitals may be vested in District Board.

66. The Lieutenant-Governor may declare by notification that any public charitable dispensary or hospital, situated within a district, shall be vested in the District Board. Such dispensary or hospital shall thereupon become vested in the District Board, and the District Board shall be charged with the management and maintenance thereof.

The Lieutenant-Governor may at any time revoke any order made under this section.

District Board may establish dispensaries, &c.

67. Any District Board may provide, for the use of the inhabitants of the district, dispensaries, hospitals or temporary places for the reception of the sick, and for that purpose may, itself build such dispensaries, hospitals or places of reception; or contract for the use of any such dispensary, hospital or place of reception, or of any part thereof; or enter into any agreement with any person having the management of any hospital for the reception of the sick inhabitants of the district, on payment of such annual or other sum as may be agreed on.

Two or more District Boards may combine to establish dispensaries, &c.

68. Two or more District Boards may, with the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor, combine in providing a common dispensary, hospital or place of reception, and, with the like consent, fix the proportions of the cost thereof to be borne by them respectively.

District Board may contribute to cost of hospital outside District.

69. A District Board may, with the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor, contribute such annual or other sum as may be agreed on towards the cost of the maintenance of any dispensary or hospital situated outside the district, but which is habitually used by the inhabitants of the district.

Recovery of cost of maintenance of patient in a hospital.

70. Any expenses incurred by a District Board in maintaining in a hospital, or in a temporary place for the reception of the sick, (whether or not belonging to the district), a patient who is not a pauper, shall be deemed to be a debt due from such patient to the District Board, and may be recovered from him at any time within six months after his discharge from such hospital or place of reception, or from his estate in the event of his dying in such hospital or place.

Power to provide temporary supply of medicine.

71. A District Board may, with the sanction of the Commissioner, provide, or contract with any person to provide, a temporary supply of medicine and medical assistance for the poorer inhabitants of the district.

District Board to conform to Government rules.

72. Every District Board, in exercising the powers vested in it by the six last preceding sections, shall conform to such rules as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time make in that behalf.

District Board to submit returns of births and deaths to Magistrate.

73. It shall be the duty of the District Board to submit such returns of births and deaths as the Magistrate of the District may from time to time require.

E.—Roads and Water-channels.

Public roads, &c., vested in the District Board.

74. On the commencement of this Act, all roads, bridges, tanks, ghats, wells, channels, and drains in any district (not vested in any Union Committee under section one hundred and seven, not being private property, and not being reserved by Government to be maintained at the public expense), now existing or which shall hereafter be made, and the pavements, stones, and other materials thereof, and all erections, materials, implements, and other things provided therefor, shall vest in and belong to the District Board.

District Board to send particulars as to roads to Commissioner.

75. Every District Board shall, within such period as the Commissioner may fix, submit to the Commissioner a schedule of all roads which have become vested in such District Board under the last preceding section. Such schedule shall specify the length and width of the roads, the number, description, and dimensions of bridges, and shall contain any other particulars that the Commissioner may require.

The District Board may from time to time revise such schedule, or may be required by the Commissioner so to do.

District Board may, with consent of owners, take over and repair roads, &c.

76. The District Board may agree with the person in whom the property in any road, bridge, tank, ghat, well, channel or drain is vested, to take over the property therein, and after such agreement may declare, by notice in writing put up thereon or near thereto, that such road, bridge, tank, ghat, well, channel or drain has been transferred to the District Board.

Thereupon the property therein shall vest in the District Board, and such road, bridge, tank, ghat, well, channel or drain shall thenceforth be repaired and maintained out of the District Fund.

(3) contract with any person for a supply of water.

91. Every District Board may appoint a properly qualified person to be its Sanitary Inspector, and shall, subject to the provisions of sections twenty-five and ninety-five and ninety-three fix the salary of such Sanitary Inspector, and the details of the establishment subordinate to him.

District Board to appoint Sanitary Inspector.

I.—Vaccination.

92. Every District Board to which the provisions of this and the next four succeeding sections shall have been extended, shall, within its district, be charged with the appointment, payment, management, and supervision of all public vaccinators.

District Boards to have supervision of vaccination within their districts.

93. Every such District Board shall appoint a properly qualified person to be Inspector of Vaccination within its district, and shall, subject to the provisions of sections twenty-five and ninety-one fix the salary to be paid to such person.

District Board to appoint Inspectors of Vaccination.

Every Inspector of Vaccination appointed under this section shall, within the district exercise the powers and perform the duties assigned to the Superintendent of Vaccination under the provisions of the Bengal Vaccination Act, 1880.

The Inspector of Vaccination shall also perform the duty of Sanitary Inspector to the District Board under the provisions of section ninety-one of this Act.

94. In every district to which the Bengal Vaccination Act, 1880, has been, or may hereafter be, extended, the District Board shall have the powers of the Magistrate of the district under section twenty-five of the said Act.

District Board to have powers of Magistrate in district to which the Vaccination Act extends.

95. Every District Board to which the provisions of this heading shall have been extended shall, in the exercise of such provisions, be subject to the general control and supervision of the Commissioner. It shall be lawful for the Commissioner, with the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor, from time to time, to make rules consistent with this Act and with the Bengal Vaccination Act, 1880 :

Commissioner to control vaccination and make rules.

And such rules, with the like consent, from time to time to modify, add to or revoke.

96. The four last preceding sections, so far as is consistent with the tenour thereof, shall be read with, and form a part of, the Bengal Vaccination Act, 1880.

Act to be read with the Bengal Vaccination Act.

J.—Of taking a Census.

97. It shall be lawful for the Commissioner, with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, at any time to require a District Board to take an account of the number of persons who, at the time of taking such account, shall be within the district of such District Board, and for that purpose to employ such and so many persons and incur such expenditure as the Commissioner may direct.

Commissioner may direct District Boards to take a census.

98. Every District Board which shall be required to take an account under the last preceding section shall, in taking such account, conform to any rules that may be made in that behalf by the Lieutenant-Governor, and to the provisions of any Act for regulating the taking of a census that may for the time being be in force in Bengal.

Powers for taking census.

K.—Famine Relief.

District Boards to take relief measures in case of famine.

99. Subject to such limit of expenditure as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, every District Board to which this section shall have been extended shall be authorized to take such measures as it thinks fit for the relief of famine within its district, and for that purpose may—

(1) Open and maintain such and so many relief works as may be necessary.

(2) Open and maintain such and so many temporary hospitals, poor-houses, orphanages, and places for the gratuitous distribution of food, as may be necessary.

(3) Employ such extra medical or other assistance as may be necessary.

(4) Combine with any other District Board or Boards for all or any of such purposes.

(6) Undertake and carry out any other local work likely to promote the health, comfort or convenience of the public and not provided for in any other Chapter of this Act.

CHAPTER II.

Duties and Powers of Local Boards.

Duties of Local Board.

101. The Lieutenant-Governor, or, subject to the control of the Lieutenant-Governor, a District Board, may direct that, within the area subject to the authority of a Local Board, any matter placed under the control and administration of the District Board under the provisions of this Act shall be wholly or partly transferred to the control and administration of the Local Board.

A Local Board, as the agent of, and subject to the control of, the District Board, shall, so far as the funds at its disposal permit, make due provision for all matters transferred to its control and administration under this section.

It shall be the duty of the District Board to enforce the responsibility imposed on a Local Board by this section.

Limits on expenditure of Local Board.

102. Except as otherwise provided by this Act, a Local Board shall not incur expenses or undertake liabilities to any amount exceeding the limit imposed by the District Board of its district.

Local Board to supervise and control Union Committees.

103. The Local Board shall exercise powers of supervision and control over all Union Committees situate within the local limits of its jurisdiction, and it shall be the duty of the Local Board to procure and submit, in such form as the District Board may prescribe, all such reports, returns and statistics as the District Board may from time to time require.

CHAPTER III.

Duties and Powers of Union Committees.

Union Committees to be subordinate to Local Boards.

104 The Union Committees shall be the agents of, and subject to the control of, the Local Board of the sub-division within which the Unions in respect of which they have been elected or appointed are respectively situated, and shall, within the areas respectively subject to their authority, have the control and administration of, and be responsible for, all matters specified in this Chapter, except such of those matters as the Local Board may think fit to take under its direct control and administration.

Union Committees to submit reports, estimates, and accounts to Local Board.

105. Every Union Committee shall submit annually to the Local Board of its sub-division, on or before such date as the Local Board may appoint in this behalf, an estimate of the probable expenditure of the Committee for the coming financial year, and an account of its receipts and expenditure for the past year, and shall also submit to the Local Board such other reports (if any), as the Local Board may from time to time require.

Limits on expenditure of Union Committee.

106 The Union Committee shall not incur expenses or undertake liabilities to any amount exceeding the limit imposed by the Local Board of its sub-division.

Village roads vested in Union Committee.

107. All village roads within any Union, and the stones and other materials thereof, and also all erections, materials, implements, and other things provided for such roads shall vest in and belong to the Union Committee

Power to make and improve village roads.

108. The Union Committee, making due compensation to the owners and occupiers of any houses or land which may be required for any such purposes, may—

(a) lay out and make new village roads;

(b) build and construct new bridges;

(c) turn, divert, discontinue or stop up any village road; and (d) widen, open, enlarge or otherwise improve any such road.

Maintenance and repair of village roads.

109. The Union Committee shall, so far as the Union Fund permits, from time to time cause the village roads to be maintained and repaired, and for such purpose may do all things necessary for the public safety and convenience.

Union Committee to send schedule of roads to Local Board.

110. Every Union Committee shall, within such time as the Local Board to which it is subordinate may direct, forward to such Local Board a schedule of all village roads within the Union. Such schedule shall state the length and width of the roads, the number, description, and dimensions of bridges, and such other particulars as the Local Board may require.

The Union Committee may, of its own motion, at any time revise the said schedule, or may be required by the Local Board so to do.

Local Board may entrust portions of district roads to management of Union Committees.

111. It shall be lawful for the Local Board to delegate to any Union Committee subordinate to such Local Board, the management of so much of any road under the management of such Local Board as may be situate within the Union of such Union Committee; and such Union Committee shall thereupon do all things necessary for the maintenance and repair of the portion of road so assigned to it, and shall be responsible to the Local Board in that behalf.

Powers of Union Committee in respect of pounds.

112. Every Union Committee shall exercise such powers in regard to the establishment, maintenance and management of pounds as may be vested in it by notification under Act XVIII of 1883.

Primary schools.

113. Subject to such rules as may be laid down from time to time by the Lieutenant-Governor, the Union Committee shall be charged with, and be responsible for, the management, maintenance, and visiting of all primary schools within the Union, the appointment (subject to the provisions of section one hundred and twenty-one) of the gurus of such schools, the payment of the salaries of such gurus, and the transmission to them of any rewards that may be granted by the Local Board.

Dispensaries.

114. The management, maintenance, and visiting of any dispensary within the Union may, with the consent of the Union Committee, and subject to such rules as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time lay down, be entrusted to the Union Committee.

Registration of vital statistics.

115. Every Union Committee shall provide for the registration of births and deaths within the Union, and shall submit such returns as the Local Board may direct.

Sanitation.

116. It shall be the duty of the Union Committee to provide, so far as may be possible, for the sanitation of the Union, and, in the case of fairs and melas, to make special arrangements for this purpose.

Drains, &c., under control of Union Committee.

117. All drains and other conservancy works within the Union, which are not under the control of any other authority, shall be under the control of the Union Committee.

Local Board may entrust works of sanitation, &c., to Union Committee.

118. It shall be lawful for the Local Board to entrust to any Union Committee subordinate to such Local Board the execution of any work of sanitation, drainage or water-supply affecting the area in which such Union Committee has jurisdiction.

Union Committee may cleanse public tanks.

119. Any Union Committee may cleanse or repair any public tank, stream or well, or public drain situate within the jurisdiction of such Union Committee, and charge the cost of such cleansing or repairing to the Union Fund, or, if such fund be not sufficient, may levy the same from persons resident within the Union in the manner provided for the levying of the Chowkeedaree Tax under the Bengal Acts, VI of 1870 and I of 1871, or other Act for the time being in force.

Powers as to private tanks, &c.

120. The Union Committee may require the owner of any tank, stream or well used for drinking purposes to cleanse or fill up the same; or may require the owner or occupier of any land which appears to be in a state injurious to health or offensive to the neighbourhood to clear or drain it, or take such other action with respect thereto as may be deemed necessary. If such owner or occupier makes default in carrying out the said order, the Union Committee may perform the work, and may recover the expense thereby incurred from such owner. Such expense shall be recoverable in the manner provided by any law for the time being in force for the recovery of public demands:

Provided that the Union Committee shall take no action under this section until after the expiry of thirty days from the date on which notice of the work required to be done shall have been served upon the owner of the tank, stream or well, or the owner or occupier of the land:

Provided further that when the cost of carrying out any order under this section shall be estimated as likely to exceed the sum of one hundred rupees, the Union Committee shall not issue such order without the previous consent of the Local Board.

Appointment of officers.

121. The Union Committee may, from time to time, appoint all such subordinate officers and servants as may be necessary to assist in carrying out this Act, and may, from time to time, remove any of such persons and appoint others in his place;

And may, with the sanction of the Local Board, fix the allowances of such persons, and pay out of the Union Fund such allowances to the said persons respectively, or in case of absence on leave, such portion thereof as it shall think reasonable.

The Local Board may, by order in writing, for reasons to be specified in such order, require any Union Committee subordinate to it, to dismiss any of the persons appointed by such Union Committee under this section, and the Union Committee shall thereupon dismiss the person or persons mentioned in such order.

PART IV.

CONTROL.

CHAPTER I.

Control over District and Local Boards.

Powers of Lieutenant-Governor and of Commissioners, &c

122. It shall be the duty of the Lieutenant-Governor and of all Commissioners and Magistrates of districts, acting under the orders of the Lieutenant-Governor, to require that the proceedings of local authorities shall be in conformity with law and with the rules in force thereunder. The Lieutenant-Governor may in that behalf exercise all powers necessary, and may, amongst other things, by order in writing, annul any proceeding which he considers not to be in conformity with law and with the said rules.

The Commissioner and the Magistrate of the district may, within their jurisdiction, for the same purpose, exercise such powers as may be conferred upon them by rules made in this behalf by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Books and records to be open for inspection of district officers.

123. Every District Board and Local Board shall at all times permit the Commissioner and, if he is not Chairman of the District Board, the Magistrate of the district, to have access to all its books, proceedings, and records.

Power to inspect works.

124. The Magistrate of the district or, if the Magistrate of the district is Chairman of the District Board, the Commissioner, shall have power at all times to enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immoveable property occupied by, or any work in progress under the orders of, a local authority.

Power to suspend action.

125. The Magistrate of the district, or, if the Magistrate of the district is Chairman of the District Board, the Commissioner, may by order in writing suspend the execution of any order or resolution of a local authority within the jurisdiction of such Magistrate or Commissioner, or the doing of any act which is about to be done, or is being done, by such local authority, if in his opinion the execution of the resolution or order, or the doing of the act, is likely to cause injury or annoyance to the public, or to any class or body of persons, or to lead to a breach of the peace.

Power to provide for performance of duties in case of default of District Board.

126. When the Commissioner is informed, on complaint made or otherwise, that a District Board has made default in performing any duty imposed on it by or under this Act, the Commissioner, if satisfied after due enquiry that such District Board has made default as alleged, may, by an order in writing, fix a period for the performance of that duty.

If that duty is not performed within the period so fixed, the Commissioner may appoint some person to perform it, and may direct that the expense of performing it, with a reasonable remuneration to the person appointed to perform it, shall be forthwith paid by the District Board.

If the expense and remuneration are not so paid, the Commissioner may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the District Fund to pay the expense and remuneration, or as much thereof as is possible, from that balance.

Extraordinary powers in case of emergency

127. In cases of emergency the Magistrate, or, if the Magistrate is the Chairman of the District Board, the Commissioner, may provide for the execution of any work, or the doing of any act, which a local authority is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is in his opinion necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or doing the act, with a reasonable remuneration to the person appointed to execute or do it, shall be forthwith paid by the District Board.

If the expense and remuneration are not so paid, the Magistrate or the Commissioner, as the case may be, may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the District Fund to pay the expense and remuneration, or as much thereof as is possible from that balance.

Certain orders to be submitted to Lieutenant-Governor

128. When the Commissioner makes any order under sections one hundred and twenty-five, one hundred and twenty-six, or one hundred and twenty-seven, he shall forthwith forward to the Lieutenant-Governor, and when the Magistrate of the district makes any order under section one hundred and twenty-five or section one hundred and twenty-seven, he shall forthwith forward to the Commissioner for submission to the Lieutenant-Governor, a copy of the order, with a statement of the reasons for making it, and with such explanation, if any, as the local authority may wish to offer. The Lieutenant-Governor may thereupon confirm, modify, or rescind the order.

Powers and duties of Commissioner and Magistrate transferred to District and Local Boards.

129. All powers conferred upon Commissioners and Magistrates of districts in regard to District Boards or local authorities generally by sections one hundred and twenty-five, one hundred and twenty-six and one hundred and twenty-seven shall be exercised in respect of a Union Committee by the Local Board, and in respect of a Local Board by the District Board.

When a District Board makes any order under this section it shall forthwith forward, to the Magistrate of the district for submission to the Commissioner, or if the Magistrate of the district is Chairman of the Board, it shall forthwith forward to the Commissioner, a copy of the order with a statement of the reasons for making it, and with such explanation, if any, as the Local Board may wish to offer. The Commissioner, if he is dissatisfied with the order, may report the matter to the Lieutenant-Governor, and the Lieutenant-Governor may thereupon confirm, modify, or rescind the order.

Power of Lieutenant-Governor to supersede in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of power.

130. If a local authority is not competent to perform or persistently makes default in the performance of the duties imposed on it by or under this or any other Act, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Lieutenant-Governor may, by notification in which the reason for so doing shall be stated, declare the local authority to be superseded for a period to be specified in such notification.

Consequences of supersession.

131. When a local authority is superseded under the preceding section, the following consequences shall ensue—

(a) All members constituting the local authority shall from the date of the notification vacate their offices as such members.

(b) All powers and duties of the local authority may, until the local authority be reconstituted, be exercised and performed by such persons as the Lieutenant-Governor appoints in that behalf.

(c) When a District Board is superseded all property vested in it shall, pending the reconstitution of the Board, vest in the Lieutenant-Governor.

On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the notification, the Board shall be re-established, and the persons who vacated their offices under clause (a) shall not be deemed disqualified for appointment or election.

Disputes.

132. If any dispute, for the decision of which this Act does not otherwise provide, arises between two or more local authorities, the matter shall be referred—

(a) to the Magistrate of the district, if the local authorities concerned are in the same district;

(b) to the Commissioner or Commissioners of the division or divisions, if the local authorities concerned are in different districts; and

(c) to the Lieutenant-Governor, if the local authorities concerned are in different divisions and the Commissioners of these divisions cannot agree.

The decision of the authority to which any dispute is referred under this section shall be final.

If, in the case mentioned in clause (a), the Magistrate of the district is a member of one of the local authorities concerned, his functions under this section shall be discharged by the Commissioner.

"Local authority" in this section includes a Municipal authority.

Power of the Lieutenant-Governor to make rules.

133. So far as may be consistent with the provisions of this Act—

The Lieutenant-Governor may for any District or Local Board or Union Committee make rules for—

(a) determining the mode and time of appointment or election of members of Boards and Committees, the term of office, and the qualifications and disqualifications of such members, and the qualifications and disqualifications of voters, and generally for regulating all elections under this Act;

(b) regulating the powers of District Boards to transfer property;

(c) regulating the powers of Boards and Committees to contract and do other things necessary for the purposes of their constitution and the mode of executing contracts;

(d) determining the immediate offices, if any, through which correspondence between Boards and Committees, or members of Boards and Committees and the Lieutenant-Governor or his officers shall pass;

(e) determining the language in which business shall be transacted;

(f) prescribing the qualifications of candidates for employment under section twenty-five;

(g) prescribing the day for holding meetings or submitting statements, estimates, reports or accounts under sections thirty-eight and thirty-nine;

(h) the apportionment of the District Fund between the general purposes of the district and the purposes of particular parts of the districts;

(i) the application of district funds;

(j) the form of estimates of income and expenditure under section thirty-nine;

(k) the form and publication of accounts and the manner of periodical audit under sections forty-eight and forty-nine;

(l) the allotment of grants to primary and secondary schools, and the appointment of teachers and sub-inspectors, the standards of education, the conduct of examinations, the award of scholarships, and all other matters connected with the administration of such schools;

(m) regulating the provision and maintenance of dispensaries, hospitals, and places of reception for the sick, the recovery of cost of maintenance of patients in hospitals, and the supply of medicines and medical assistance for the poorer inhabitants of the district;

(n) fixing the standard of professional qualification to be required of medical officers and regulating their duties; the inspection of dispensaries and hospitals, and the forms of returns and reports to be made by the District Board;

(o) regulating the powers and duties of the Inspector of Local Works;

(p) the preparation of plans, designs, specifications, and estimates for works which are to be partly or wholly constructed at the expense of Boards, and the authority by which, and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned;

(q) regulating the duties of District Boards in regard to district sanitation;

(r) regulating the duties of District Boards in regard to taking a census;

(s) establishment and maintenance of staging bungalows, fairs, hats, and poor-houses, the holding of exhibitions, the offer of rewards for the destruction of noxious animals, and the carrying out of any other work likely to promote the health, comfort or convenience of the public;

(t) regulating the powers of Union Committees in regard to primary schools and dispensaries;

(u) the powers of supervision to be exercised by Commissioners and Magistrates under section 122;

(v) the conduct of proceedings of Boards and Committees, including the manner in which notices of meeting shall be given, the fixing of a quorum, the due record of dissents and discussions, the appointment or election of a chairman, and the term of office of a chairman and vice-chairman;

(w) the appointment and payment of auditors of the accounts of Boards and Committees;

(x) the guidance of District Boards when suits or other proceedings are threatened or have been instituted by or against them in Civil Courts; and

(y) generally determining the relations between District Boards, Local Boards and Union Committees, and guiding Boards and Committees and Government officers in all matters connected with the carrying out of the provisions of this Act.

All such rules and alterations of rules shall be notified, and no rules or alteration of rules under clause (a) shall come into operation until three months after they have been notified.

Bye-laws.

Power to make bye-laws.

134. Every District Board or Local Board, empowered in this behalf by the Lieutenant-Governor, may make bye-laws for carrying out all or any of the purposes of this Act. Bye-laws made under this section shall not have effect until they have been confirmed by the Lieutenant-Governor and published in such manner and for such time as the Lieutenant-Governor may direct.

Penalty for infringement of bye-laws.

135. In making a bye-law under the preceding section a Board may direct that a breach of the same shall be punished with fine, which may extend to fifty rupees, and in the case of a continuing breach with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day during which the breach is continued after the offender has been convicted of such breach.

Prosecutions.

136. Prosecutions under this Act for breach of bye-laws may be instituted by any Board, or by any person authorized by the Board in this behalf. A Judge or Magistrate shall not be deemed to be, within the meaning of section five hundred and fifty-five of the Code of Criminal Procedure, a party to, or personally interested in, any case under this section, merely because he is a member of the Board.

Miscellaneous Provisions.

Liability of members of Boards.

137. Every person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the District Board or Union Committee, if such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while a member of a Union Committee, Local Board or District Board, and a suit for compensation for the same may be instituted against him, in such Court as the Lieutenant-Governor directs, by the District Board with the sanction of the Commissioner, or by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Procedure for making rules and bye-laws.

138. The Lieutenant-Governor, before making any rules under section one hundred thirty-three, and a District or Local Board, before making any bye-laws under section one hundred and thirty-four, shall publish, in such manner as the Lieutenant-Governor may deem sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules or bye-laws, together with a notice specifying a date on or after which the draft will be taken into consideration; and shall, before making the rules or bye-laws, receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

Every such rule or bye-law shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette in English and in such other language as the Lieutenant-Governor directs, and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule or bye-law has been made as required by this section.

Penalty on member, officer or servant being interested in contracts made with a local authority.

139. If any member, officer or servant of a local authority appointed under this Act is, otherwise than with the permission in writing of the Commissioner, directly or indirectly interested in any contract made with that authority, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under the Indian Penal Code, section one hundred and sixty-eight.

A person shall not, by reason of being a shareholder in, or a member of, any incorporated or registered Company, be held to be interested in any contract entered into between the Company and a Board or Committee; but he shall not take part in any proceedings of the Board or Committee relating to any such contract.

Power to make compensation out of the local fund

140. Every local authority may make compensation out of the district or union funds respectively to any person sustaining any damage by reason of the exercise of any of the powers conferred by this Act.

No action to be brought against the members of Boards and Committees or their officers until after one month's notice of cause of action

141. No suit shall be brought against the members of any District Board, Local Board, or Union Committee, or any of their officers, or any person acting under their direction, for anything done under this Act, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the office of such Board or Committee, and also (if the suit is intended to be brought against any officer of the said Board or Committee, or any person acting under their directions) at the place of abode of the person against whom such suit is threatened to be brought, stating the cause of suit and the name and place of abode of the person who intends to bring the suit;

And unless such notice be proved the Court shall find for the defendant.

Every such action shall be commenced within three months next after the accrual of the cause of action, and not afterwards.

If any such person to whom any such notice is given shall before suit is brought, tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 14th March, 1884:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bengal Tenancy Bill was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the schedule hereto annexed, and have the honour to submit this preliminary Report.

2. We have recast the Bill, and have embodied in the revised Bill such alterations as commended themselves to the majority of us, but there are various points on which we consider that further information is requisite, and we recommend that the Bill as altered by us should be republished for further criticism, in the interval that will elapse before we resume our labours in November.

3. The present Report being only a preliminary one, several members of the Committee wish it to be recorded that they postpone the expression of their opinions on particular points until the final Report is submitted to the Council. It must also be understood that generally in referring to the decisions of the Committee we state the views of the majority.

CHAPTER II.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

4. This chapter has been introduced for the purpose of describing the different classes of tenants with which the Bill deals. It will be seen from it that raiyats at fixed rates are now treated as a distinct class instead of being, as in the original Bill, a sub-class of tenure-holders. It will further be observed that the term "non-occupancy-raiyats" has been substituted for "ordinary raiyats," which latter term has been justly objected to as a misnomer. Lastly, it will be seen that tenants of homestead or Basta land, which is not part of an occupancy-holding, have no place in the revised Bill. It may be that on further consideration it will be found desirable to introduce into the Bill some provisions relating to tenants of this class but at present we have not before us the information requisite for dealing with the questions involved. It is clear that, owing to the various conditions which attach to the holdings of such tenants in different parts of the country, Chapter VII of the original Bill would, if it were to be retained, need amendment in certain particulars. But we are unable to formulate this amendment, pending the receipt of further information, which we hope will be supplied by the Local Government.

5. In the section which relates to the distinction between tenure-holders and raiyats, we have endeavoured to describe, rather than to define, each class. Whilst recognising the expediency of laying down rules for the guidance of Courts in dealing with cases which lie near the border-line between the two classes, we retain the opinion that any attempt to frame a rigid definition of either class would tend to create, rather than to remove, difficulties.

CHAPTER III.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

6. The sections (14-17) of the original Bill relating to the right to hold at fixed rates have been removed to Chapter VIII of the revised Bill, and will be more particularly referred to when we come to speak of that chapter. Section 20 of the original Bill, which contained a special provision relating to lands in temporarily-settled districts, has been transferred to the supplemental chapter.

7. We have made a considerable alteration in section 7, sub-section (3), which lays down the rules to be followed by the Court in enhancing the rent of a tenure in cases where the matter is not provided for by contract or custom. It is now simply enacted that the Court shall not leave the tenure-holder less than 10 per cent. of the profits, and in fixing the rent shall have regard to the circumstances under which the tenure was created, to the improvements made by the holder of it, and to the cost and risks of collection. We have left untouched the provisions that the enhanced rent should not be more than double the previous rent and that it should hold good for 10 years.

8. The special provisions of the original Bill relating to patní tenures, with the exception of the definition section (36), which has been transferred to the preliminary chapter, and the section (42) regarding summary sale, which has been placed in the chapter relating to that subject, have been included in this chapter.

9. Of the alterations we have made in the sub-division of this chapter relating to registration of transfers and successions, the following only seem to call for notice, namely :—

(1) the addition to sub-section (1) of section 15 of a proviso allowing a landlord to refuse to register a transfer of a tenure if any rent is in arrear ;

(2) the abolition of the additional fee imposed by section 27 (2), clause (b), of the original Bill as a penalty for delay in applying for registration, and the insertion of a clause fixing the fee at Rs. 2 where no rent is payable by the tenure-holder [section 15 (2)] ;

(3) the addition to section 18 of a sub-section providing that a person becoming entitled to a tenure by transfer or succession shall not be entitled to recover rent by suit, distraint or other proceeding until the transfer or succession has been registered or a notice of it has been served on the landlord ; and

(4) the amendment of the section (now section 21) relating to the granting of copies of entries in the register, so that the fee for every copy granted shall be such amount, not less than one anna or more than one rupee, as the Local Government may fix.

CHAPTER IV.

RAIYATS HOLDING AT FIXED RATES.

10. In the matters of transfer and succession we have assimilated the conditions of the settled-raiyat holding at fixed rates to those of tenure-holders. It was suggested that this class of raiyats should be sub-divided into (a) those holding under a registered lease or judicially declared title, and (b) those holding at fixed rates under the statutory presumption, the former being assimilated to tenure-holders and the latter to raiyats with a right of occupancy ; but the majority of us were unable to accept this proposal.

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

11. The main lines of this chapter, so far as regards the acquisition of the status of a raiyat and the right of occupancy, remain unchanged, and we have only to mention such alterations in the details as appear to us to call for notice.

Our attention has been drawn to the inconvenience which may arise in certain exceptionally large estates, such as those of the Mahárájá of Búrdwan and others, from the status of settled-raiyat holding good over the whole estate. We desire to learn if the Government of Bengal consider that in these exceptional estates any known fiscal or administrative area can be advantageously substituted for the area of an estate.

12. Another matter connected with the definition of "estate" for the special objects of this chapter, to which we desire to draw attention, is the provision in section 27 (b) to the effect that where a partition has taken place "since the first day of January, 1853" the parent estate shall, notwithstanding the partition, be regarded as a single estate. The date mentioned was chosen because it was understood that it might reasonably be expected that from about that time complete records of partitions would be forthcoming ; but the particular point of time to which we should go back is of course open to further consideration, and accordingly we have directed that the words fixing it shall be shown in italics.

13. We have, at the instance of the Government of Bengal, inserted in section 26 (definition of settled-raiyat) a sub-section (2) providing that when it is proved or admitted that a person holds land as a raiyat, it shall be, as between him and his landlord, presumed for the purpose of the section, until the contrary is shown, that he has for twelve years held the land or some part of it as a raiyat. Such a presumption appears to us to be warranted by the existing state of things in the Lower Provinces, and, while it tends to simplify litigation, it is one which the landlord ought to have no difficulty in rebutting in any case in which it does not hold good.

14. We have [section 26 (6)] retained in substance the provision of the original Bill under which a person does not lose his status as a settled-raiyat merely by the accident of his being out of possession of a holding in the village or estate for any time not exceeding one year, but have added to it a clause [sub-section (7)] to the effect that if he recovers possession of any land under section 96 (as to which see infra paragraph 66) he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled-raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession for more than a year.

15. The chapter relating to merger having been omitted from the Bill for reasons to be explained further on, we have thought it desirable, in order to prevent any misapprehension, to insert in this chapter a section (28), providing that, if the landlord of a raiyat having a right of occupancy acquires the interest of the raiyat by purchase or otherwise, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist, but that nothing in this provision shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

16. We have omitted section 48 of the original Bill, which provided for the acquisition of the occupancy-right by grant, and have substituted for section 49 of that Bill relating to the acquisition of the occupancy-right in lands of the classes comprised under the term khámár as there defined, a section (30) simply providing that nothing in the chapter shall confer a right of occupancy in lands of those classes where such lands are held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year.

17. We have, in affirming that the raiyat may use the land in any manner that does not render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, added [section 31, clause (a)] that he shall not cut down trees thereon in contravention of any local custom.

18. In the division which relates to the landlord's right of pre-emption, and which is now headed "restrictions on transfer", we have [in section 32 (4)] provided that the landlord, if he elects to purchase, must tender the price within one month from the date on which it is agreed on or fixed, and we have also inserted words to allow the raiyat, if his landlord claims to purchase, the option of keeping the land.

19. We have further inserted in the same section a sub-section (5) providing that if the raiyat attempts to sell in contravention of the provisions of the section the sale shall be void as against his landlord.

20. We have omitted section 55 of the original Bill, which gave the landlord a right of pre-emption when the occupancy-right is bequeathed.

21. As regards gifts of the occupancy-right, we believe that the great majority of such gifts would be either of the nature of bequests or of merely fictitious transactions covering sales. It is only in the case of gifts of this latter class that the landlord seems to us to stand in need of any protection, and we think that sufficient protection will be afforded him by requiring that a gift must be made by a registered instrument, and that a copy of the instrument shall be forthwith served on the landlord so as to give him an opportunity of questioning the transaction if he sees any ground for believing that it is not bonâ fide. We have, however, exempted from this requirement gifts by Muhammadans to persons within the prohibited degrees, as such gifts are usually substitutes for testamentary dispositions (section 35).

22. Lastly, we have added a section (36) restricting the right of pre-emption to proprietors and permanent tenure-holders and other tenure-holders authorized by them to exercise it, as it seems to us that the exercise of such a right by a temporary tenure-holder, otherwise than with the permission of a superior landlord having a permanent interest in the land, would give rise to difficulties and complications which it is desirable to avoid.

23. Great objection has been taken to section 56 of the original Bill, which provided that when a landlord acquires the occupancy-right, any raiyat afterwards taking the land shall have an occupancy-right in it: this section we have omitted.

24. We have also omitted section 57, which conferred the status of a settled-raiyat on every person inheriting an occupancy-right in land. The object of this latter section seems to us to be sufficiently secured by section 26, (4).

25. The next division of this chapter, headed "restrictions on sub-letting", is new. It is based on certain proposals put forward by the Government of Bengal, and having for their objects to discourage the purchase of the occupancy-right by non-agricultural speculators and to protect the sub-lessee of a raiyat. This latter object, we may observe, could be only in part carried out by the provisions inserted here. Further provisions for securing it will be found in Chapter VII, relating to under-raiyats, of which we shall presently have to speak.

26. The main enactments in this sub-division of the chapter are—

1st.—That if the portion of his holding sub-let by an occupancy-raiyat exceeds half the holding, he shall, on being registered in a public register as a tenure-holder under an Act, which the Local Government propose to introduce into the Bengal Council for this purpose, be deemed to have become a tenure-holder, the result of which will be that his sub-lessees will become raiyats, with an actual or potential right of occupancy (section 37).

2nd.—That if a raiyat sub-lets his holding or any part of it the sub-lease shall not be valid for a period exceeding seven years (section 38).

These enactments are qualified by certain provisions, the most important of which are—

1st.—That they shall not apply to the case of a raiyat who is compelled to sub-let by being disabled from cultivation by age, sex, disease, accident or temporary absence from home in certain cases, and

2nd.—That when a raiyat is converted into a tenure-holder, as above-mentioned, his rent shall be liable to enhancement on the same terms and subject to the same conditions as if he were an occupancy-raiyat, and thus the position of his landlord will in this respect remain unaffected.

27. These provisions gave rise to considerable difference of opinion, and we are not insensible of the inconvenience arising from allowing a change to be created in the legal relations of a raiyat, both towards his landlord on the one hand and towards his own sub-tenants on the other, as the result of his own acts; a change, moreover, which must be determined by an arbitrary line difficult to ascertain, and complicated by the numerous exceptions which the circumstances of the cultivators obviously demand. There seemed, however, to the majority of us to be no better way of placing restrictions on sub-letting (a practice which it is admittedly impossible to prohibit) than by rendering the sub-letting raiyat liable to the summary sale for arrears, which is to be made applicable to tenures, and at the same time enabling his sub-tenants to acquire rights of occupancy. These provisions illustrate the extreme difficulty of placing any substantial check on the practice of sub-letting, when it has once grown up. It will be observed that the converted tenure-holder, while liable to enhancement as an occupancy-raiyat, is in all other respects treated as a tenure-holder, and acquires with the liability to summary sale other incidents of tenure-holders, such as exemption from the pre-emption clauses, but that none of these provisions will come into operation until such time as he is registered. It was felt that to throw on the Courts the duty of ascertaining in a simple rent suit all the complicated conditions, which are connoted by his conversion, would be intolerable, and that the difficulty could only be met by the Local Government ascertaining and registering them. This it has undertaken to do.

28. The alterations which we have made in the provisions relating to the enhancement of the rent of occupancy-raiyats are considerable, both as regards form and substance.

We have removed the provisions relating to enhancement by means of a table of rates to a separate chapter following that relating to the record-of-rights and settlement of rents, and deal here only with enhancement in the ordinary way by contract or by a suit in Court.

29. As the Bill now stands amended the rent of an occupancy-raiyat cannot be enhanced by contract unless the contract is registered, and the following rules will apply to every such contract (section 41):—

(1).—The rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than four annas in the rupee (25 per cent.) the rent previously payable by the raiyat.

(2).—The contract must fix the rent for a term of at least seven years.

(3).—If the enhanced rent exceeds by more than two annas in the rupee (12½ per cent.) the previous rent, the contract must fix the rent for a term of at least fifteen years.

(4).—The registering officer must, before registering a contract under this section, ascertain that the contract is in accordance with the provisions of the Act, and that the raiyat entering into it acts as a free agent. It will be observed that under the revised section the registering officer, instead of being required to approve a contract and to satisfy himself that it is fair and equitable, is now merely required to satisfy himself that it is in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

30. Further, it is provided (section 42) that where land, which has been previously held by a tenant at a money-rent, is let to a settled-raiyat of the village or estate in which it is situate, that raiyat shall not be bound to pay for it any rent higher than that which was paid for it by the previous tenant, except in pursuance of a registered contract, and that the rules just referred to shall apply to every such contract.

31. As regards enhancement by suit our object has been, while laying down rules which will be substantially just to both landlords and tenants, to devise a system which would avoid those elaborate and difficult inquiries, the necessity for which has made the present enhancement law an almost useless instrument in the hands of the landlords.

With this view we have specified the grounds on which an enhancement suit can be instituted, as follows (section 43):—

(a).—That the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity.

(b).—That there has been a rise in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(c).—That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord.

(d).—That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

32. An enquiry had shown that an authoritative Table of Rates could be prepared by the Government of Bengal only for exceptional tracts, and no other general method has been submitted to us for placing before the Courts the information with respect to productive powers of the land which would enable them to apply the rules for enhancement on the ground of increase in those powers. But the zamíndárs objected to the total elimination of this as a legal ground of enhancement, and, as it was part of the old law, it has been retained. Enhancements on this ground when the increase is caused by the landlord's improvement will be facilitated by the system of enquiry and registration provided for hereafter; but enhancements on the ground of increase of productive powers caused by fluvial action will still, we fear, be liable to the same difficulty, caused by the absence of any proof of the former productive powers of the soil, as has rendered this ground of enhancement futile in past years.

34. It has been urged that, in applying the proportion rule in the case of prices, some deduction should be made to cover the effect of these increased prices on the cost of cultivation. We are however content for the present to leave the protection of the raiyat in this respect to the other restrictions on enhancements, especially to section 48, which provides that the Court shall not in any case decree an enhancement, which appears under the circumstances of the case to be unfair or inequitable. But the point will receive further consideration when the alterations made in this chapter have been subjected to public criticism.

35. The difficulty which, as we have explained, stands in the way of enhancement on the ground of an increase in the productive powers of the land, applies with no less force to the proposal to limit the maximum enhanced rent to one-fifth of the average annual gross produce. The majority of the Committee were of opinion that it would be almost impossible to ascertain in each instance the average annual gross produce expressed in staple crops, and weighty objections have also been taken to the principle underlying that proposal. We have accordingly struck out the provision to the above effect contained in section 75 (d) of the original Bill. As a set-off against this we have increased the stringency of another limitation contained in the original Bill by providing that, when rent is enhanced on the first ground mentioned above, the enhancement shall not amount to more than 8 annas in the rupee (50 per cent.), and that, when it is enhanced on the second or fourth of those grounds, the enhancement shall not amount to more than 4 annas in the rupee (25 per cent.), and by providing, as above stated, that the Court shall not in any case decree an enhancement which appears under the circumstances of the case to be unfair or inequitable (section 48).

36. In connection with enhancement up to the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats of the same class, we have in section 44 introduced a clause [(c)], based on section 20 of the North-Western Provinces Tenancy Act, providing for cases in which local custom may make it necessary to take into consideration the caste of a raiyat.

37. As regards enhancement on the ground of an improvement made by the landlord, we have laid down no hard-and-fast rule, but have merely provided [section 46 (b)] that in determining the enhancement to be allowed the Court shall have regard to—

(i) the increase in the value of the produce caused by the improvement,

(ii) the cost of the improvement;

(iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and

(iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent.

And, in order to avoid perplexing inquiries into matters long past, we have provided [section 46 (a)] that the Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered, that is to say, registered in accordance with the rules which are laid down in Chapter IX, and which, as will be seen, are so framed as to secure that all requisite information will be duly placed on record.

38. The leading rule adopted by us for enhancement on the ground of increase of productive power arising from fluvial action is suggested by that proposed by the Rent Commission, and is to the effect that the landlord shall not have more than half the value of the net increase in the produce of the land [section 47 (c)].

39. Section 78 of the original Bill, which limited the right to bring successive enhancement suits, has now (section 50) been restricted to suits on the ground that the rent paid is below the prevailing rate, and suits on the ground of an increase of prices; but the restriction will now apply to cases in which a suit for enhancement has been dismissed on the merits as well as to cases in which enhancement has been decreed, and the period which must elapse between successive enhancements has been extended from ten to fifteen years.

40. The grounds on which a suit for reduction of rent may be brought are in the amended Bill (section 51) limited to the following:—

(a) that the soil of the holding has, without the fault of the raiyat, become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other like calamity, and

(b) that there has been a fall in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality.

In either case the Court is to direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

41. Section 52 of the amended Bill, which provides for the preparation of authoritative price-lists, differs from the corresponding section of the original Bill in certain particulars; but the only alteration which we need notice here is that the new section empowers the Local Government to direct price-lists to be prepared for past years as well as for current years. Materials for such price-lists exist in the statements of prices published regularly by the Bengal

Government during the past 12 years, and, if it be possible to correct these lists and render them a trustworthy record of local prices, the work of the Courts in enhancing rents on the ground of a rise in price will be greatly simplified.

42. Section 80 of the original Bill, which provided for the enhancement of the rent of pasture lands, has been omitted, as it is understood that the letting of land to individual tenants for grazing purposes is so very rare that no special rules are needed to regulate it.

43. Section 81 of the original Bill, which prescribed a limit to the amount of the rent payable in kind by an occupancy-tenant or varying with the crop, has likewise been omitted, because it was found that local usage on the point was exceedingly complicated, large deductions being usually made from the crop for various purposes before dividing it, and that to draw a hard-and-fast line would very probably mislead the Courts and have an injurious effect.

44. The section (53) providing for the commutation of rent payable in kind has been recast on the lines of section 16 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, 1883. As it now stands it admits of an application for commutation being made to certain officers, either by the landlord or the tenant, and empowers the officer to whom it is made to refuse it if it is opposed. Further, the new section allows a larger discretion than the original section in determining the amount of the money-rent to be paid. It merely provides that in making the determination the officer shall have regard to—

(a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and

(b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years.

CHAPTER VI.

NON-OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

45. Section 89 of the original Bill provided that the non-occupancy-raiyat, or, as he was termed in that Bill, the "ordinary raiyat", should pay such rent as might be from time to time agreed on between him and his landlord, but subject to the provisions of section 119, which made five-sixteenths of the average annual value of gross produce the maximum of the rent. We now propose to abandon this maximum for the reasons which led us to abandon the corresponding maximum in the case of the enhancement of an occupancy-raiyat's rent, and the question accordingly arises whether any other restriction should be placed on contracts fixing the rent of a non-occupancy tenant. The majority of us are opposed to any such restriction, and accordingly the amended Bill leaves the parties free except in so far as it provides (section 57) that the rent shall not be enhanced after the raiyat has been admitted into occupation of the land, except by registered agreement or in the manner allowed by certain sections of the chapter to be presently noticed.

46. In section 58, which states the grounds on which a non-occupancy-raiyat is liable to be ejected, we have introduced a clause permitting him to be ejected, when he has for the first time been admitted to occupation of the land under a registered lease, on the ground that the term of the lease has expired; but we have provided in the following section (59) that a suit for ejectment on this ground shall not be instituted unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

47. We have also decided to strike out the clause giving the non-occupancy-raiyat compensation for disturbance, but have provided in lieu thereof (section 60) that when an ejectment suit is brought against a non-occupancy-raiyat on the ground of his refusal to pay an enhanced rent, the Court shall fix a fair and equitable rent, and the raiyat shall have the option of holding on at that rent for a term of five years, after which he will be liable to be ejected on the same conditions as after the expiry of an initial lease, provided rights of occupancy have not accrued to him in the meantime.

CHAPTER VII.

UNDER-RAIYATS.

48. We have already (supra paragraphs 26 and 27) referred to the new provision introduced into the Bill which, by converting an occupancy-raiyat who sub-lets half his land into a tenure-holder, confers upon his sub-lessees the status and advantages of raiyats. The chapter now under consideration provides a certain amount of protection to under-raiyats who are not entitled to the benefit of that provision.

Section 62 provides that the landlord of an under-raiyat holding at a money-rent shall not be entitled to recover rent exceeding the rent which he himself pays by more than the following percentage of the same, namely :—

(a) when the rent payable by the under-raiyat is payable under a registered lease or agreement—fifty per cent.; and

(b) in any other case—twenty-five per cent.

And section 63 provides that an under-raiyat shall not be liable to be ejected by his landlord, except at the end of an agricultural year, and after a written notice to quit has been served on him in the prescribed manner not less than six months before the expiration of that year.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO RENT.

49. This chapter opens with the provisions relating to the right of tenure-holders and raiyats to hold at a fixed rent, which have been transferred from the opening of the original chapter relating to tenure-holders. The only change made in these provisions which seems to call for notice here is the addition of a clause to sub-section (2) of section 64, providing that, if an enactment should hereafter be passed requiring the registration of permanent tenures or of tenancies at fixed rates, the well-known presumption from twenty years' holding shall cease to apply to any tenancies which are not registered within the time fixed. The Local Government, we understand, propose shortly to introduce into the Bengal Council a Bill establishing a registration system of the nature just referred to, and, if that Bill becomes law, it will, we believe, with the aid of this clause, afford, so far at least as those classes of tenancies are concerned, the best remedy for the hardship which the landlords complain of as caused to them by the retention on the Statute Book of the presumption in question. The above presumption will also cease to apply when a record-of-rights has been prepared (see infra para. 77)

50. In section 66, (2), we have omitted the hard-and-fast rule laid down in the corresponding section (96) of the original Bill, that in calculating the addition to be made to the rent of a tenure on account of an addition to the area comprised in it, 30 per cent. should be allowed for profits, risk and cost of collection; and have merely provided that the Court shall have regard to the profits to which the tenure-holder is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure.

51. In the section (67) relating to instalments of rent we have omitted as unnecessary the somewhat complicated proviso appended to section 98 of the original Bill.

52. We have in section 68 inserted a clause empowering the Local Government to try the experiment of making rules authorizing a tenant to pay his rent by postal money-order—a mode of payment which we think may in some cases be found convenient.

53. In sections 70 and 71 we have, instead of stereotyping the contents of the receipts and accounts to be furnished to tenants, given forms of these documents (in a schedule), and empowered the Local Government to alter them as convenience may require.

54. We have in section 70, (4), relaxed the stringency of the corresponding provision [section 100 (4)] of the original Bill by providing that a receipt not containing substantially the required particulars shall merely be "presumed until the contrary is shown" (instead of "deemed") to be an acquittance in full of all demands up to date.

55. It has been suggested that we should provide for applications for the withdrawal of rent deposited being exempted from Court-fees. We think such an exemption desirable, but it is within the power of the executive authorities to arrange for its being made, and we prefer to leave the matter in their hands.

56. We have, in the section (78) providing for ejectment from a non-transferable holding for arrears of rent, added a sub-section empowering the Court for special reasons to extend the period allowed for the payment of the rent.

57. We have empowered the Collector to depute an officer to divide or appraise the produce of a bhaoli holding, not only on the application of one of the parties concerned, but also in any case in which, in the opinion of the Magistrate of the District or Sub-Division, such action would be likely to prevent a breach of the peace [section 81 (2)].

58. We have further empowered the Collector in all cases to pass such order as he thinks just on the report of the officer deputed, and have provided that his order shall be final and be enforceable as a decree, unless he thinks fit to refer any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court [section 82 (4) and (5)]. This seems to us a simpler and more convenient procedure than leaving the parties to seek redress in the Civil Court in the first instance, as under the original Bill.

59. For section 117 of the original Bill we have substituted a section (set out in the margin) dealing comprehensively with the rights and liabilities of the landlord and tenant as to possession of the crop in cases where rent is taken by appraisement or division of the produce.

Rights and liabilities as to possession of crop

83. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the produce.

(2) Where rent is taken by division of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to exclusive possession of the whole produce until it is divided.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord, but shall not be entitled to remove any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

The penal provision of section 117 of the original Bill has not been reproduced here, as the matter is sufficiently provided for in the more general penalty clause now inserted in Chapter XIX. (section 220).

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS AS TO LANDLORDS AND TENANTS.

60. We have introduced a new section (88) providing that when a raiyat holds at a fixed rent or fixed rate of rent his landlord shall not be entitled to prevent him from making an improvement.

61. We have in section 89 (3) empowered the Collector to decide finally any question between an occupancy-raiyat and his landlord—

(a) as to the right of the raiyat to make an improvement, and

(b) as to whether a particular work is an improvement.

62. We have, in order to facilitate the decision of disputes regarding improvements, introduced a section (92) based on section 80 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, 1883, providing that a landlord or tenant, desiring to have any evidence recorded regarding an improvement which has been made, may apply to a Revenue-officer to record it, and that the record so made shall be admissible in subsequent proceedings between the parties. We have also as intimated (supra para. 37) introduced a section (91) providing for the registration of improvements made by landlords.

63. Section 129 (4) of the Bill as introduced provided that improvements made by a raiyat before the commencement of the Act should be deemed to have been made in accordance with the Act unless it was shown that the landlord forbade the raiyat to make the improvement and was ready to make it himself. For this we have substituted a sub-section [section 93 (4)] providing that improvements made by a raiyat between the 2nd day of March, 1883 (the day on which the Bill was introduced) and the commencement of the Act, shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with the Act. This prevents the section from applying retrospectively to any improvements made before the introduction of the Bill.

64. We have in section 94 somewhat enlarged the list of matters to be taken into consideration by the Court in estimating the compensation to be allowed for an improvement, the most important additions being the condition of the improvement with reference to its duration, and that "in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land" the Court shall have regard "to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent".

65. We have re-drafted the section (95) relating to surrender by a tenant, on the lines of section 33 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, 1883, and, in order to remove a misapprehension which appears to exist in some quarters, have added a sub-section (5) expressly providing that when a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

66. The difficulties which arise in cases where a raiyat to all appearance abandons his holding, but the landlord cannot be sure whether he can safely assume the holding to have been abandoned and let it to another tenant, we have attempted to meet by the section set out in the margin.

Abandonment.

96. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) When a landlord enters under this section he shall cause a notice in the prescribed form to be published in such manner as the Local Government, by rule, directs, stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and has entered on it accordingly.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy-raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured as to the Court may seem just.

67. We have in section 99, which prohibits a landlord from measuring land more than once in ten years without the consent of the tenant or the permission of the Collector, allowed exceptions in the following cases, namely :—

(a) Where the area of the holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area.

(b) Where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation.

(c) Where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

68. In section 101, relating to the standard of measurement, we have introduced a sub-section empowering the Local Government after local inquiry to make rules declaring for any local area the standard or standards of measurement in use, and have provided that every such declaration shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown. This, we think, will render section 138 of the original Bill unnecessary, and we have accordingly omitted it. Other provisions connected with measurement will be found in the chapter (X) concerning the record-of-rights.

69. In the division of this chapter relating to the appointment of a manager to act on behalf of co-owners of an estate or tenure we have added a section (109) empowering the High Court to make rules defining the powers and duties of managers.

70. We have omitted the section relating to merger. It was in our opinion open to serious objection, not only from the particular point of view of the framers of the present Bill, inasmuch as it allowed of the occupancy-right being retained in the hands of a landlord, his tenants being thus reduced to the position of under-raiyats, but also from a more general point of view, inasmuch as it conferred on individuals a large and arbitrary power to introduce, without any sufficient reason, a serious complication into the law of property, and one moreover which would be likely to serve as a cloak for fraud.

The immediate requirements of this Bill are, we think, sufficiently met by the section (28) which we have introduced into the occupancy chapter, and to which we have already referred (supra para. 15); and for the rest we are of opinion, after giving our best consideration to the views of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Field, that the general question of merger is somewhat outside the proper scope of the present enactment.

CHAPTER X

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT OF RENTS.

71. We have found it convenient to embody in a single chapter the two chapters of the original Bill relating to the above subjects, and to start with the record-of-rights, which is the simpler of the two.

72. The difficulty from the absence of a record occasionally felt, especially by a person who purchases an estate or tenure at a compulsory sale by auction, will, we think, be met by the new section (112) which admits, subject to certain conditions, of a record-of-rights being framed by Revenue-officer on the application of a proprietor or tenure-holder.

73. As regards the procedure in framing a record-of-rights, it will be observed that an important change has been made. Under Chapter XII of the original Bill the procedure was to be summary in all cases, whether there was or was not a dispute as to the entry which ought to be made in the record, and the result in all cases alike would have been merely an entry in the record, which would be primâ facie presumed to be correct, but would be open to be impugned in a Civil Court. In the amended Bill, on the contrary, a fuller opportunity is allowed for raising objections by a preliminary publication of the record, and if any entry, which it is proposed to make or which has been made, is called in question, the Revenue-officer is to inquire into the dispute according to the regular procedure of a Civil Court, and his decision is to have the force of a decree and to be appealable first to a special judge appointed to hear such appeals, and then, subject to the usual limitations of second appeals, to the High Court. Thus, in any case in which there is a dispute regarding an entry in the record, the question will be placed on the footing of a res judicata. Where, up to the time allowed after the preliminary publication of the record for preferring objections, no objection is made, the entry will be marked as undisputed, and as proposed in the original Bill will simply be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved. We think that, having regard to the large scale on which those operations will be conducted, and to the impossibility of being sure that any sort of publication would bring home to every individual concerned the precise nature of the entries being made regarding him, we could not venture to give an undisputed entry any authority higher than that just mentioned.

74. The operation termed a "settlement of rents" includes, in addition to the preparation of a record-of-rights, the settlement of all such rents of occupancy-tenants and tenure-holders holding otherwise than at fixed rents, as either the landlord or the tenant may apply to have settled.

The questions whether a rent is open to settlement, and, if so, the amount at which it should be settled, are of a complex nature depending on two very different sets of considerations. They depend in the first place on issues, relating to such matters as the existence of the tenancy, the extent of the land, the status of the tenant, the conditions under which he holds, &c., and possibly involving points of law, which could not satisfactorily be decided without the security afforded by an ultimate appeal to the highest judicial authority. They depend in the second place on considerations of an economical nature, such as the state of prices prevailing at different periods, the effect of improvements, and so forth, which it is universally admitted cannot be adequately dealt with either in the first instance or on appeal except after local inquiry and by persons possessed of special technical knowledge. The problem before us has been how best to provide for the separation of these two elements, so that each may be dealt with, and finally dealt with, by those most competent to deal with it. The solution of this problem proposed in the original Bill will be seen on referring to section 160 of that Bill. The modification above described in the record-of-rights procedure, and especially the introduction of the special judge, who will doubtless always be an officer possessing a familiarity with the local agricultural system, in addition to judicial qualifications, has opened the way to what appears to us to be a more satisfactory solution. What we propose is that when a rent, which has been settled or which it is proposed to settle, is disputed, the dispute shall be dealt with by the Revenue-officer in the same way as a dispute regarding an entry in the record-of-rights, that an appeal on the whole question shall then lie to the special judge, and that his decision shall be final unless, in a second appeal in respect of one of the record-of-rights entries with reference to which the rent has been settled, the High Court alters the decision of the special judge. In this case the High Court may settle a new rent, but in so doing is to be guided by the other rents shown in the rent-roll. In other words, there can be no second appeal to the High Court merely on the ground that the rent has been pitched too high or too low, but if a second appeal is preferred, as it may be, on the ground that the special judge, owing to some error on a point of law, has, for example, found the holding to comprise more land or less land than it actually does comprise, and the appellant succeeds, the High Court can, without altering the rates, reduce or increase the rent, as the case may be.

75. We have, in section 120, provided that, when a landlord is entitled under the foregoing sections to apply to have the rent of a holding settled, the rent of the holding, whether he applies and has it settled or it is merely ascertained, shall not be enhanced for fifteen years, except on the ground of an improvement made by the landlord or of an increase of the area of the holding.

76. Section 121, providing for the payment of expenses, has now been made applicable to the preparation of a record-of-rights as well as to the settlement of rents.

77. The only other provision of this chapter which appears to call for notice is the new section (122) which enacts that when the particulars of a tenancy have been recorded under the chapter, the well known presumption arising from twenty years' holding at a fixed rent shall cease to apply.

CHAPTER XI.

TABLES OF RATES.

78. We have been guided, in dealing with the subject of this chapter, by the views of the Government of Bengal. It appears from the enquiries that have been made that, owing to the great diversity of rates, it would in most parts of the country be impracticable to frame general tables of rates applicable to large tracts; but in special tracts the preparation of such tables may still, in the opinion of the Government of Bengal, be found a preferable alternative to the plan of a general settlement of rents by the Revenue-officer. In the latter case the Revenue-officer goes on the ground and himself decides all questions at issue. In the former case the Revenue-officer merely ascertains and records general facts which will serve as a guide to the Courts, whose business it will be to apply them to the circumstances of particular disputes brought before them. We have, therefore, retained the procedure with only a few minor alterations, but it will no longer be so important a feature as it was in the original Bill.

CHAPTER XII.

RECORD OF PROPRIETOR'S PRIVATE LANDS.

79. In dealing with the difficult question of khámár or zeraat land we have provided two alternative methods of procedure—

(a) that of survey and registration of such land by a Revenue-officer, by order of the Local Government;

(b) that of enquiry on the application of the individual landlord or tenant concerned.

The former procedure would apply to large areas where the question is important, the latter to disputes about particular plots of land. At the request of the Government of Bengal the two methods of procedure have been left equally applicable to any part of the country. We have made no distinction in the description of this land between Bengal and Bihár, but we have directed regard to be had in every case to local custom, and, while making it incumbent on the Revenue-officer to record certain lands as the proprietor's private land, have endeavoured to assist him by certain guiding rules in cases not clearly coming under these heads. The section is reproduced below.

Rules for determination of proprietor's private land.

"138. (1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land –

(a) land which is proved to have been cultivated as khámár, zeraat, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and

(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village-custom as proprietor's khámár, zeraat, sír, nij, nij-jote or kamat.

(2). In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land the officer shall have regard to local custom and to the question whether the land was before the 2nd of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land, but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3). If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

CHAPTER XIII.

DISTRAINT.

80. The only changes made in this chapter to which it seems to us necessary to direct attention are the following :—

(a) Section 167 (2) of the original Bill, which made an application for distraint liable to the same Court-fee as a suit for the arrear of rent, has been omitted.

(b) Produce already stored has been exempted from distraint.

(c) The Court is empowered (section 141 (3) and (4)) to issue in certain cases an order prohibiting the removal of the produce pending the issue or execution of an order of distraint.

(d) It has been made clear (section 147) that crops which admit of being stored are not to be sold standing.

(e) Section 186 of the original Bill, which under certain circumstances imposed a penalty on persons on whose behalf an offence under section 185 is committed, has been omitted.

(f) On the other hand, express provision has been made in the first section of Chapter XIX for punishing abetment of the offences in question, and it has been made clear (section 158) that a person, whose property is distrained under cover of this chapter, but in a case to which it does not properly apply, has his remedy by suit against those who put the Court in motion.

(g) Section 187 of the original Bill, which empowered the Local Government to suspend the operation of the chapter, has been omitted.

CHAPTER XIV.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE.

81. We have excluded suits for penalties and suits for the recovery of possession of land from the special procedure prescribed in sections 191-197 of the original Bill.

82. We have introduced at the opening of this chapter a section (159), modelled on a section in the Presidency-towns Small-Cause Court Act, empowering the High Court, with the approval of the Local Government, to make rules declaring that any portions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to suits between landlord and tenant, or shall apply subject to modifications. We trust that as experience is acquired of the working of the Courts under the new Act it may be found possible to exercise this power so as to effect further simplifications in procedure.

83. For ourselves we must confess that, after the most anxious consideration of the various schemes which have been propounded for shortening and simplifying the procedure in rent suits, we are unable to suggest anything of importance in this direction which would not involve a serious risk of failure of justice. In particular, while we are anxious to facilitate the service of summons and the proof of such service, we are unwilling to give any presumption of law against an absent defendant except on adequate proof of such service.

84. We have, however, with a view to avoiding, as far as possible, the complication and delay which arise from questions as to the landlord's title being raised in rent-suits, made an important amendment in the section (164) which requires a tenant, admitting that rent is due from him, but pleading that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, to pay the amount into Court. Our object is to force the issue of disputed title to be raised separately and independently of the rent suit, and we have therefore provided that the Court shall, on the money being paid in, cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person, and unless he, within three months, institutes a separate suit against the plaintiff and obtains an order restraining the payment of the money, it will be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

85. We have further added a section (165) providing that when a defendant in a rent suit admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff but disputes the amount, the Court shall, as a rule, require him to pay the amount admitted into Court.

86. We have provided (section 173) that when a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser he may claim, as alternative relief, that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court.

87. Section 207 of the original Bill provided that a landlord or a tenant might institute a suit for the determination of the nature and incidents of the tenancy. We have (section 174) substituted the simpler and cheaper procedure of an application, and have empowered the Court, to which the application is made, to direct that a Revenue-officer shall make a local enquiry into any matter it thinks fit.

CHAPTER XVI.

SUMMARY SALE FOR ARREARS.

88. We have, in accordance with what we understand to be the desire of the landlords, maintained the provisions of the law relating to the sale of patní tenures substantially intact, amending them only in matters of form and minor detail. The provisions so amended have now been transferred from the Schedules to the body of the Bill, and form the first division of this chapter.

89. The second division of it consists of a single section enacting that, if provision is made by law for the registration in a public register of any tenures other than patní tenures, the provisions of the chapter shall, subject to such modifications as the Local Government may by rule prescribe, apply to those tenures.

CHAPTER XVII.

CONTRACT AND CUSTOM.

90. The important question as to the extent to which freedom of contract between landlord and tenant should be restricted has been disposed of, in so far as a few particular points are concerned, in the sections of the Bill relating to those points (see e. g. paras. 29, 30 and 48 supra on the subject of contracts fixing rent). But we have thought it convenient to collect in one section at the opening of this chapter most of the restrictions which, in the opinion of the majority of us, it is necessary to place on the power to contract out of the provisions of the law.

The matters which are thus placed beyond the reach of contract will be seen to be as follows:—

(a) The acquisition of the status of settled-raiyat and of the occupancy-right (sections 24, 25 and 26).

(b) The incidents of the occupancy-right specified in section 31.

(c) The occupancy-raiyat's right to demand a reduction of rent under section 51.

(d) The right of either landlord or tenant to demand a commutation of a produce-rent under section 53.

(e) The protection afforded by the Bill to a non-occupancy-raiyat or an under-raiyat from ejectment except on specified grounds (sections 58, 59, 60 and 63).

(f) The right of a tenant to a reduction of rent on account of a diminution of the area of his holding (section 66).

(g) The right of a raiyat to make improvements and claim compensation for them (sections 88, 89, 90 and 93).

(h) The protection afforded to all tenants against ejectment except in execution of a decree (section 98).

91. With a view to encouraging permanent mukarrarí leases we have inserted in this chapter a new section (211) providing that nothing in the Act shall be deemed to prevent a landlord in a permanently-settled estate from granting a permanent mukarrarí lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant.

92. It has been admitted throughout our discussions that lands held on reclamation-lease, chur or dearah lands, and lands taken under the customs known as utbundi and hal-hasili must be treated exceptionally, and the three following sections of this chapter are intended to make such special provision regarding them as appears to us to be necessary.

93. Section 212 provides that nothing in the Act shall affect any contract for the reclamation of waste-land.

94. Section 213 provides that a raiyat holding chur or dearah land shall not acquire a right of occupancy in the land until he has held it for twelve continuous years, and that until he acquires the right of occupancy he shall be liable to pay whatever rent is agreed on between him and his landlord, but that the Court may upon the application of either party declare that the land has ceased to be chur or dearah land, and thereupon the provisions of the Act shall apply to it.

95. Lastly, section 214 enacts that nothing in the Act shall affect the conditions, customary or otherwise, under which land is held on either of the systems known as the utbundi and hal-hasili systems.

96. As already stated (paragraph 4) we have omitted Chapter VII of the original Bill, which was intended to provide for the case of a raiyat holding his homestead otherwise than as a part of his holding as a raiyat. As, however, the absence of any mention of such tenancies in the Bill might give rise to misapprehension, we have thought it well to insert a section (216) expressly providing that their incidents will be regulated by local custom.

CHAPTER XVIII.

LIMITATION.

97. We consider that a moderately short period of limitation should be fixed for the recovery by an occupancy-raiyat of land comprised in his holding, and, following the precedent presented by section 81 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, 1881, we have fixed the period at two years from the date on which he is ejected, adding a proviso to guard against the revival of causes of action already barred.

CHAPTER XIX.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

98. We have somewhat amplified the provisions of section 221, which empowers a landlord to act through his agent, and in order to remove a misapprehension which, notwithstanding the definition of "landlord" contained in the Bill, we have found to exist in some quarters, we have added a section (222) to make it clear that, when two or more persons are joint landlords, they must act together or through an agent appointed by them jointly.

99. In the course of our discussions various points have been raised with which we felt that we were unable to deal adequately without further information than that contained in the papers before us. On some of these points we should be glad to receive the advice both of the Local Government and of the High Court.

The principal questions are as follows:—

(1) Whether, with reference especially to landlord's improvements, it is desirable to empower Revenue-officers to arrange for the cutting of irrigation channels, the distribution of water and the payment of compensation, and, if so, what form such provisions should take.

(2) What modifications it may be desirable to make, whether by rules or otherwise, in the Code of Civil Procedure, with a view to expedite the trial of rent suits; and in particular whether it is desirable that landlords should be empowered to institute, by means of a single plaint, suits for arrears against a number of raiyats holding independently of each other.

(3) Whether any provision can safely be enacted restricting the right to claim a re-trial when a decree has been given ex parte. We are aware that a judge is in no way bound to admit a re-trial unless he is satisfied that the summons failed to reach the defendant or that he was prevented by some sufficient cause from appearing; but the representations made to us are to the effect that the due service of the summons is systematically denied, and that the Courts too readily accept the plea, thus encouraging tactics the only object of which is to interpose delay and to involve the landlord in unnecessary expense in recovering his dues.

The proposal before us was that ex parte suits should not be re-tried except upon the defendant depositing the amount decreed, but we were unwilling to adopt this proposal on the information before us and desired that it should be referred for the consideration of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court.

(4) A somewhat similar suggestion which has been made to us is that a defendant in a suit for arrears should not be allowed to appeal from a decree passed against him except on depositing the amount of the decree. On this suggestion, too, we should be glad to have the opinion of the Judges.

(5) A further point, and on this we desire to have the opinion of the Local Government, is whether the summary sale procedure can be applied to those independent taluqs the revenue of which was settled direct with Government, though the holders pay it through the zamíndár. These tenures apparently find no place in the Government registers, and it was proposed that the modified patní procedure should be applied to them.

(6) A similar proposal was made to render this procedure applicable to the recovery of arrears of Road Cess and Public Works Cess from rent-free tenure-holders. We decided to refer this point also to the Local Government.

(7) The necessity for further information respecting the conditions on which bastu or homestead land is held has already been noticed (supra para. 4).

(8) We are also anxious to be informed if the saving of customary conditions which we have specifically applied to uthindi and hal-hasili tenures should be extended to similar tenures under other names, and also if any special saving is necessary in regard to the special tenures under which land is held in the Chittagong division.

(9) Again, we desire to be informed whether it would be possible to specify, for the purpose of exemption from the pre-emption sections, any such transferable occupancy-rights as those in guzashta and gora holdings.

(10) Finally, we desire that the Government of Bengal may be consulted as to the possibility of improving the accuracy of the price-lists which have been published during the past twelve years, and the probable effect of basing a system of enhancement of rent mainly on these prices.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter I.—Preliminary. Secs. 1—3.)

No. II.

Explanation of abbreviations in margin.

D. means Mr. Field's Digest.

C. B., the Bill prepared by the Commission.

B. B. the Bill submitted by the Bengal Government with letter No. 849, dated 27th July, 1881.

SECTION means the corresponding section of the Bill as introduced in March, 1883.

A Bill to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the Territories under the Administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Section 1 (1). 1. (1) This Act may be called the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1884. — Short title.

Section 1 (2). (2) It shall come into force on such date (hereinafter called the commencement of this Act) as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local Gazette, appoint in this behalf. — Commencement.

[C. B., s. 1. B. B., s. 1.] Section 1 (3). (3) It shall extend by its own operation to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except the Town of Calcutta, the Division of Orissa, and the Scheduled Districts specified in the third part of the First Schedule of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874; and the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local Gazette, extend the whole or any part of this Act to the Division of Orissa. — Local extent.

[C. B., s. 2. B. B., s. 2. Section 2. 2. (1) The enactments specified in Schedule I hereto annexed are repealed in the territories to which this Act extends by its own operation. — Repeal

(2) When this Act is extended to the Division of Orissa, such of those enactments as are in force in that Division, or, where a part only of this Act is so extended, so much of them as is inconsistent with that part, shall be repealed in that Division.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any enactment hereby repealed shall be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

(4) The repeal of any enactment by this Act shall not revive any right, privilege, matter or thing not in force or existing at the commencement of this Act.

3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context:— Definitions.

(1) "Estate" means land included under one entry in any of the general registers of revenue-paying lands and revenue-free lands, prepared and maintained under the law for the time being in force by the Collector of a district: [D. § 1. C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3.] Section 3 (1).

Provided that the registration of a tenure under section 3(2) (c) of the Land Registration Act, 1876, shall not constitute it an estate within the meaning of this definition. VI of 1876. (B.C)

(2) "Proprietor" means a person or a number of persons owning an estate. [D. § 1. C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3.] Section 3 (2).

(3) "Tenant" means a person who holds land under another person, and is, or but for a special contract would be, liable to pay rent for that land to that person. Section 3 (3).

(4) "Landlord" means a person or a number of persons immediately under whom a tenant holds. Section 3 (5)

(5) "Rent" means whatever is payable or deliverable in money or kind by a tenant to his landlord on account of the use or occupation of the land held by the tenant. [D. § 1. C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3. See s. 227.] Section 3 (10).

(6) "Pay," "payable" and "payment," used with reference to rent, include "deliver," "deliverable" and "delivery." Section 3 (11).

(7) "Holding" means a parcel or parcels of land held by a tenant of a landlord under one lease or one set of conditions. Section 3 (13).

(8) "Agricultural year" means, where the Bengalí year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Bysák, where the Faslí or Amlí year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Asin, and, where any other year prevails for agricultural purposes, that year. Section 3 (14).

(9) "Permanent Settlement" means the Permanent Settlement of Bengal, Bihár and Orissa, made in the year 1793. [D. § 20 & 27 C. B., ss. 6 & 16. B. B., ss. 6 & 15.] Section 3 (15)

(10) "Transfer" includes sale, whether voluntary or in execution of a decree, and mortgage and gift. Section 3 (16)

(11) "Succession" includes both intestate and testamentary succession. Section 3 (17)

(12) "Signed" includes "marked" when the person making the mark is unable to write his name; it also includes "stamped" with the name of the person referred to. [C. B., s. 1. B. B., s. 3.] Section 3 (19).

(13) "Prescribed" means prescribed by the Local Government by notification in the official Gazette. Section 3 (20).

(14) "Collector" means the Collector of a District or any other officer appointed by the Local Section 3 (21).

(Chapter II.—Classes of Tenants. Secs. 4 & 5)

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders. Secs. 6 & 7.)

Government to discharge the functions of a Collector under this Act.

Section 3 (22) (15) "Revenue-officer" in any provision of this Act means such officer as the Local Government may appoint to discharge the functions of a Revenue-officer under that provision.

[D., § 26. C. B., ss. 14 & 15. B. B., ss. 13 & 14] Section 36. (16) "Patní tenure" means a tenure of the kind described in Schedule II annexed to this Act, and includes the darpatní and other similar tenures referred to in that schedule.

CHAPTER II.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

Classes of tenants. 4. There shall be, for the purposes of this Act, the following classes of tenants, namely:—

(1) Tenure-holders, including under-tenure-holders,

(2) Raiyats, and

Section 3 (6). (3) Under-raiyats, that is to say, tenants holding whether immediately or mediately under raiyats;

and the following classes of raiyats, namely:—

(a) raiyats holding at fixed rates, which expression includes raiyats holding either at a fixed rent or at a fixed rate of rent,

(b) occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats having a right of occupancy in the land held by them, and

(c) non-occupancy raiyats, that is to say, raiyats not having such a right of occupancy.

Section 3 (4). 5. (1) "Tenure-holder" means primarily a person who has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder the right to collect rents, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right and the persons who are to be deemed tenure-holders under section 37.

Meaning of tenure-holder and raiyat.

[D., § 1, C. B., s. 3. B. B., s. 3 ("raiyat" and "land.")] Section 3 (5). (2) "Raiyat" means primarily a person who has acquired land for the purpose of cultivating it by himself, or by members of his family, or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners, and, subject to section 37, includes also the successors in interest of persons who have so acquired land.

(3) A person shall not be deemed to be a raiyat unless he holds land either immediately under a proprietor or immediately under a tenure-holder.

(4) In determining whether a tenant is a tenure-holder or a raiyat the Court shall have regard to—

(a) local custom;

(b) the provisions of section 37, with respect to raiyats who sub-let more than half their holdings; and

(c) the nature of the right of tenancy as originally acquired, that is to say, whether it was a right to collect rents or a right to cultivate land.

(5) Where the area of a holding exceeds 100 standard bíghás, and the whole or part of it is sub-let, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shewn.

CHAPTER III.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

Enhancement of rent.

Enhancement of rent. [D., § 19. C. B., s. 7. B. B., s. 7.] Section 18. 6. (1) Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof—

Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

(a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by local custom, or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or

(b) that the tenure-holder, by receiving reductions of his rent, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded, and that the lands are capable of affording it.

(2) A reduction of rent granted to a tenure-holder on account of diluvion or for land taken under the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force for the acquisition of land for public purposes or companies shall not be deemed a reduction within the meaning of this section.

[D., § 23 C. B., ss. 9 & 12. B. B., ss. 9 & 10.] Section 21. 7. (1) Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, it may, subject to any contract between the parties, be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity.

Limits of enhancement of rent of tenures.

(2) Where no such customary rate exists, it may, subject as aforesaid, be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

(3) In determining what is fair and equitable the Court shall not leave to the tenure-holder as profit less than ten per centum of the balance which remains after deducting from the gross rents payable to him the expenses of collecting the rents, and shall have regard to—

(a) the circumstances under which the tenure was created, for instance, whether the land comprised in the tenure, or a great portion of it, was first brought under cultivation by the agency or at the expense of the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest;

(b) the improvements, if any, made by the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest; and

(c) the cost and risks of collection.

(4) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

[C B., s. 10(a). B B., s. 11(a).] Section 22.

Enhanced rent not to be more than double the previous rent.

8. Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, the enhanced rent fixed under the last foregoing section shall not be more than double the rent previously payable.

[C B., s. 10(a). B B., s. 11(b).] Section 23.

Power to order gradual enhancement.

9. The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

[C B., s. 10(b). B B., s. 11(c).] Section 24.

Rent once enhanced may not be altered for ten years.

10. When the rent of a tenure-holder has been enhanced by the Court or by contract, it shall not be again enhanced by the Court during the ten years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced.

Other incidents of tenures.

Other incidents of tenures.

Transfer and transmission of permanent tenures.

11. Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act in respect of registration, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

[C B., s. 13. B B., ss. 13 & 17] Section 25.

Section 26.

Permanent tenure-holder not liable to ejectment.

12. A holder of a permanent tenure shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Patní tenures.

Patni tenures.

[D., § 26. C. B., s. 14. B. B., s 13] Section 37 (2).

Power of patnídar to sub-let.

13. The holder of a patní tenure may, subject to the provisions of this Act, let the land comprised in his tenure or any part thereof.

[D., § 27. C. B., s. 53 (a) B B, s. 45 (a).] Section 38.

Right of landlord of patní tenure to demand security from transferees.

14. (1) When a patní tenure is transferred, whether voluntarily, or by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale under this Act, the landlord may require the transferee to furnish substantial security to the amount of one half-year's rent of the tenure, for the payment of the rent and the fulfilment of the conditions of the tenure.

D., § 29. C. B., s. 53 (b). B. B., s 45 (b) Section 40 (1).

(2) In the case of a transfer by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale, if security is demanded by the landlord from the purchaser under this section and is not furnished within one month from the date on which it is so demanded, the landlord may attach and hold possession of the tenure to the exclusion of the transferee until the security is furnished.

Section 40 (2).

(3) While an attachment under this section continues, the landlord may collect the rents from the under-tenure-holders or raiyats, and, after deducting therefrom the cost of the attachment, the expenses of collection and the rent due to himself, he shall hold the balance in trust for the purchaser.

Section 40 (3).

(4) If the rents so collected are not sufficient to discharge the cost of the attachment, the expenses of collection, and the rent due to the landlord, the purchaser shall be liable for the deficiency, and the landlord may proceed against him for the recovery of the same.

[D., § 28. C B., s 53(b.) B B., s. 45 (c)] Section 41 (1).

(5) If the security tendered under this section by any transferee is rejected by the landlord, the transferee may, within three months from the date of the rejection, apply to the Civil Court for an order directing the landlord to receive the security, and the Court, if satisfied of the sufficiency of the security tendered, may make such order, or, if not so satisfied, may make an order rejecting the application.

Section 41 (2).

(6) No appeal shall lie from any order under this section.

Registration.

Registration of voluntary transfers and successions.

15. (1) When a transfer of a permanent tenure (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under this Act) or a succession to such a tenure, takes place, the landlord shall, subject, in the case of a patní tenure, to the provisions of the last foregoing section, register the same on the joint application of the transferor and transferee, or on the application of the person succeeding, as the case may be, and on payment by the applicant of the fee next hereinafter prescribed:

Registration.

[D., § 25. C. B., s. 46. B. B., s. 37.] Section 27 (1).

Provided that a landlord may, if he thinks fit, refuse to register a transfer of a tenure if any arrear of rent is due thereon.

[D., s. 27. C. B., ss. 47, 49. B. B., ss 39, 41.] Section 27 (2).

(2) The fee payable on an application under this section shall be as follows, namely:—

(a) when rent is payable in respect of the tenure a fee of two per centum on the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than one rupee or more than one hundred rupees; and

(b) when rent is not payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two rupees.

Section 27 (3).

(3) If a landlord refuses to comply with any application under this section, he shall deliver to the applicant a statement in writing of the reasons for his refusal, and if he fails to do so the applicant may institute a suit to recover from him such sum by way of penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees as the Court thinks fit.

[C.B., ss. 47, 48 (c). B B., ss. 39, 40 (c).] Section 29 (1).

Registration of transfer by sale in execution of decree other than decree for rent.

16. (1) When a permanent tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall, before confirming the sale under section 312 of the Code of Civil Procedure, require the purchaser to pay

into Court the registration fee prescribed by the last foregoing section and such further fee for service of notice of the sale on the landlord as may be prescribed by the rules under section 22.

ction 29 (2). (2) When the sale has been confirmed, the Court shall forthwith cause to be served on the landlord a notice of the sale, requiring him to register the same, and informing him that the registration-fee has been received and will be paid to him on demand when the registration has been effected; and the landlord shall, in the absence of sufficient cause, forthwith comply with the requisition.

ection 30. 17. When a permanent tenure is transferred by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, or by summary sale under this Act, the landlord shall register the transfer without any application or requisition being made to him in this behalf, and without the payment of any fee.

Registration of transfer by sale in execution of decree for rent or by summary sale.

) s. 10. B., ss. 46. (a) 49 B., ss. 37, (a) and 41.] ction 31. 18. (1) When a transfer of a permanent tenure (not being a transfer by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent or by summary sale under this Act) has taken place, the landlord may, until the transfer has been registered under this chapter, hold the transferor and transferee jointly and severally liable for arrears of rent accruing after the transfer.

Effect of omission to register.

(2) A person becoming entitled to a permanent tenure by transfer or succession shall not be entitled to recover by suit, distraint or other proceeding any rent payable to him as the holder of the tenure, until the transfer or succession has been registered under this chapter, or a notice thereof has been served on the landlord in manner directed by rules under section 22.

B., s. 35. B., s. 44.] ction 32 (1). 19. (1) If a landlord refuses or neglects for a period of one month to register a transfer or succession which he is bound to register under the foregoing sections, the transferor or transferee, or, as the case may be, the person succeeding, may apply to the Civil Court to compel such registration.

Application to Court to compel landlord to register.

tion (32) 2. (2) The Court thereupon may issue a notice to the landlord, and, when the application is made by one party to a transfer, also to the other party or parties to the transfer, requiring him or them, as the case may be, to show cause, at a time and place therein specified, why the transfer or succession should not be registered.

ction 32 (3) (3) If sufficient cause as aforesaid is not so shown, the Court may make an order directing the landlord to register the transfer or succession, and the making of such an order shall have the same effect as if the transfer or succession had been registered.

(4) If sufficient cause as aforesaid is shown, the Court may refuse to make an order, or may make such order as in its opinion will meet the circumstances of the case.

[C B., ss 50 and 51. B B., ss 42 and 43.] Section 33 (1). 20. (1) When a transfer (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under this Act) or a succession, registrable under the foregoing sections, has taken place, and no application is made for its registration within the six months following the date on which it has taken place, the landlord may apply to the Civil Court to authorize the registration of the transfer or succession and to compel the parties to the transfer, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to pay the fee mentioned in section 15.

Application by landlord to compel registration.

Section 33 (2). (2) The Court may thereupon issue a notice, calling on the parties to the transfer, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to show cause, at a time and place specified in the notice, why the registration should not be made and why they or he should not pay the fee.

Section 33 (3). (3) If sufficient cause as aforesaid is not so shown, the Court may make an order authorising the landlord to register the transfer or succession, and directing the transferee, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to pay the fee. The making of such an order shall have the same effect as if the transfer or succession had been registered, and the order so made shall, so far as it directs the recovery of the fee, have the force of a decree in a suit.

(4) If sufficient cause as aforesaid is so shown, the Court may refuse to make an order, or may make such order as in its opinion will meet the circumstances of the case.

[C. B., s. 54. B. B., s. 46.] Section 34. 21. When a transfer of, or a succession to, a tenure has been registered under the foregoing sections, every person to or from whom the tenure or any share thereof is transferred, or (as the case may be) every person succeeding to the tenure, shall be entitled to receive from the landlord as many copies as he may from time to time demand of the entry in the register relating to the tenure, certified by the landlord as a true copy: provided that for every copy so received he shall pay to the landlord such fee, not less than one anna or more than one rupee, as the Local Government may from time to time fix in this behalf.

Landlord to give copies of entries in the register.

[C. B. s. 15 B B., s. 16] Section 35 (1) 22. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by rules consistent with this Act and published in the official Gazette, prescribe forms for the registers to be maintained under the foregoing sections, and generally the procedure to be followed in regard to registration.

Power to make rules regarding registration.

Section 35 (2). (2) In making any rule under sub-section (1) the Local Government may provide that any breach thereof shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

CHAPTER IV.

RAIYATS HOLDING AT FIXED RATES.

Incidents of holding at fixed rates.

23. A raiyat holding at a fixed rent or rate of rent—

(a) shall be subject to the same provisions with respect to the transfer of, and succession to, his holding as a tenure-holder, and

C. B., s 13. [B. B., ss. 12 & 17.] Section 26.

(b) shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

General.

General. [B. B., s. 19 (1) & Expl. IV (e), proviso.] Section 44.

Continuance of existing occupancy-rights.

24. Every raiyat who immediately before the commencement of this Act has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land, shall, when this Act comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

Section 47.

Settled raiyats to have occupancy-rights.

25. (1) Every settled raiyat of a village or estate shall have a right of occupancy in all land held by him as a raiyat in that village or estate.

Section 47.

(2) Every person who, being a settled raiyat of a village or estate, held land as a raiyat in that village or estate at any time between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in that land under the law then in force.

Section 45 (1).

Definition of settled raiyat.

26. (1) Every person who for a period of twelve years whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act has continuously held as a raiyat land situate in any village or estate, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

(2) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed for the purposes of this section until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years held the land or some part of it as a raiyat.

Section 45 (1).

(3) A person shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have held land continuously in a village or estate, notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times.

Section 45 (2).

(4) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held as a raiyat any land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

Section 45 (3).

(5) Land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyatí holding shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been held as a raiyat by each such co-sharer.

Section 46.

(6) A person shall continue to be a settled raiyat of a village or estate as long as he holds any land as a raiyat in that village or estate and for one year thereafter.

(7) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 96, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession more than a year.

Definition of village and estate.

[B. B., s. 19, Expl. II.] Section 43.

27. For the purpose of the foregoing sections of this chapter—

(a) Village means an area included in a village map of the revenue-survey within the same exterior boundary, including such outlying portions (if any) as appear from the map to belong to the village, or, where no such maps have been prepared, such area as any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf may determine after local inquiry held on such notice as the Local Government considers sufficient for giving information to all persons interested.

(b) Where two or more estates have been created by one or more partitions taking place, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, but since the first day of January, 1853, the area comprised in the parent estate of which they would have formed part if no such partition had taken place shall be deemed to be a single estate.

Section 56.

Effect of acquisition of occupancy-right by landlord.

28. If the landlord of a raiyat having a right of occupancy acquires, by purchase or otherwise, the interest of the raiyat, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist, but nothing in this section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

Special provisions as to joint owners and farmers.

29. (1) A person holding land as a raiyat shall not be prevented from acquiring an occupancy-right in the land by reason only that he is jointly interested in the land as proprietor or tenure-holder.

[D., § 40, Expls. I & V C. B., s. 19, Expl. IV B. B., s. 19, Expl. IV (d) Section 47, proviso

(2) A person holding as an ijárádár or farmer of rents shall not by such holding acquire a right of occupancy in the land, but if a person acquires a right of occupancy in land he shall not lose it by subsequently holding the land in farm.

31. Where a raiyat has a right of occupancy in respect of any land, the following provisions shall apply, namely:—

Incidents of occupancy-right.

[B. B., s. 69.] Section 50, cl. (a).

(a) He may use the land in any manner which does not render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy; but shall not be entitled to cut down trees in contravention of any local custom.

[C. B. s. 77, B. B., s 69.] Section 50, cl. (b).

(b) He may make improvements on the land as by this Act provided.

[D., § 42. B. B., s. 21. (d)] Section 50, cl. (c).

(c) He shall pay rent at fair and equitable rates.

[C. B., s. 20 (e). B. B., ss. 21 (c), 31, 69 (a).] Section 50, cl. (d).

(d) He shall not be ejected by his landlord from the land, except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed on the ground—

(i) that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or

(ii) that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

(e) He may surrender his holding in accordance with this Act.

[C B., s. 20 (a), (b) and (d). B. B., s 21 (a) and (b).] Section 50, cl. (f)

(f) His right of occupancy in the land shall, subject to the rights reserved to the landlord by this Act, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed by will in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

[D. § 40, note 7. B. B., s. 71.] Section 50, cl. (g)

(g) He may, subject to the provisions of this Act, sub-let his land or any part thereof.

[D., § 41, note 9. C. B., s. 20 (c). B. B., s. 21. (c).] Section 50, cl. (g.)

(h) His right of occupancy in the land shall, if he dies intestate in respect of it, descend in the same manner as any other immoveable property: provided that in any case in which, under the law of inheritance to which he is subject, his other property goes to the Crown, his right of occupancy shall be extinguished.

Restrictions on transfer.

Restrictions on transfer

32. (1) The right of a raiyat to sell his occupancy-right shall be subject to a right of pre-emption on the part of his landlord.

Landlord's right of pre-emption on voluntary sale of occupancy-right.

Section 51 (1).

(2) For the purpose of enabling the landlord to exercise his right of pre-emption, the raiyat shall, if he intends to sell his occupancy-right to any person other than the landlord, file in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, for service on the landlord, a written notice of his intention, stating the person to whom he intends to sell the right, the terms on which he intends to sell, and the incumbrances, if any, to which the right is subject, and shall defer proceeding with the sale until the expiration of six weeks from the date on which he files the notice.

Section 51 (2).

(3) The Court or officer in whose office the notice is filed shall forthwith cause it to be served on the landlord in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule direct.

Section 51, (3).

(4) The landlord may, within the period of six weeks from the date of the notice being filed, claim to purchase the occupancy-right from the raiyat at such price as may be agreed on between them, or, if they cannot agree on a price, at such price as may be fixed by the Civil Court on an application made to it in this behalf by the landlord within the said period of six weeks; and if the landlord so claims and, within one month from the date on which a price is agreed on or fixed by the court, tenders that price to the raiyat, the raiyat shall either abstain from selling the land, or sell it to the landlord at that price.

(5) If a raiyat sells his occupancy-right to any person other than the landlord without having filed the notice required by this section, or within the period of six weeks from the date of the notice being filed, the sale shall be void as against the landlord.

Section 51, (4).

(6) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring a Civil Court to associate with itself for the purpose of fixing the price of an occupancy-right under this section such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

33. Where an occupancy-right is sold in execution of a decree, and two or more persons, one of whom is the landlord, respectively advance the same sum at any bidding, the bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the landlord.

Landlord's right of pre-emption on sale in execution.

[Act XIV of 1882, s. 310] Section 52.

34. (1) Where an occupancy-right has been mortgaged by the raiyat and an order absolute for foreclosure is applied for in respect of it under section 87 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the Court shall, if it proposes to make the order cause a notice of the application to be served on the landlord, and shall defer making the order for a period of one month from the service of the notice.

Landlord's right to take the place of mortgagee on foreclosure.

Section 53, (1).

IV of 1882.

(2) If the landlord within the said period of one month pays into Court the amount requisite to redeem the mortgage, the Court shall pay that amount to the plaintiff in the suit, declare the landlord entitled to stand in the place of the plaintiff, and pass an order absolute for foreclosure in favour of the landlord.

Section 53, (2).

Section 53, (3).

35. (1) A gift of an occupancy-right in land shall not be valid against the landlord unless it is made by a registered instrument.

Restrictions on gifts of occupancy-right

Section 54, (1).

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 36—47.)

(2) The registering officer shall not register any such instrument except on payment of the prescribed fee for service on the landlord of notice of the registration.

Section 54 (2). (3) When any such gift has been registered, the registering officer shall forthwith serve notice of the registration on the landlord.

(4) In the case of gifts made by Muhammadans, nothing in this section shall apply to a gift to a person within the prohibited degrees.

Meaning of landlord for purposes of foregoing sections.

36. For the purpose of the last four foregoing sections the term landlord shall mean exclusively either—

(a) a proprietor under whom immediately the land is held by the raiyat;

(b) a permanent tenure-holder under whom immediately the land is held by the raiyat; or

(c) any other tenure-holder under whom immediately the land is held by the raiyat, provided that such tenure-holder holds immediately under the proprietor or a permanent tenure-holder and is authorized in writing by the proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, as the case may be, to exercise the rights of a landlord for the purposes of the said sections.

Restrictions on sub-letting.

Restrictions on sub-letting.

Conversion of sub-letting occupancy-raiyats into tenure-holders

37. If the portion of his holding sub-let by an occupancy-raiyat exceeds more than half his holding, he shall, on being registered in a public register as a tenure-holder under any Act which may be passed for the registration of tenure-holders, be deemed to have become a tenure-holder within the meaning of this Act.

Provided as follows:—

(a) Nothing in this section shall apply to any person who is disabled from cultivation by age, sex, disease, accident or temporary absence from home on military or domestic service or a pilgrimage and who sub-lets his holding or any part thereof for a term not exceeding the duration of his disability

(b) If a person is converted into a tenure-holder by virtue of this section his rent shall be liable to enhancement on the same terms and subject to the same conditions as if he were an occupancy-raiyat.

Explanation. A person who has been converted into a tenure-holder by virtue of this section does not by reason of the portion of his holding sub-let ceasing to be more than one-half the holding become again converted into a raiyat.

Restrictions on term of sub-lease.

38. If an occupancy-raiyat sub-lets his holding or any part thereof, the sub-lease shall not be valid for a term exceeding seven years.

Provided as follows:—

(a) Where a raiyat is disabled from cultivation by age, sex, disease, accident or temporary absence from his home on military or domestic service, or a pilgrimage, nothing in this section shall prevent him or be deemed to have prevented him from sub-letting his holding or any part thereof for a term not exceeding the duration of his disability;

(b) In the case of a sub-lease granted before the commencement of this Act the term of seven years shall for the purposes of this section be computed from the commencement of this Act.

Enhancement of rent.

Enhancement of rent.

Presumption as to fair and equitable rent.

39. The rent for the time being payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable until the contrary is proved. [D., § 42, B. B., s. 21 (d).] Section 58.

Restriction on enhancement of money rents.

40. Where an occupancy-raiyat pays his rent in money, his rent shall not be enhanced, except as provided by this Act. [B. B., s. 21 (d).] Section 60.

Enhancement of rent by registered contract.

41. (1) The money rent of an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by registered contract, subject to the following conditions:— Section 59 (1)

(a) The rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than four annas in the rupee the rent previously payable by the raiyat. Section 59 (2).

(b) The contract must fix the rent for a term of at least seven years.

(c) If the enhanced rent exceeds, by more than two annas in the rupee, the previous rent, the contract must fix the rent for a term of at least fifteen years.

(2) The registering officer shall, before registering a contract under this section, ascertain that the contract is in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and that the raiyat is competent and willing to enter into it, and understands its nature. Section 59 (2).

Enhancement on re-letting.

42. (1) Where land which has been previously held by a tenant at a money-rent is let to a settled raiyat of the village or estate in which it is situate, the raiyat shall not be bound to pay for it any rent higher than that which was paid for it by the previous tenant, except in pursuance of a registered contract for enhancement of the rent. Section 61.

(2) The provisions of the last foregoing section shall apply to every such contract.

Enhancement of rent by suit.

43. The landlord of a holding held at a money-rent by an occupancy-raiyat may, subject to the provisions of this Act, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds, namely:— [D., § 43 (1) and (2). C. B., s. 22 (1), (2) and (4). B. B., s. 23 (1), (3) and (4).]

(a) That the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity. Section 74.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 44—50.)

(b) That there has been a rise in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(c) That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord.

(d) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of prevailing rate.

44. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground that the rent paid is below the prevailing rate—

(a) The enhanced rent shall not exceed the previous rent by more than eight annas in the rupee.

(b) If in the opinion of the Court the prevailing rate of rent cannot be satisfactorily ascertained without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize by rule in that behalf.

II of s. 20.

(c) In determining under this section the rate of rent payable by a raiyat his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that by local custom caste is taken into account in determining the rate; and whenever it is found that by local custom any description of raiyats hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with that custom.

(d) In ascertaining the prevailing rate of rent the amount of any enhancement authorized on account of a landlord's improvement shall not be taken into consideration.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of rise in prices.

45. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of rise in prices—

(a) The Court shall have regard to the lists of prices periodically published under the authority of the Local Government, and shall compare the average prices during the quinquennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other quinquennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison.

(b) The Court shall not enhance the rent so that the enhanced rent exceeds the previous rent by more than four annas in the rupee.

(c) Subject as aforesaid, and subject also to section 48, the enhanced rent shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the average prices during the last quinquennial period bear to the average prices during the previous quinquennial period taken for purposes of comparison.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of landlord's improvement.

46. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a landlord's improvement—

(a) The Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with this Act.

(b) In determining the amount of enhancement the Court shall have regard to—

(i) the increase in the productive power of the land caused or likely to be caused by the improvement;

(ii) the cost of the improvement;

(iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and

(iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent.

(c) The Court may make its decree conditional, and subject to review and reconsideration in the event of the improvement not producing the estimated effect within a specified time.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of increase of productive powers due to fluvial action.

47. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in productive powers due to fluvial action—

(a) The Court shall not take into account any increase which is merely temporary or casual.

(b) The enhanced rent shall not exceed the previous rent by more than four annas in the rupee.

(c) The Court may enhance the rent to such an amount as it may deem fair and equitable, but not so as to give the landlord more than one-half of the value of the net increase in the produce of the land.

Enhancement to be fair and equitable.

48. The Court shall not in any case decree any enhancement which appears under the circumstances of the case to be unfair or inequitable.

Power to order progressive enhancement.

49. If the Court passing a decree for enhancement considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent will be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached.

[C.B., s. 23 (d). B. B. s. 24 (d).] Section 77.

Limitation of right to bring successive enhancement-suits.

50. (1) A suit instituted for the enhancement of the rent of a holding on the ground that the rent paid is below the prevailing rate, or on the ground of an increase in prices, shall not be entertained if within the fifteen years next preceding its institution the rent of the holding has been enhanced by a contract made after the second day of March, 1883, or if within the said period of fifteen years the rent has been commuted under section 53 or a decree has been passed under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act enhancing the rent on either of the grounds aforesaid or any ground corresponding thereto or dismissing the suit on the merits.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of section 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Reduction of rent.

Reduction o rent. [D., § 47. C. B., s 25 (2) and (3). B. B., s. 25 (2) & (3).] Section 79.

51. An occupancy-raiyat holding at a money-rent may institute a suit for the reduction of his rent on the following grounds, and, except as hereinafter provided in the case of a diminution of the area of the holding, not otherwise, namely—

Reduction of rent.

(a) on the ground that the soil of the holding has without the fault of the raiyat become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other like calamity, or

(b) on the ground that there has been a fall in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

Price-lists.

Price-lists. [C. B., 122. B.B., s. 145]. Section 83 (1).

52. (1) The Collector of every district shall prepare, at such time or times of the year as the local Government fixes in this behalf, lists of the market-prices at harvest-time of staple food crops grown in such local areas as the local Government may from time to time direct, and shall submit them to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

Price-lists of staple crops.

(2) The Collector may, if so directed by the Local Government, prepare for any local area like price-lists relating to such past times as the Local Government thinks fit, and shall submit the lists so prepared to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

Section 83 (2).

(3) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette.

Section 83 (3).

(4) Any such price-list so published shall, in any proceedings under this chapter, be conclusive evidence of the prices prevailing in the local area at the time to which it relates.

(5) The Collector shall, fifteen days before submitting a price-list to the Board of Revenue under this section, publish it within the local area to which it relates in the manner in which notices are usually published, and if any landlord or tenant of land within the local area within the said period of fifteen days presents to him in writing any objection to the list he shall submit the same to the Board of Revenue with the list.

Commutation.

Commutation [C. B., s. 86. B. B. ss. 90 and 92.] Section 82 (1).

53. (1) Where an occupancy-raiyat pays rent for a holding in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or at rates varying with the crop, or partly in one of those ways and partly in another, either the raiyat or his landlord may apply to have the rent commuted to a money-rent.

Commutation of rent payable in kind.

(2) The application may be made to the Collector, or sub-divisional officer, or to an officer making a settlement of rents under Chapter X, or to any other officer specially authorized in this behalf by the Local Government.

(3) On the receipt of the application the officer may determine the sum to be paid as money-rent, and shall order that the raiyat shall, in lieu of paying his rent in kind, or otherwise as aforesaid, pay the sum so determined.

(4) In making the determination the officer shall have regard to— Section 82

(a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and

(b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years.

(6) If the application is opposed, the officer may, for reasons recorded in writing, refuse to grant it.

Power to make rules.

54. The Local Government may, from time to time, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules—

Power to make rules.

Power to make rules [C. B. ss. 122 and 2 B. B. ss. 145 and 2 (c).] Section 84

(a) for the guidance of officers engaged in the preparation of price-lists under section 52;

(b) determining what food crops shall be deemed to be staple crops for the purposes of this chapter in any local area, and

(c) for the guidance of officers registering contracts under section 41 and section 42.

CHAPTER VI.

NON-OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

55. This chapter shall apply to raiyats not having a right of occupancy, who are in this Act referred to as non-occupancy-raiyats.

Application of chapter.

Section 38

56. When a non-occupancy-raiyat is admitted to the occupation of land, he shall become liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between himself and his landlord at the time of his admission.

Initial rent of non-occupancy-raiyat.

Section 39

57. The rent of a non-occupancy-raiyat shall not be enhanced except by registered agreement or by agreement under section 60.

Conditions of enhancement of rent.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VI.—Non-occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 58—60.)

(Chapter VII.—Under-raiyats. Secs. 62—63.)

[C. B., s. 79 (5).] B. B., ss. 26, 72 (5).] Section 90.

58. A non-occupancy raiyat shall be liable to ejectment on one or more of the following grounds, and not otherwise :—

Grounds on which non-occupancy-raiyat may be ejected.

(a) On the ground that he has failed to pay an arrear of rent.

(b) On the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Section 91

59. A suit for ejectment on the ground of the expiration of the term of a lease shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of expiration of lease.

60. (1) A suit for ejectment on the ground of refusal to agree to an enhancement of rent shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat, unless the landlord has tendered to the raiyat an agreement to pay the enhanced rent, and the raiyat has within three months before the institution of the suit refused to execute the agreement.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of refusal to agree to enhancement.

(2) A landlord desiring to tender an agreement to a raiyat under this section may file it in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf for service on the raiyat. The Court or officer shall forthwith cause it to be served on the raiyat in the prescribed manner, and when it has been so served it shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to have been tendered.

Sections 92 (1) and 93 (1).

(3) If a raiyat on whom an agreement has been served under sub-section (2) executes it, and within one month from the date of service files it in the office from which it issued, it shall take effect from the commencement of the agricultural year next following.

(4) When an agreement has been executed and filed by a raiyat under sub-section (3), the Court or officer in whose office it is so filed shall forthwith cause a notice of its being so executed and filed to be served on the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Sections 92 (2) and 93 (2).

(5) If the raiyat does not execute the agreement and file it under sub-section (3) he shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have refused to execute it.

(6) If a raiyat refuses to execute an agreement tendered to him under this section, and the landlord thereupon institutes a suit to eject him, the Court shall determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding.

(7) If the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined he shall be entitled to remain in occupation of his holding at that rent for a term of five years from the date of the agreement, but on the expiration of that term shall be liable to ejectment under the conditions mentioned in the last foregoing section, unless he has acquired a right of occupancy. Section 93 (3).

(8) If the raiyat does not agree to pay the rent so determined the Court shall pass a decree for ejectment.

(9) In determining what rent is fair and equitable the Court shall have regard to the average rent payable by raiyats for land of a similar description and with like advantages in the vicinity, but shall not allow any enhancement exceeding eight annas per rupee of the previous rent.

(10) A decree for ejectment passed under this section shall take effect from the end of the agricultural year in which it is passed. Section 92 (2).

61. Where a raiyat has been in occupation of land and a lease is executed with a view to a continuance of his occupation, he is not to be deemed to be admitted to occupation by that lease for the purposes of this chapter, notwithstanding that the lease may purport to admit him to occupation.

Explanation of "admitted to occupation".

CHAPTER VII.

UNDER-RAIYATS.

62. The landlord of an under-raiyat holding at a money rent shall not be entitled to recover rent exceeding the rent which he himself pays by more than the following percentage of the same, namely :—

Limit of rent recoverable from under-raiyats.

(a) When the rent payable by the under-raiyat is payable under a registered lease or agreement—fifty per cent. ; and

(b) In any other case—twenty-five per cent.

63. An under-raiyat shall not be liable to be ejected by his landlord, except at the end of an agricultural year and after a written notice to quit has been served on him in the prescribed manner not less than six months before the expiration of that year.

Restriction on ejectment of under-raiyats.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO RENT.

Rules and presumptions as to amount of rent.

Rules and presumptions as to amount of rent

[D §§ 20 & 37. C. B., ss. 6 & 16. B. B., ss. 6 & 15] Section 14

Rules and presumptions as to fixity of rent.

64. (1) Where a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the rent or rate of rent shall not be liable to be increased except on the ground of an alteration in the area of the holding.

[D. §§ 21 & 38. C. B., ss. 6 & 17. [B. B., ss. 6 & 16.] Section 15.

(2) If it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under this Act that a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement:

Provided that if it is required by or under any enactment that in any local area tenancies or any classes of tenancies at fixed rents or rates of rent shall be registered as such on or before a date specified by or under the enactment, the foregoing presumption shall not after that date apply to any tenancy or, as the case may be, to any tenancy of that class in that local area which has not been so registered.

[D § 38. C. B., s 16 Expl I. B. B., s. 15. Expl I] Section 16.

(3) When a raiyat has paid as rent a fixed share or the value of a fixed share of the produce of the land, the rent or rate of rent shall not be deemed to have been changed within the meaning of this section merely by reason of the amount paid having varied from year to year, or by reason of the rent having been commuted with the consent of both the raiyat and his landlord to a fixed money rent.

[D. § 37 C. B., s 16. Expl II. B. B., s. 15. Expl II.] Section 17

(4) The operation of this section, so far as it relates to land held by a raiyat, shall not be affected by the fact of the land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding.

[D § 20. C. B., s. 6. B. B., s 6] Section 19

(5) Nothing in this section shall apply where the land is held for a term of years or the tenancy thereof is determinable at the will of the landlord.

Section 120.

Presumption as to amount of rent and conditions of holding.

65. If a question arises as to the amount of a tenant's rent or the conditions under which he holds in any agricultural year, he shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to hold at the same rent and under the same conditions as in the last preceding agricultural year.

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

Alteration of rent in respect of alteration in area.

Alteration of rent on alteration of area

[D §§ 19, 2 43 (3) & 47. C. B., ss 8 18, 22 (2) & 25 (1) B. B., ss. 8, 18, 23 (2) & 25 (1)] Section 98

66. (1) Every tenant shall—

(a) be liable to pay additional rent for all land proved by measurement to be in excess of the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, and

(b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any diminution of the area of his holding caused by diluvion or otherwise, unless it is proved that the land lost was added to the area of the holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

(2) In determining the amount to be added to the rent the Court shall have regard to the rates payable by tenants of the same class for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and, in the case of a tenure-holder, to the profits to which he is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure.

(3) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable as the diminution of the total yearly value of the holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the holding.

Payment of rent.

Payment of rent.

Instalments of rent.

[C B., s. 55 (a) B B., s. 47 (a)] Section 97.

67. (1) A money-rent payable by a tenure-holder shall be paid in such instalments and on such dates as may have been agreed upon between the tenure-holder and his landlord; in the absence of agreement, in such instalments and on such dates as may be customary; and in the absence of any agreement or custom, in such instalments and on such dates as the Local Government may fix by rule for any local area.

[C. B., s. 53 (b) B B., s. 47 (b)] Section 96.

(2) A money-rent payable by a raiyat or under-raiyat shall be paid in such instalments, representing respectively such proportions of the yearly rent, and on such dates, not being more than four in each year, as the Local Government may fix by rule for any local area, and, subject to any such rules, as may be fixed by agreement, or in the absence of agreement, by custom.

[B B., s. 47 (c).] Section 99(1)

(3) In making rules under this section the Local Government shall take into consideration the prevailing customs, the time of harvest, and the time at which land-revenue is payable.

Section 99(2)

(4) Every rule made under this section shall be published in manner prescribed not less than three months before the commencement of the agricultural year in which it is to take effect.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent. Secs. 68–73.)

Time and place for payment of rent.

68. (1) Every tenant shall pay each instalment of rent before sunset of the day on which it falls due.

(2) The payment shall, except in cases where a tenant is allowed under this Act to deposit his rent, be made at the landlord's village office, or at such other convenient place as may be appointed in that behalf by the landlord :

Provided that the Local Government may make rules authorizing a tenant to pay his rent by postal money-order.

[D. s. 101. C. B. s 56. B. B., s. 48. Section 3(12)]

(3) Any instalment or part of an instalment of rent not duly paid at or before the time when it falls due shall be deemed an arrear.

Appropriation of payments.

69. (1) When a tenant makes a payment on account of rent, he may declare the year or the year and instalment to which he wishes the payment to be credited, and the payment shall be credited accordingly.

(2) If he does not make any such declaration, the payment may be credited to the account of such year and instalment as the landlord thinks fit.

Receipts and accounts.

[Receipts and accounts. D., § 61. C. B., s 57. B. B., s 49 (a) and (b).] Section 100.

Tenant making payment to his landlord entitled to a receipt.

70. (1) Every tenant who makes a payment on account of rent to his landlord shall be entitled to obtain forthwith from the landlord a written receipt for the amount paid by him, signed by the landlord.

(2) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterfoil of the receipt.

(3) The receipt and counterfoil shall specify the several particulars shown in the form of receipt given in Schedule III to this Act, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(4) If a receipt does not contain substantially the particulars required by this section, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

[C. B., s 51 (1). B., s. 49 (c).] Section 101.

Tenant entitled to full discharge or statement of account at close of year.

71. (1) Where a landlord admits that all rent payable by a tenant to the end of the agricultural year has been paid, the tenant shall be entitled to receive from the landlord, free of charge, within three months after the end of the year, a receipt in full discharge, signed by the landlord.

(2) Where the landlord does not so admit, the tenant shall be entitled, on paying a fee of four annas, to receive within three months after the end of the year, a statement of account specifying the several particulars shown in the form of account given in Schedule III to this Act, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(3) The landlord shall prepare and retain a copy of the statement containing similar particulars.

[D. s. 65. C. B., s. 57 (d). B. B. ss. 49 (d) & 94.] Section 102.

Penalties and fine for withholding receipts and statements of accounts and failing to keep counterparts.

72. (1) If a landlord refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant a receipt containing the particulars prescribed by section 70 for any rent paid by the tenant, the tenant may, within six months from the date of payment, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty, not exceeding double the amount or value of that rent, as the Court thinks fit.

(2) If a landlord refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same the receipt in full discharge or the statement of account for any year prescribed in section 71, the tenant may, within the next ensuing agricultural year, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding double the aggregate amount or value of all rent paid by the tenant to the landlord during the year for which the receipt or account should have been delivered.

Deposit of rent.

Deposit of rent

Application to deposit rent in public office.

73. (1) In any of the following cases, namely :—

[D., § 99. C. B., ss. 58 & 59 B. B., ss. 50 & 51. Section 103.

(a) when a tenant tenders money on account of rent and the landlord refuses to receive it or refuses to grant a receipt for it ;

(b) when a tenant bound to pay money on account of rent has reason to believe that owing to a dispute or ill-feeling the person to whom his rent is payable will not be willing to receive it and to grant him a receipt for it ;

(c) when the rent is payable to co-sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of the co-sharers for the money, and no person has been empowered to receive the rent in their behalf ; or

(d) when the tenant entertains a bonâ fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent ;

the tenant may present, to such officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf for the local area in which the holding is situate, an application in writing for permission to deposit in his office the full amount of the money then due.

(2) The application shall contain a statement of the grounds on which it is made ; shall, in case (d), state the name of the person to whom the rent was last paid, and of the person or persons now claiming it; shall be signed by the tenant, or, where he is not personally cognizant of the facts of the case, by some person so cognizant; and shall be accompanied by a fee of such amount, not less than eight annas, as the Local Government from time to time by rule directs.

[D. §§ 99 & 100. C. B., s. 60. B. B., s. 52.] Section 104.

Receipt granted by public officer for rent deposited to be a valid acquittance.

74. (1) If it appears to the officer to whom an application is made under the last foregoing section that the applicant is entitled under that section to deposit the rent, he shall receive the rent and give a receipt for it under his official seal.

(2) The officer may, if he thinks fit, before receiving the rent, examine the person who has signed the statement required under the last foregoing section.

(3) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the rent had been received—in case (a) of the last foregoing section, by the person to whom the rent was tendered;

in case (b) of that section, by the person specified in the application as the person to whom the rent was payable;

in case (c) of that section, by the co-sharers jointly; and in case (d) of that section, by the person entitled to the rent.

[D., § 100. C. B., s. 61 (a). B. B., s. 53 (a).] Section 105.

Notification of receipt of deposit.

75. (1) The officer receiving the deposit shall forthwith cause to be affixed in a conspicuous place in his office a notification of the receipt thereof, containing a statement of all material particulars.

(2) If the amount of the deposit is not paid away under the next following section, within the period of fifteen days next following the date on which the notification is so affixed, the officer shall cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be served, free of charge, on every person who he has reason to believe claims or is entitled to the deposit.

[D. § 100. C. B., s. 61, cls. (b) & (c). B. B. s. 53, cls. (b) & (c). Sections 106 and 107.

Payment or refund of deposit.

76. (1) The officer may pay the amount of the deposit to any person appearing to him to be entitled to the same, or may, if he thinks fit, retain the amount pending the decision of a Civil Court as to the person so entitled.

(2) The payment may, if the Local Government so direct, be made by postal money-order.

(3) If no payment is made under this section before the expiration of three years from the date on which a deposit is made, the amount deposited may, in the absence of any order of a Civil Court to the contrary, be repaid to the depositor upon his application and on his returning the receipt given by the officer with whom the rent was deposited.

(4) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by an officer receiving a deposit under the foregoing sections; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

Arrears of rent.

Arrears of rent.

[C. B., s. 64. B. B., s. 56.] Section 125.

Rent first charge on transferable holding.

77. (1) The rent of every transferable holding shall be a first charge on the holding.

(2) If the right, title and interest of the tenant is brought to sale in execution of a money decree obtained by a person other than the landlord, the landlord shall be entitled to be first paid out of the sale proceeds any rent which may be due to him by the tenant, but this right shall be without prejudice to the landlord's charge under sub-section (1).

[D. §§ 12 (5) & 93. C. B. ss. 79(5) & 152. B. B. ss. 77 (5) & 169.] Section 111.

Ejectment from non-transferable holding for arrears.

78. (1) When an arrear of rent remains due in respect of a non-transferable holding at the end of the Bengali year where that year prevails, or at the end of the month of Jeyt where the Fusli or Amli year prevails, the landlord may, whether he has obtained a decree for the recovery of the arrear or not, and whether he is entitled by the terms of any contract to eject the tenant for arrears or not, institute a suit to eject the tenant.

(2) A decree passed in favour of the plaintiff in any such suit shall specify the amount of the arrear and of the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or, when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court re-opens.

(3) The Court may for special reasons extend the period of fifteen days mentioned in this section.

[D. § 101. C. B., s. 56. B. B., s. 48.] Section 109.

Interest on arrears.

79. In fixing the rate of interest on an arrear of rent, the Court shall have regard to established usage and to the agreement, if any, between the parties; but shall ordinarily decree simple interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum from the expiration of the agricultural year in which the arrear fell due to the institution of the suit.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter VIII.—General Provisions as to Rent. Secs. 80—85.)

[D., § 68. C. B., s. 90. B. B., s. 96.] Section 109.

Power to award damages on rent withheld without reasonable cause or to defendant improperly sued for rent.

80. (1) If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount of rent due by him, the Court may award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the amount of rent decreed, as it thinks fit:

Provided that interest shall not be decreed when damages are awarded under this section.

D., § 69.* C. B., s. 91. B. B., s. 97.] Section 110.

(2) If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit without reasonable or probable cause, the Court may award to the defendant, by way of damages, such sum, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff, as it thinks fit.

Produce-rents.

Produce-rents. [C. B., s. 84, B. B., s. 88.] Section 112.

Order for appraising or dividing produce.

81. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement or division of the produce—

(a) if either the landlord or the tenant neglects to attend, either personally or by agent, at the proper time for making the appraisement or division, or

(b) if there is a dispute about the quantity, value or division of the produce,

the Collector may, on the application of either party, and on his depositing such sum on account of expenses as the Collector may require, make an order appointing such officer as he thinks fit to appraise or divide the produce.

(2) The Collector may, without such an application, make the like order in any case where in the opinion of the Magistrate of the District or Sub-division the making of the order would be likely to prevent a breach of the peace.

(3) Where a Collector makes an order under this section, he may by order prohibit the removal of the produce until the appraisement or division has been effected.

Section 113.

Procedure where officer appointed.

82. (1) When a Collector appoints an officer under the last foregoing section, the Collector may, in his discretion, direct the officer to associate with himself any other persons as assessors, and may give him instructions regarding the number, qualifications and mode of selecting those assessors (if any), and the procedure to be followed in making the appraisement or division; and the officer shall conform to the instructions so given.

(2) The officer shall, before making an appraisement or division, give notice to the landlord and tenant of the time and place at which the appraisement or division will be made, but if either the landlord or the tenant fails to attend either personally or by agent, he may proceed ex parte.

(3) When the officer has made the appraisement or division, he shall submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector. Section 115 (1).

(4) The Collector shall consider the report, and after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard and making such enquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass such order thereon as he thinks just. Section 115 (2).

(5) The Collector may, if he thinks fit, refer any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court, but, subject as aforesaid, his order shall be final and shall be enforceable as a decree.

(6) Where the officer makes an appraisement, the appraisement papers shall be filed in the Collector's office. [C. B., s. 85, B. B., s. 89.] Section 118.

Rights and liabilities as to possession of crop.

83. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the produce.

(2) Where rent is taken by division of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to exclusive possession of the whole produce until it is divided.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord, but shall not be entitled to remove any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

Liability for rent on change of landlord.

Liability for rent on change of landlord. [D., § 9. C. B., s. 78. B. B., s. 70.] Section 123.

Tenant not liable to transferee of landlord's interest for rent paid to former landlord, without notice of the transfer.

84. (1) A tenant shall not, when his landlord's interest is transferred, be liable to the transferee for rent which became due after the transfer and was paid to the landlord whose interest was so transferred, unless the transferee has given notice of the transfer to the tenant.

(2) Where there is more than one tenant paying rent to the landlord whose interest is transferred, a general notice from the transferee to the tenants published in the prescribed manner shall be a sufficient notice for the purposes of this section.

Illegal Cesses, &c.

Illegal cesses, &c. [D. §§ 13 & 57 C. B., s. 71. B. B., s. 63 (3).] Section 133.

Abwab, &c., illegal.

85. All impositions upon tenants under the denomination of abwab, mahtut, or other like appellations, in addition to the actual rent, shall be illegal, and all stipulations and reservations for the payment of such shall be void.

[D., § 64 B. B., ss. 63 (2), 64 (a), 99] Section 124.

Penalty for exaction by landlord from tenant of sum in excess of the rent payable.

86. Every tenant from whom, except under any special enactment for the time being in force, any sum of money or any portion of the produce of his land is exacted by his landlord in excess of the rent lawfully payable, may, within six months from the date of the exaction, institute a suit to recover from the landlord, in addition to the amount or value of what is so exacted, such sum by way of penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding five hundred rupees; or, when double the amount or value of what is so exacted exceeds five hundred rupees, not exceeding double that amount or value.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS AS TO LANDLORDS AND TENANTS.

Improvements.

Improvements.

[C. B., s. 29 B. B., s. 69.] Section 126.

Definition of improvement.

87. (1) For the purposes of this Act the term "improvement," used with reference to a raiyat's holding, shall mean any work which adds to the letting-value of the holding, which is suitable to the holding and consistent with the purpose for which it was let, and which, if not executed on the holding, is either executed directly for its benefit, or is, after execution, made directly beneficial to it.

(2) The following shall be presumed until the contrary is shown to be improvements within the meaning of this section:—

(a) the construction of wells, tanks and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for the purposes of agriculture, or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture;

(b) the preparation of land for irrigation;

(c) the drainage, reclamation from rivers or other waters, or protection from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water, of land used for agricultural purposes, or waste-land which is culturable;

(d) the reclamation, clearance, enclosure or permanent improvement of land for agricultural purposes;

(e) the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein, or additions thereto; and

(f) the erection of a suitable dwelling-house for the raiyat and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

(3) But no work executed by the raiyat of a holding shall be deemed to be an improvement for the purposes of this Act if it substantially diminishes the value of the estate or tenure of his landlord.

Right to make improvements in case of holding at fixed rates.

88. Where a raiyat holds at a fixed rent or a fixed rate of rent, his landlord shall not be entitled, as such, to prevent him from making any improvement in respect of his holding.

[C. B., s. 77. B. B., s. 69.] Section 127.

Right to make improvement in case of occupancy-holding.

89. (1) Where a raiyat has an occupancy-right in his holding neither the raiyat nor his landlord shall, as such, be entitled to prevent the other from making an improvement in respect of the holding, except on the ground that he is willing to make it himself.

(2) If both the raiyat and his landlord wish to make the same improvement, the raiyat shall have the prior right to make it, unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord.

(3) If a question arises between the raiyat and his landlord—

(a) as to the right to make an improvement, or

(b) as to whether a particular work is an improvement,

the Collector may, on the application of either party, decide the question, and his decision shall be final.

[C. B., s. 77. B. B., s. 69.] Section 128.

Right to make improvement in case of non-occupancy holding.

90. (1) A non-occupancy-raiyat shall be entitled to erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family, with all necessary out-offices; but shall not, except as aforesaid and as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make any other improvement in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission.

(2) A non-occupancy-raiyat who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

Registration of landlord's improvements.

91. (1) A landlord may register any improvement which he has lawfully made or which has been lawfully made at his expense or which he has assisted a tenant in making, by application to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may appoint.

(2) The application shall be in such form, shall contain such information, and shall be verified in such manner, by local inquiry or otherwise, as the Local Government by rule directs.

(3) The officer receiving the application may reject it if it has not been made within twelve months—

(a) in the case of improvements made before the commencement of this Act—from the commencement of this Act;

(b) in the case of improvements made after the commencement of this Act—from the date of the completion of the work.

Application to record evidence as to improvement.

92. (1) If any landlord or tenant of a holding desires that evidence relating to any improvement made in respect thereof be recorded, he may apply to a Revenue-officer, who shall thereupon record the evidence in the presence of the parties, unless he considers that there are no reasonable grounds for making the application, or it is made to appear that the subject-matter thereof is under inquiry in a Civil Court.

(2) When any matter has been recorded under this section, the record thereof shall be admissible in evidence in any subsequent proceedings between the landlord and tenant or any persons claiming under them.

C. B., ss. 20 (c) and 29 } Section 129.

Compensation for raiyats' improvements.

93. (1) Every raiyat who is ejected from his holding shall be entitled to compensation for improvements which have been made in accordance with this Act by him, or by his predecessor in interest, and for which compensation has not already been made.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejectment of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat between the 2nd day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act.

Section 139.

(5) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under this section for an improvement, such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

Section 131.

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

94. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under the last foregoing section for an improvement, regard shall be had—

(a) to the amount by which the letting-value, or the produce, of the holding, or the value of that produce, is increased by the improvement;

(b) to the condition of the improvement, and the probable duration of its effects;

(c) to the labour and capital required for the making of such an improvement;

(d) to any reduction or remission of rent or any other advantage given by the landlord to the raiyat in consideration of the improvement; and

(e) in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land, to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the landlord and raiyat may, if they think fit, agree that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

Surrender and abandonment.

Surrender and abandonment.

Surrender.

95. (1) A raiyat not bound by a lease or other agreement for a fixed period may, at the end of any agricultural year, surrender his right and interest in the holding.

[D § 12 (3). C. B., s. 79 (3). B. B., s. 72 (3).]

Section 139.

(2) But, notwithstanding the surrender, the raiyat shall continue to be liable for the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender, unless he gives to his landlord, at least three months before he surrenders, notice of his intention to surrender.

(3) In the following cases the Court shall for the purposes of this section presume, until the contrary is shown, that such notice was so given, namely:—

(a) if the raiyat takes a new holding in the same village from the same landlord during the agricultural year next following the surrender;

(b) if the raiyat ceases, at least three months before the end of the agricultural year at the end of which the surrender is made, to reside in the village in which the surrendered holding is situate;

(c) if the landlord himself, at any time during the agricultural year next following the surrender, lets to another tenant or cultivates the holding or any part thereof.

(4) The raiyat may, if he thinks fit, cause the notice to be served through the Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate.

(5) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter IX.—Miscellaneous Provisions as to Landlords and Tenants. Secs. 96—102.)

[D. s. 12 (4). C.B., s. 79 (4) B B, s 72 (4).] Section 140

Abandonment.

96. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) When a landlord enters under this section he shall cause a notice in the prescribed form to be published in such manner as the Local Government by rule directs, stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and has entered on it accordingly.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy-raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured as to the Court may seem just.

Sub-division of holding.

Sub-division of holding. [B B, ss 21 (5), 37.] Section 150.

Portion of holding not transferable.

97. Nothing in this Act shall entitle a tenant whose holding is transferable to transfer or bequeath, without the consent of his landlord, a portion only of the land comprised in the holding so that it may be held from the landlord by the transferee or the person to whom it is bequeathed as a separate holding.

Ejectment.

Ejectment. [C B, s. 79 (5), (6) & (7). B. B, s. 72 (5), (6) and (7).] Section 149.

No ejectment except in execution of decree.

98. No tenant shall be ejected from his holding except in execution of a decree.

Measurements.

Measurements. [IV § 58 C.B, s 75. B B., s 67.] Section 133.

Landlord's right to measure land.

99. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section and any contract, a landlord may, by himself, or by any person authorized by him on this behalf, enter on and measure all land comprised in his estate or tenure.

(2) A landlord shall not, without the consent of the tenant, or the written permission of the Collector, be entitled to measure land more than once in ten years, except in the following cases:—

(a) Where the area of the holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area.

(b) Where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation.

(c) Where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

(3) The ten years shall be computed from the date of the last measurement, whether made before or after the commencement of this Act.

[D. s. 94, B B, ss. 176 & 177.] Sections 134 and 135.

Power for Court to order tenant to attend and point out boundaries.

100. (1) Where a landlord desires to measure any land which he is entitled to measure under the last foregoing section, the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, make an order requiring the tenant to attend and point out the boundaries of the land.

(2) If the tenant refuses or neglects to comply with the order, a map or other record of the boundaries and measurements of the land, prepared under the direction of the landlord at the time when the tenant was directed to attend, shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

[D. § 94. C B., s. 76(a) B.B., s. 68 (c).] Section 137.

Standard of measurement.

101. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue-officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made according to the Government measure of 14,400 square feet to one standard bighá.

(2) If the rights of the parties are regulated by any different local measure, the Government measure shall be converted into the local measure for the purposes of the suit.

[D. § 98. C. B., s 76 (b) B.B., s. 68 (b).] Section 138.

(3) The Local Government may, after local enquiry, make rules declaring for any local area the standard or standards of measurement locally in use in that area, and every declaration so made shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Managers.

Managers [D § 16. C. B., s. 56 B B., s. 57 (1)] Section 142

Power to call upon co-owners to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager.

(a) inconvenience to the public, or

(b) injury to private rights,

the District Judge may, on the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in the estate or tenure, direct a notice to be served on all the co-owners, calling on them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager:

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims, and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876.

VII, 1876 (B. C.

Power to order them to appoint a manager if cause is not shown.

103. If the co-owners fail to show cause as aforesaid within one month after service of a notice under the last foregoing section, the District Judge may make an order directing them to appoint a common manager, and a copy of the order shall be served on any co-owner who did not appear before it was made.

[C. B., s 66 (1). B. B, s. 58 (1).] Section 144.

Power to appoint manager if order is not obeyed.

104. If the co-owners do not, within such period, not being less than one month after the making of an order under the last foregoing section, as the District Judge may fix in this behalf, or, where the order has been served as directed by that section, within a like period after such service, appoint a common manager and report the appointment for the information of the District Judge, the District Judge may, unless it is shown to his satisfaction that there is a prospect of a satisfactory arrangement being made within a reasonable time—

(a) direct that the estate or tenure be managed by the Court of Wards in any case in which the Court of Wards assents to undertake the management thereof; or (b) in any case appoint a manager.

[C. B., s. 66 (2). B. B., s. 58 (2).] Section 145.

Power to nominate person to act in all cases under clause (b) of last section.

105. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may nominate a person for any local area to manage all estates and tenures within that local area for which it may be necessary to appoint a manager under clause (b) of the last foregoing section; and, when any person has been so nominated, no other person shall be appointed manager under that clause by the District Judge, unless in the case of any estate the Judge thinks fit to appoint one of the co-owners themselves as manager.

[C B., s. 66(3). B. B. s. 58(3).] Section 146.

The Court of Wards Act, 1879, applicable to management by Court of Wards.

IX (B.C.) of 1879.

106. In any case in which the Court of Wards undertakes the management of an estate or tenure under section 104, so much of the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, as relates to the management of immoveable property shall apply to the management.

[C. B., s. 67. B. B, s. 59.] Section 147.

Provisions applicable to manager.

107. (1) A manager appointed under section 104 shall receive by way of remuneration such fixed salary or percentage of the money collected by him as manager as the District Judge from time to time directs.

(2) He shall give such security for the proper discharge of his duties as the District Judge directs.

(3) He shall, subject to the control of the District Judge, have, for the purposes of management, the same powers as the co-owners jointly might but for his appointment have exercised, and the co-owners shall not exercise any such power.

(4) He shall deal with and distribute the profits in accordance with the orders of the District Judge.

(5) He shall keep regular accounts, and allow the co-owners or any of them to inspect and take copies of those accounts.

(6) He shall pass his accounts at such period and in such form as the District Judge may direct.

(7) He may make any application which the proprietors could make under section 112.

(8) He shall be removeable by the order of the District Judge, and not otherwise.

[C.B., s 68. B B., s. 60.] Section 148.

Power to restore management to co-owners.

108. When an estate or tenure has been placed under the management of the Court of Wards, or a manager has been appointed for the same under section 104, the District Judge may at any time direct that the management of it be restored to the co-owners, if he is satisfied that the management will be conducted by them without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights.

Power to make rules.

109. The High Court may from time to time make rules defining the powers and duties of managers under the foregoing sections.

CHAPTER X.

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT OF RENTS.

Record-of-rights.

Record-of-rights Section 164.

Power to order preparation of record-of-rights.

110. (1) The Local Government may in any case with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and may, if it thinks fit, without such sanction in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that a record-of-rights shall be prepared for all tenancies or any class of tenancies in a local area by Revenue-officers to be from time to time appointed by the Local Government.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council are the following, namely:—

(a) where the landlord or a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants applies for such an order and deposits for the payment of expenses such amount as the Local Government directs;

(b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally; and

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter X.—Record-of-rights and Settlement of Rents. Secs. 111—117.)

(c) where the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure which belongs to or is managed by the Government or the Court of Wards.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

tion 164.

Particulars to be recorded.

111. Where an order is made under the last foregoing section the particulars to be recorded shall be specified in the order, and may include some or all of the following, namely :—

(a) the name of each tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy raiyat or under-raiyat;

(c) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land held by him;

(d) the name of his landlord;

(e) the rent payable;

(f) the mode in which that rent has been fixed, whether by contract, by order of a Court or otherwise;

(g) if the rent is a gradually increasing rent, the time at which, and the steps by which, it increases;

(h) the special conditions, if any, under which the tenant holds.

Power for Revenue-officer to record particulars on application of proprietor or tenure-holder.

112. On the application of a proprietor or tenure-holder, and on his depositing the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record the particulars specified in the last foregoing section with respect to the estate or tenure or any part thereof.

Sections 157 to 159.

Publication of record.

113. (1) When the Revenue-officer has completed the record he shall cause a draft thereof to be locally published in such manner and for such period as the Local Government by rule directs, and shall receive and consider any objection which may be made to any entry therein during the period of publication.

(2) After the expiration of this period the Revenue-officer shall finally settle the record, and shall cause it to be locally published in such manner as the Local Government by rule directs, and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this Chapter.

Procedure in case of dispute as to entries in record.

114. If at any time before the final publication of the record under the last foregoing section a dispute arises as to the correctness of any entry which the Revenue-officer proposes to make or has made therein, the Revenue-officer shall hear and decide the dispute, and for that purpose shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government under this Act, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits, and his decision shall have the force of a decree. XIV of 1882.

Appeals from decisions of Revenue-officers.

115. (1) The Local Government shall appoint one or more persons to be a Special Judge or Special Judges for the purpose of hearing appeals from the decisions of Revenue-officers under the last foregoing section.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Special Judge from the decision of a Revenue-officer under the last foregoing section, and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals shall, as nearly as may be, apply to all such appeals. XIV of 1882

(3) Subject to the provisions of Chapter XLII of the Code of Civil Procedure, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the decision of a Special Judge as if he were a Court subordinate to the High Court within the meaning of the first section of that Chapter. XIV of 1882

Undisputed entries in record to be presumptive evidence.

116. (1) Every record made under this Chapter shall distinguish between the disputed and the undisputed entries therein. Section 165

(2) Every undisputed entry in the record shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

Settlement of rents.

Power to order Revenue-officers to settle rents.

117. (1) The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that the rents of all tenants or of any class or classes of tenants in any local area shall be settled by Revenue-officers to be from time to time appointed by the Local Government in this behalf: Settlement of rents Section 151.

Provided that the Local Government shall not make such an order until it is satisfied after local enquiry that the making of the order would be expedient.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section are the following, namely :—

(a) any case in which a Revenue-officer may be directed under this Chapter to prepare a record-of-rights, and

(b) where a settlement of revenue is being made in respect of the local area.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made, and an order so notified shall continue in force until it is rescinded by an order notified in like manner.

(4) While an order under this section continues in force in respect of any tenants, a Civil Court shall not entertain a suit under this Act for the Section 152

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter X.—Record-of-rights and Settlement of Rents. Secs. 118—122.)

(Chapter XI.—Tables of Rates. Secs. 123 & 124.)

enhancement or reduction of the rents of any of those tenants.

Section 156.

Procedure for settlement of rents.

118. (1) When a Revenue-officer is directed under this Chapter to make a settlement of rents he shall ascertain and make a record of the particulars specified in section 111, and such other particulars, if any, as the Local Government may direct him to ascertain and record.

(2) If at any time before the rent-roll is finally published as hereinafter provided, a dispute arises as to the correctness of any entry which the officer has made or proposes to make in the record under sub-section (1), the provisions of sections 114 and 115 shall apply.

Section 153.

(3) In the case of a tenure the rent of which is liable to alteration, or an occupancy-raiyat's holding, the officer shall, on the application of either landlord or tenant, settle a fair and equitable rent in respect thereof.

Section 153.

(4) For this purpose he shall presume, until the contrary is proved, that the existing rent is fair and equitable, and shall have regard to the rules laid down in this Act for the guidance of the Civil Court in settling rents.

(5). In all proceedings under sub-sections (3) and (4) the officer shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government under this Act, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure, and his decision in every such proceeding shall have the force of a decree.

XIV of 1882.

(6). An appeal shall lie from every such decision to the Special Judge appointed under section 115, whose decision thereon shall be final, subject to this qualification, that if in a second appeal under sub-section (2) of this section the High Court alters the decision of the Special Judge in respect of any of the particulars with reference to which the rent of any holding has been settled, the Court may settle a new rent for the holding, but in so doing shall be guided by the rents of the other holdings of the same class comprised in the same rent-roll, as ascertained or settled under this section.

(7) When the Revenue-officer has recorded the particulars and settled the rents which he is required to record and settle, he shall prepare the draft of one or more rent-rolls, showing the particulars recorded by him, and, when he settles the rent, the amount of the rent as settled.

(8) Section 113 shall apply to every rent-roll made under this section as if it were a record within the meaning of that section, and section 116 shall apply to all entries made in any such rent-roll under sub-section (1) of this section.

Time at which alteration of rent is to take effect.

119. When any rent is altered under the last foregoing section, the alteration shall take effect from the beginning of the agricultural year next after the final publication of the rent-roll.

Period for which rents as settled are to remain unaltered.

120. When a landlord is entitled to apply to have the amount of the rent of a holding settled under section 118, sub-section (3), the rent of the holding as ascertained or settled under this chapter shall not be enhanced during a period of fifteen years from the date of the final publication of the rent-roll, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of an alteration in the area of the holding.

Supplemental.

Supplemental Section 168.

Expenses of proceedings under Chapter

121. Where an order is made under this chapter on the application of a landlord, or of several landlords or tenants, or for the purpose of settling or averting a serious dispute between tenants and their landlords, all expenses incurred by the Government in carrying out the provisions of this chapter in any local area, including the salaries of all officers employed exclusively in carrying out those provisions therein, and such portions as the Local Government may, from time to time, fix of the salaries of officers employed in carrying out those provisions therein in addition to their other public duties, shall be defrayed by the landlords and tenants in that local area whose rents are ascertained or settled under this chapter, in such proportions as the Local Government, having regard to all the circumstances of each case, may determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable from him as if it were an arrear of revenue due by him.

Presumption as to fixity of rent not to apply where record has been prepared.

122. When the particulars mentioned in section 111, clause (b), have been recorded under this chapter in respect of any tenancy, the presumption under section 64 shall not thereafter apply to that tenancy.

CHAPTER XI.

TABLES OF RATES.

[B. B., ss. 131 & 132] Section 62.

Power to direct preparation of table.

123. The Local Government may, by an order in the official Gazette, direct a Revenue-officer to take steps to prepare for any local area, with the aid of such assessors as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, a table showing for each class of land comprised in that area the rate of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats.

[B. B., s. 133] Section 63.

Contents of table.

124. The table shall specify—

(a) the several classes of land for which, having regard to the nature of the soil, situation, means of irrigation and other like considerations, it is necessary to fix different rates of rent; and

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XI.—Tables of Rates. Secs. 125—134.)

[B.B., s. 133.] Section 64.

(b) the rate of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats holding land of each such class;

Principle on which rent-rates are to be fixed.

125. In fixing the rate of rent for any class of land under section 124 regard shall be had—

(a) to the rates of rent ordinarily payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of that class at the time when the table is prepared;

(b) to the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets about the time at which those rates were fixed, or, if that time or the average prices about that time cannot readily be ascertained, to the average prices about any other time which it may appear equitable and practicable to take for the purpose of comparison;

[C B., s. 23, (b). B. B, s. 24, b).]

(d) to the following rule, namely, that when the rate of rent for any class of land is raised on account of an increase in the average prices of staple food crops the new rate shall not bear to the old rate a higher proportion than the increased average prices bear to the former average prices:

[C.B., s. 23, (c). B. B., s. 24, (c).]

Provided that the rate fixed for any class of land shall not exceed the existing rate by more than four annas in the rupee.

[B B., s. 137.] Section 65.

Local publication of the table.

126. When the Revenue-officer has prepared the table, he shall publish it in the local area to which it relates, in the vernacular language prevailing in that local area, in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

[B B, s. 138.] Section 66.

Revenue-officer to deal with objections.

127. Any person objecting to any entry in the table may present a petition to the Revenue-officer within a period of one month after the publication; and the Revenue-officer, with the aid of the assessors, shall consider any such objection, and may alter or amend the table.

[B B., s. 139.] Section 67.

Table to be submitted to superior Revenue-authorities.

128. If no objection is made within the said period of one month, or, where objections are made, after those objections have been disposed of, the Revenue-officer shall submit the table, together with his proceedings, a report setting forth the grounds of his decision on each point, and any petitions of objection which may have been received, through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board of Revenue for approval.

[B. B., s. 140] Section 68.

Proceedings of Board of Revenue thereupon.

129. The Board of Revenue may amend the table submitted under the last foregoing section in any manner which appears to it proper, and may allow in whole or in part any objection forwarded therewith or subsequently made, or may return the case for further enquiry.

[B. B., s. 141 Section 69.

Publication of table after final sanction.

130. When a table of rates has been sanctioned by the Board, it shall be submitted to the Local Government, which, after considering such objections as may be submitted to it in writing, may amend the table in any manner it thinks fit, and may direct, if it thinks fit, that the table or amended table shall be published in the official Gazette with a specification of the local area to which it applies.

[B. B., s. 142 Section 70.

Period for which table remains in force.

[B. B., s. 143 Section 71.

Table to be conclusive evidence.

132. The publication of a table under section 130 shall be conclusive evidence in any proceeding under this Act—

(1) that the proceedings for the preparation of the table have been duly conducted in accordance with this Act; and

(2) that, except as in this Act provided, the rates shown in the table for each class of land are the fair and equitable rates payable for land of that class by occupancy-raiyats within the local area to which the table applies.

Section 72.

Expenses incurred in preparing table how defrayed.

133. All expenses incurred by the Government in preparing a table of rates for any local area, including the salaries of all officers employed exclusively in its preparation, and such portions as the Local Government may from time to time fix of the salaries of officers employed in its preparation in addition to their other public duties, shall be defrayed by occupancy-raiyats and their landlords in that local area in such proportions as the Local Government may from time to time determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable from him as if it were an arrear of land-revenue due by him.

[B. B., s. 144] Section 73.

Suit to enhance where table is in force.

134. When a table is in force under the foregoing sections for any local area, the landlord of any holding within that area, held by an occupancy-raiyat at a money rent, may institute a suit to enhance the rent then payable on the ground that it is below that which would be payable at the rates shown in the table; and the Court shall enhance the rent in accordance with the rates shown in the table: Provided that—

[D. § 13. B, s. 22, cls (3) and (4). B. B, s 23, cls (3) & (4)]

(a) if the change has been effected solely by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the Court shall fix the rent of that land at the lower rate;

(b) if the change has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or his predecessor in interest, and partly by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the Court shall fix the rent of the land at such rate intermediate between the higher rate and the lower rate as, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it thinks fair and equitable; and

[C. B s. 23. (a) B, s 24. (b)]

(c) if it is not proved that the change has been effected by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or the raiyat, or the predecessor in interest of either of them, the Court shall fix the rent of the land at a rate equal to the lower rate, together with half the difference between the higher rate and the lower rate.

2ndly.—When the raiyat proves that by contract or by custom, or on some equitable ground, he is entitled to hold at a rate lower than the rate applicable under this section, the Court shall fix the rent at the lower rate.

3rdly.—Section 49 shall apply to all decrees for enhancement passed under this section, and section 50 shall apply to all suits for enhancement under this section as if they were suits for enhancement under Chapter V on the ground that the rent is below the prevailing rate or on the ground of an increase in prices.

Illustrations.

(a) The rates shown in the table for land of a certain description are—

when the land is irrigated from a well . . Rs 4 per acre, when the land is not so irrigated . Rs 2 „

The holdings of A, B, C and D occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description irrigated from wells constructed on these holdings respectively.

The well on A's holding is an ancient one existing from a time anterior to the tenancy: that on B's holding has been constructed by the landlord since the commencement of the tenancy: that on C's holding has been constructed by the raiyat: that on D's holding has been constructed by the landlord and raiyat, each contributing some portion of the labour and materials. The rents of the holdings of A and B must be fixed at Rs. 4 per acre, that of C's holding at Rs 2 per acre, and that of D's holding at such rate intermediate between Rs. 2 and Rs. 4 as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

when such land is irrigated from a branch of a river . . . Rs. 4 per acre, when such land is not so irrigated . . Rs. 2 „

The holdings of E and F, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description, and were not irrigable until 40 years ago, when, owing to a change in the course of a neighbouring river, a new branch established itself contiguous to them. E has been in occupation of his holding 50 years, F only 30; the rent of E's holding must be fixed at Rs 3, that of F's holding at Rs. 4.

CHAPTER XII.

RECORD OF PROPRIETOR'S PRIVATE LANDS.

[B B ss. 76 to 82] Sections 7 to 13

Power for Government to order survey and record of proprietor's private lands.

135. The Local Government may, from time to time, make an order directing a Revenue-officer to make a survey and record of all the lands in a specified local area which are a proprietor's private lands within the meaning of section 30.

Power for Revenue-officer to record private land on application of proprietor or tenant.

136. In the case of any land alleged to be a proprietor's private land, on the application of the proprietor or of any tenant of the land, and on his depositing the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record whether the land is or is not a proprietor's private land.

Procedure for recording private land.

137. When a Revenue-officer proceeds under either of the two last foregoing sections, the provisions of sections 113, 114, 115 and 116 shall apply.

Rules for determination of proprietor's private land.

138. (1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land— [C. B, s. 81. B B ss. 3 & 75.] Section 5.

(a) Land which is proved to have been cultivated as khámár, zírat, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and

(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village custom as proprietor's khámár, zírat, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat.

(2) In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIII.—Distraint. Secs. 139—142.)

the officer shall have regard to local custom and to the question whether the land was before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land; but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3) If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

CHAPTER XIII.

DISTRAINT.

[B. B., ss. 101, 104, 123.] Section 166.

Cases in which an application for distraint may be made.

139. Where an arrear of rent is due to the landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat, and has not been due for more than a year, and no security has been accepted therefor by the landlord, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy to which he is entitled by law, present an application to the Civil Court requesting the Court to recover the arrear by distraining, while in the possession of the cultivator,

(a) any crops or other products of the earth standing or ungathered on the holding;

(b) any crops or other products of the earth which have been grown on the holding and have been reaped or gathered and are deposited on the holding, or on a threshing-floor or place for treading out grain, or the like, whether in the fields or within a homestead:

Provided that an application shall not be made under this section—

VII (B. C.) of 1876.

(1) by a proprietor or manager as defined under the Land Registration Act, 1876, or a mortgagee of such a proprietor or manager, unless his name and the extent of his interest in the land in respect of which the arrear is due have been registered under the provisions of that Act; or

(2) for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the holding in the preceding agricultural year, unless that sum is payable under a written contract or in consequence of a proceeding under this Act or an enactment hereby repealed; or

[B. B., ss. 71, 125.]

(3) in respect of the produce of any part of the holding which the tenant has sub-let with the written consent of the landlord.

[B. B., ss. 104-5.] Section 167.

Form of application.

140. (1) Every application under the last foregoing section shall specify—

(a) the holding in respect of which the arrear is claimed, and the boundaries thereof, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification;

(b) the name of the tenant;

(c) the period in respect of which the arrear is claimed;

(e) the nature and approximate value of the produce to be distrained;

(f) the place where it is to be found, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification; and

(g) if it is standing or ungathered, the time at which it is likely to be cut or gathered.

(2) The application shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the signing and verification of plaints; and, if the application so verified contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, that person shall be subject to punishment according to the provisions of the law for the time being in force for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence. XIV of 1882

[B. B., ss. 105 & 106.] Section 168.

Procedure on receipt of application.

141. (1) The applicant shall, at the time of filing an application under the foregoing sections, file in Court such documentary evidence (if any) as he may consider necessary for the purposes of the application.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, examine the applicant, and shall, with as little delay as possible, admit the application or reject it, or permit the applicant to furnish additional evidence in support of it.

(3) Where a Court cannot forthwith admit or reject an application under sub-section (2), it may, if it thinks fit, make an order prohibiting the removal of the produce specified in the application pending the execution of an order for distraining the same or the rejection of the application.

(4) When an order for distraining any produce is made under this section at a considerable time before the produce is likely to be cut or gathered, the Court may suspend the execution of the order for such time as it thinks fit, and may if it thinks fit make a further order prohibiting the removal of the produce pending the execution of the order for distraint.

[B. B. s. 107.] Section 169

Execution of order of distraint

142. If an application is admitted under the last foregoing section, the Court shall depute an officer to distrain the produce specified therein, or such portion of that produce as it thinks fit; and the officer shall proceed to the place where the produce is, and distrain the produce by taking charge of it himself or placing some other person in charge of it in his behalf, and publishing a notification of the distraint in accordance with rules to that effect to be made by the High Court:

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIII.—Distraint. Secs. 113—152.)

[B., s. 111.] Provided that produce which from its nature does not admit of being stored shall not be distrained under this section at any time less than twenty days before the time when it would be fit for reaping or gathering.

[B., s. 108.] Section 170

Service of demand and account.

143. (1) The distraining officer shall, at the time of making the distraint, serve on the defaulter a written demand for the arrear due, and the costs incurred in making the distraint, with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the distraint is made.

(2) Where the distraining officer has reason to believe that a person other than the defaulter is the owner of the property distrained, he shall serve copies of the demand and account on that person likewise.

(3) The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally; but if a person on whom they are to be served absconds or conceals himself, or cannot otherwise be found, the officer shall affix copies of the demand and account on the outer door of the house in which he usually resides.

[B., ss. 109 & 110.] Section 171.

Right to reap, &c., produce.

144. (1) A distraint under this chapter shall not prevent any person from reaping, gathering or storing any produce, or doing any other act necessary for its due preservation.

(2) If the person entitled to do so fails to do so at the proper time, the distraining officer shall cause any standing crops or ungathered products distrained to be reaped or gathered when ripe, and stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used for the purpose, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood, or shall do whatever else may be necessary for the due preservation of the same.

(3) In either case the distrained property shall remain in the charge of the distraining officer, or of some other person appointed by him in this behalf.

[B., s. 113.] Section 172.

Sale proclamation to be issued unless demand is satisfied.

145. (1) Unless the demand, with all costs of the distraint, be immediately satisfied, the distraining officer shall issue a proclamation specifying the particulars of the property distrained and the demand for which it is distrained, and notifying that he will, at a place and on a specified day, not being less than three or more than seven days after the time of making the distraint, sell the distrained property by public auction:

Provided that when the crops or products distrained from their nature admit of being stored but have not yet been stored, the day of the sale shall be so fixed as to admit of their being made ready for storing before its arrival.

(2) The proclamation shall be stuck up on a conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate for which the arrears of rent are claimed.

[B.B., s. 114.] Section 173.

Place of sale.

146. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort, if the distraining officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

[D., s. 111.] Section 174.

When produce may be sold standing.

147. (1) Crops or products which from their nature admit of being stored shall not be sold before they are reaped or gathered and are ready for storing.

[B.B., s. 115.] Section 175.

Manner of sale.

148. The property shall be sold by public auction in one or more lots, as the officer holding the sale may think advisable; and if the demand, with the costs of distraint and sale, is satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distraint shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

[B. B., s. 116.] Section 176.

Postponement of sale.

149. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorised to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day, or (if a market is held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until that day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

[B. B., s. 117.] Section 177.

Payment of purchase-money.

150. The price of every lot shall be paid at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold.

[B. B., s. 118.] Section 178.

Certificate to be given to purchaser.

151. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

[B. B., s. 119.] Section 179.

Proceeds of sale how to be applied.

152. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay the

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIV.—Judicial Procedure. Secs. 159 & 160.)

costs of the distraint and sale, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made by the Local Government in this behalf.

[B. B., s 120.] Section 180.

Certain officers may not purchase.

153. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

[B. B., ss. 111, 112 & 123] Section 181.

Procedure where demand is paid before the sale

154. (1) If at any time after a distraint has been made under this chapter, and before the sale of the distrained property, the defaulter, or the owner of the distrained property where he is not the defaulter, deposits in the Court issuing the order of distraint, or in the hands of the distraining officer, the amount specified in the demand served under section 148, with all costs which may have been incurred after the service of the demand, the Court or officer, as the case may be, shall grant a receipt for the same and the distraint shall forthwith be withdrawn.

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay it into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section, the Court shall pay therefrom to the applicant for distraint the amount due to him, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the propertydistrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

(5) A landlord shall not be deemed to have consented to his tenant's sub-letting the holding or any part thereof merely by reason of his having received an amount deposited under this section by an inferior tenant.

[B. B., s 124.] Section 182.

Amount paid by undertenant for his lessor may be deducted from rent.

155. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under the last foregoing section, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under the last foregoing section to institute a suit for the recovery from the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

[B. B., s 126] Section 183

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

156. When land is sub-let, and any conflict arises under this chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Section 184

Distraint of property which is under attachment.

157. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail; but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid to the owner of the property under section 152 without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

Suit for compensation for wrongful distraint.

158. No appeal shall lie from any order passed by a Civil Court under this chapter; but any person whose property is distrained on an application made under section 140 in any case in which such an application is not permitted by section 139 may institute a suit against the applicant for the recovery of compensation.

CHAPTER XIV.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE.

Power to modify Civil Procedure Code in application to landlord and tenant suits.

159. (1) The High Court may, from time to time, with the approval of the Local Government, make rules declaring that any portions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to suits between landlord and tenant as such or to any specified classes of such suits, or shall apply to them subject to modifications specified in the rules. XIV of 1882

(2) Subject to any rules so made, and subject also to the other provisions of this Act, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to all such suits. XIV of 1882.

Section 188.

Jurisdiction in proceedings under Act.

160. (1) The cause of action in all suits between landlord and tenant as such shall, for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure, be deemed to have arisen within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the recovery of the land in respect of which the relation of landlord and tenant exists between the parties. XIV of 1882.

(2) When under this Act a Civil Court is authorized to make an order on the application of a landlord or a tenant, the application shall

(g) The Court may, when passing the decree, order on the oral application of the decree-holder the execution thereof, unless it is a decree for ejectment for arrears.

(h) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him.

XIV of 1882. [C. B., s. 198. B. B., s 220.] Section 200.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to third person.

164. (1) When a defendant admits that money is due from him on account of rent, but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Section 199.

(2) Where such a payment is made the Court shall forthwith cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person.

(3) Unless the third person within three months from the receipt of the notice institutes a suit against the plaintiff and therein obtains an order restraining payment out of the money, it shall be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to recover from the plaintiff, money paid to him under sub-section (3):

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to landlord.

165. When a defendant admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff on account of rent, but pleads that the amount claimed is in excess of the amount due, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Provision as to payment by instalments.

166. When a defendant is liable to pay money into Court under either of the last foregoing sections, if the Court thinks that there are sufficient reasons for ordering that the money be paid by instalments, it may take cognizance of the defendant's plea on his paying into Court such instalment as the Court directs.

Court to grant receipt.

167. When a defendant pays money into Court under either of the said sections, the Court shall give the defendant a receipt, and the receipt so given shall operate as an acquittance in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had been given by the plaintiff or the third person as the case may be.

Section 199 (2).

Appeals in rent-suits.

168. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal, in any suit instituted by a landlord for the recovery of rent where—

[D., § 179. C. B., ss. 157 & 220. B. B., ss. 173 & 242.] Section 198.

(a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIV.—Judicial Procedure. Secs. 169—172.)

(b) the decree or order is passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise final jurisdiction under this section, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed fifty rupees;

unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant:

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, if it appears that the judicial officer has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or has acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity; and may pass such order as the District Judge thinks fit.

Date from which decree for enhancement takes effect.

169. A decree for enhancement of rent under this Act, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of an agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next following; and, if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next but one following; but nothing in this section shall prevent the Court from fixing for special reasons a later date from which any such decree shall take effect.

[B B, ss 21 (c), 31, 44 & 45 Vic., C 41, s 14] Section 202.

Relief against forfeiture.

170. (1) A suit for the ejectment of a tenant, on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is under the terms of a contract between him and the landlord, liable to ejectment, shall not be entertained unless the landlord has requested the tenant, where the damage or breach is capable of remedy, to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the damage or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the damage or breach, and whether, in the opinion of the Court, the damage or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the damage or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

(3) The Court may, from time to time, for special reasons, extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2).

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the damage or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the damage or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

Rights of ejected raiyats in respect of crops and land prepared for sowing.

171. The following rules shall apply in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding:— [C B, s. 80 B B., s. 73.] Section 203.

(a) When the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment.

(b) When the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment, together with reasonable interest on that value.

(c) But a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section where, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage.

(d) If the landlord elects under this section to allow a raiyat to retain possession of the land, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectment may deem reasonable. [C B., s. 80, B. B, s 73] Section 204.

Adjustment of mutual claims in ejectment-proceedings.

172 (1) In all suits and proceedings for ejectment, the Court shall inquire into and determine all claims under this Act by the landlord against the tenant as such, or by the tenant against the landlord as such. Section 205.

(2) If it appears to the Court that the amount payable by the landlord to the tenant as such exceeds the amount payable by the tenant to the Section 206

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIV.—Judicial Procedure. Secs. 173 & 174).

(Chapter XV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree. Secs. 175—179.)

landlord as such, the decree or order for ejectment (if any) shall, unless the landlord and tenant come to an arrangement regarding the payment of the excess sum, specify a time within which it must be paid into Court.

(3) If it is so paid within the time specified, the Court shall eject the tenant; and if it is not so paid, the Court shall refuse to eject the tenant.

Power for Court to fix fair rent as alternative to ejectment.

173. When a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser he may, if he thinks fit, claim as alternative relief that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court, and the Court may grant such relief accordingly.

[C B., s. 151. B. B., s. 168.] Section 207.

Application to determine incidents of tenancy.

174. (1) The Court having jurisdiction to determine a suit for the recovery of land held by a tenant may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant, determine all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land held by the tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy-raiyat, or under raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether his rent is liable to enhancement; and

(c) the rent payable by him at the time of the application.

(2) If in the opinion of the Court any of these matters cannot be satisfactorily determined without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government by rule directs.

XIV of 1882.

(3) The order on any application under this section shall have the effect of and be subject to the like appeal as a decree.

CHAPTER XV.

SALE FOR ARREARS UNDER DECREE.

General powers of purchaser as to avoidance of incumbrances.

175. Where a transferable holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, the purchaser shall take subject to the interests defined in this chapter as 'protected interests', but with power to annul the interests defined in this chapter as 'incumbrances.'

Provided as follows:—

(a) a registered and notified incumbrance within the meaning of this chapter shall not be so annulled except in the case hereinafter mentioned in that behalf;

(b) the power to annul shall be exercisable only in manner by this chapter directed.

Protected interests.

176. The following shall be deemed to be protected interests within the meaning of this Chapter—

[D. §§ 12 (11) and 155 C B., ss. 226, Expl., & 210, B. B., ss 228. Expl., & 232.] Section 208 (1).

(a) any under-tenure existing from the time of the permanent settlement;

(b) any under-tenure recognized by the settlement proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(c) any lease of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals, places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made;

(d) any right of occupancy;

(e) any right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; and

(f) any right or interest which the landlord at whose instance the holding is sold, or his predecessor in title, has expressly and in writing given the tenant for the time being permission to create.

Meaning of "incumbrance" and "registered and notified incumbrance".

177. For the purposes of this Chapter—

(a) the term "incumbrance" used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created by the tenant on his holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a protected interest as defined in the last foregoing section.

Section 208, (1).

(b) The term "registered and notified incumbrance" used with reference to a holding sold or liable to sale in execution of a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect thereof, means an incumbrance created by an instrument registered under the Indian Registration Act, 1877, and of which a copy has, not less than three months before the accrual of the arrear, been served on the landlord in manner hereinafter provided.

[C. B., s. 206 Expl. B. B., s. 228 Expl.] Section 208 (2). III of 1877.

Application for sale of holding.

178. When a decree has been passed for an arrear of rent due for a transferable holding, and the decree-holder applies under section 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the attachment and sale of the holding in execution of the decree, he shall produce a statement of the annual rent of the holding, and, if the holding is a permanent tenure, a copy of so much of the register kept under Chapter III of this Act as relates to the tenure.

[C. B., s. 201. B. B., s. 223.] Section 209. XIV of 1882.

Proclamation announcing sale.

179. (1) When an order has been passed for the sale of a holding upon an application made under the last foregoing section,

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree. Secs. 180—186.)

the proclamation made under section 287 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in addition to stating and specifying the particulars mentioned in that section, announce—

XIV of 1882.

(a) in the case of a tenure, that the tenure will first be put up to auction subject to the registered and notified incumbrances and will be sold subject to those incumbrances if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, and that otherwise it will, if the decree-holder so desires, be sold on a subsequent day, of which due notice will be given, with power to annul all incumbrances; and

(b) in the case of an occupancy-holding, that the holding will be sold with power to annul all incumbrances.

(2) The proclamation shall, besides being made in the manner prescribed by section 289 of the said Code, be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf.

[C. B., s. 206. B. B., s. 228 (a) and Expl.] Section 211.

Sale of tenure subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and effect thereof.

180. (1) When a tenure has been advertised for sale under the last foregoing section, it shall be put up to auction, subject to registered and notified incumbrances; and, if the bidding reaches a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, including the costs of sale, the tenure shall be sold subject to such incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may in manner provided by section 184, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance upon the tenure not being a registered and notified incumbrance.

[C. B., s. 207. B. B., s. 229 (a) Section 212 (1).

Sale of tenure with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

181. (1) If the bidding for a tenure put up to auction under the last foregoing section does not reach a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs as aforesaid, and if the decree-holder thereupon desires that the tenure be sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, the officer holding the sale shall adjourn the sale and make a fresh proclamation under section 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, announcing that the tenure will be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances upon a future day specified therein, not less than fifteen or more than thirty days from the date of the postponement; and upon that day the tenure shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

Sale of occupancy-holding with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

183. (1) When an occupancy-holding has been advertised for sale under section 179, it shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may in manner provided by section 184, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the holding.

Section 214.

Procedure for annulling incumbrances under the foregoing sections.

184. (1) A purchaser having power to annul an incumbrance under any of the foregoing sections and desiring to annul the same, may, within one year from the date on which he first has notice of the incumbrance, present to the Collector an application in writing, requesting him to serve on the incumbrancer, a notice declaring that the incumbrance is annulled.

(2) Every such application must be accompanied by such fee for the service of the notice as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf.

(3) When an application for a service of a notice is made to the Collector in manner prescribed by this section, he shall cause the notice to be served in compliance therewith, and the incumbrance shall be deemed to be annulled from the date on which it is so served.

[B. B., s. 225 (c).] Section 215.

Power to direct that occupancy-holdings to be dealt with under foregoing sections as tenures.

185. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that occupancy-holdings or any specified class of occupancy-holdings in any local area put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent due on them shall, before being put up with power to avoid all incumbrances, be put up subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and may by like notification rescind any such direction.

(2) While any such direction remains in force in respect of any local area, all occupancy-holdings, or, as the case may be, occupancy-holdings of the specified class in that local area, shall, for the purposes of sale under the foregoing sections of this chapter, be treated in all respects as if they were tenures.

[D. § 246. C. B., s. 211. B. B., s. 233 Section 216.

Rules for disposal of the sale proceeds

186. (1) In disposing of the proceeds of a sale under this chapter, the following rules, instead of those prescribed by section 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be observed, that is to say:—

XIV of 1882.

(a) There shall first be paid to the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the holding to sale.

(b) There shall, in the next place, be paid to the decree-holder the amount due to him under the decree in execution of which the sale was made.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XVI.—Summary Sale for Arrears. Sec. 194.)

(c) If there remains a balance after these sums have been paid, there shall be paid to the decree-holder therefrom any rent which may have fallen due to him in respect of the holding between the institution of the suit and the date of the sale, but not more than six months after the date of the final decree.

(d) The balance (if any) remaining after the payment of the rent mentioned in clause (c) shall, upon the expiration of two months from the confirmation of the sale, be paid to the judgment-debtor upon his application.

(2) If the judgment debtor disputes the decree-holder's right to receive any sum on account of rent under clause (c), the Court shall determine the dispute, and the determination shall have the force of a decree.

Holding to be released from attachment only on payment into Court of amount of decree with costs, or on confession of satisfaction by decree holder.

187. (1) Sections 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.

(2) When an order for the sale of a holding in execution of such a decree has been made, the holding shall not be released from attachment unless, before it is knocked down to the auction-purchaser, the amount of the decree, including the costs decreed, together with the costs incurred in order to the sale, is paid into Court, or the decree-holder makes an application for the release of the holding on the ground that the decree has been satisfied out of Court.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to institute a suit to set aside the sale of a holding under this Chapter.

Amount paid into Court to prevent sale to be in certain cases a mortgage-debt on the holding.

188. (1) When any person having, in a holding advertized for sale under this chapter, an interest which would be voidable upon the sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale,

(a) the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt bearing interest at twelve per cent. per annum and secured by a mortgage of the holding to him;

(b) his mortgage shall take priority of every other charge on the holding other than a charge for arrear of rent; and

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled.

Inferior tenant paying into Court may deduct from rent.

189. When a holding is advertised for sale under this chapter in execution of a decree against a superior tenant defaulting, and an inferior tenant, whose interest would be voidable upon the sale, pays money into Court in order to prevent the sale, he may, in addition to any other remedy provided for him by law, deduct the whole or any portion of the amount so paid from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord; and, that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, may in like manner deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

XIV of 1882. [C. B., s. 208 (1). B B., s. 230 (1).] Section 220

Decree-holder may bid at sale; judgment debtor may not.

190. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the holder of a decree in execution of which a holding is sold under this chapter may, without the permission of the Court, bid for or purchase the holding.

(2) The judgment-debtor shall not bid for or purchase a holding so sold.

XIV of 1882. Section 221.

Operation of sections 313 and 326 of Code of Civil Procedure excluded.

191. Sections 313 and 326 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sale under this Chapter.

Section 222.

Registration of certain instruments creating incumbrances.

192. Notwithstanding anything contained in Part IV of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, an instrument creating an incumbrance upon any transferable holding which has been executed before the commencement of this Act, and is not required by section 17 of the said Registration Act to be registered, shall be accepted for registration under that Act if it is presented for that purpose to the proper officer within one year from the commencement of this Act.

III of 1877.

[C. B., s. 206. Expl. B.B., s. 2. Expl.] Section 223

Notification of incumbrances to landlord.

193. Every officer who has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, registered an instrument executed by a tenant of a transferable holding and creating an incumbrance on the holding, shall, at the request of the tenant or of the person in whose favour the incumbrance is created, and on payment by him of such fee as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, notify the incumbrance to the landlord by causing a copy of the instrument to be served on him in the manner prescribed in Part VII of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, for the service of summons.

CHAPTER XVI.

SUMMARY SALE FOR ARREARS.

Sale of patni tenures.

Sale of patni tenures.

[D., § 135 C. B., s 133 B. B., s. 147.] Section 42.

Right of proprietor to recover arrears from patnidár by summary sale.

194. If default is made in payment of the rent due in respect of a patni tenure held immediately from a proprietor, the proprietor may, in addition to any other remedy given him by law, apply for the summary sale of the tenure in accordance with the rules contained in the following sections of this Chapter.

(Chapter XVI.—Summary Sale for Arrears. Secs. 195—200.)

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 8, cl. (2). Schedule III.

195. (1) On the first day of Baisákh, that is, at the commencement of the following year from that for which the rent is due, the proprietor may present a petition to the Collector, containing a specification of any balances that may be due to him on account of the expired year, in respect of all or any of the tenures described in the last foregoing section.

Application for sale at beginning of year.

(2) The petition shall then be stuck up in some conspicuous part of the Collector's office, with a notice that if the amount claimed is not paid before the first of Jeth following, the tenures of the defaulters will on that day be sold by public sale in liquidation.

(3) The proprietor shall cause a similar notice to be stuck up at his own sadr kachari and a copy or extract of such part of the notice as applies to the individual case to be sent and similarly published at the kachari at which the principal business of the tenure is transacted, or at the principal town or village on the land of the defaulter's tenure.

(4) The proprietor shall be exclusively answerable for the observance of the forms prescribed by this section.

196. (1) The notice required to be sent into the mufassal shall be served by a single peon, who shall bring back the receipt of the defaulter, or of his manager, for the same; or, in the event of inability to procure this, the signatures of three substantial persons residing in the neighbourhood, in attestation of the notice having been brought and published on the spot.

Service of notice.

(2) If the people of the village object or refuse to sign their names in attestation, the peon shall go to the office of the nearest munsif, or, if there should be no munsif, to the nearest police-station, and there make voluntary oath of the same having been duly published. A certificate to this effect shall be signed and sealed by the said officers and delivered to the peon.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 8, cl. (3). Schedule III.

197. On the first day of Kártik, in the middle of the year, the proprietor may present a similar petition, with a statement of any balances that may be due on account of the rent of the current year, up to the end of the month of Asin, and to cause similar publication to be made of a sale of the tenures of defaulters, to take place on the first day of Aghan, unless the whole of the advertised balance is paid before the date in question, or so much of it as will reduce the arrear, including any intermediate demand for the month of Kártik, to less than one-fourth or a four-anna proportion of the total demand of the proprietor, according to the kistbandí, calculated from the commencement of the year to the last day of Kártik.

Application for sale in middle of year.

198. (1) When a notice has been issued under the foregoing sections in respect of an arrear alleged to be due by a tenure-holder, the tenure-holder may, at any time before the day fixed therein for the sale of the tenure, present to the Collector a petition contesting the demand wholly or in part.

Proceedings when tenure-holder contests demand.

(2) The Collector on receiving a petition under sub-section (1) shall issue a summons to the proprietor requiring him to appear at a time and place specified therein, and show cause why the sale should not be stayed or the amount of the demand reduced, as the case may be, and shall, if practicable, hear the parties or such of them as appear, and determine the issues between them before the time fixed for the sale.

(3) If before the time fixed for the sale the Collector decides that no part of the arrear claimed is due, he shall dismiss the proprietor's application.

(4) If before that time he decides that any part of the arrear claimed is not due he shall reduce the demand accordingly, and his decision shall for the purposes of the proceedings under this chapter be conclusive.

(5) In cases not provided for by sub-sections (3) and (4) the tenure-holder's petition shall be dismissed, but such dismissal shall not affect his right to institute a suit to set aside the sale.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 14.

199. Except as provided by the last foregoing section, a tenure in respect of which a notice has been issued under the foregoing sections shall be sold on the day fixed by the notice unless before sunset of the previous day the amount of the demand, or, when that amount has been reduced under the last foregoing section, the reduced amount has been deposited in the Collector's office by the defaulter or some other person for payment to the landlord.

Tenure to be sold unless arrear deposited.

Bengal Regulation. VIII of 1819, s. 10. Schedule IV.

200. (1) At the time of the sale, the notice previously stuck up in the kachari shall be taken down, and the lots be called up successively in the order in which they may be found in the notice.

Forms to be observed in case of sale.

(2) A person shall attend on the part of the proprietor with a particular statement of the payments made up to the day of sale, on account of the balance of each advertised lot, with the receipt for, or certificate of, the notice directed to be published in the mufassal.

(3) No lot shall be put up to sale until the statement produced has been inspected, and the existence of a balance for the year ascertained therefrom, nor until the receipt for the notice has been read. The observance of these forms shall be recorded in a separate rubakari to be held upon each lot sold.

(4) If the sale is under a petition presented on the first day of Kártik the Kistbandí of the defaulter shall likewise be produced, in order that it may be seen that the balance remaining unpaid exceeds a four-anna proportion of the demand up to the date of sale; and the sale shall not take place unless this is ascertained.

(7) The proprietor shall be exclusively responsible for the correctness and authenticity of the papers to be thus exhibited, and the officer making the sale shall not be answerable in any respect, except for its fairness and publicity, and for the observance of the rules prescribed for his guidance in this Chapter.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 9. Schedule III.

201. (1) All sales of tenures under this Chapter shall be made in public kachari.

Mode of conducting sale.

(2) The land shall be sold to the highest bidder, and every one except the defaulter shall be free to bid.

(3) Fifteen per cent. of the purchase-money shall be paid immediately the lot is knocked down

(4) The officer conducting the sale may refuse to accept a bid, or to knock down a lot to any bidder, unless he has assurance to his satisfaction that the amount required to be deposited is in hand for the purpose, or will be produced within two hours.

(5) If the fifteen per cent. is not paid in cash within two hours of the sale, or an equivalent amount in Government securities is not lodged, the lot shall be resold on the same day.

(6) If the remainder of the purchase-money is not paid by noon of the eighth day, notice shall be given of resale on the following day, that is, on the ninth from the first sale, by proclaiming the same by beat of drum through the bázár of the sadr station of the district.

(7) The lot shall then be resold at the appointed time at the risk of the first purchaser, who shall forfeit the advance of fifteen per cent. already made, and be further answerable for any sum in which the proceeds of the second sale may fall short of the antecedent sale; such deficiency to be levied by the process for the execution of decrees of the Civil Courts.

shall be applied to sale, and the surplus ent.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 15. Schedule III.

202. (1) When the entire amount of the purchase-money has been paid in by the purchaser of a tenure under this chapter, the Collector shall grant him a certificate of the payment.

Title of purchaser.

(2) Thereupon the purchaser shall acquire the tenure with power to avoid, in manner prescribed by section 184 for the avoidance of incumbrances, all liens, sub-tenancies, easements and other rights or interests created on the tenure by the tenure holder or any of his predecessors in interest or any person claiming under him or them, except—

(a) a right of occupancy;

(b) a right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; or

(c) any right or interest created under a power expressly conferred by the written instrument by which the tenure was created.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 15. Schedule III.

203. When the purchaser of a tenure under this chapter has obtained a certificate in respect of the same under the last foregoing section, and the transfer of the tenure to him has been registered under Chapter III, he may apply to the Collector to put him in possession of the tenure, and the Collector shall thereupon put him in possession of the same, and for this purpose shall exercise all the powers conferred by the Code of Civil Procedure on a Civil Court giving possession to a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree.

Purchaser to be put in possession.

XIV of 1882.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 13. Schedule III

204. When any person having in a tenure advertized for sale under this chapter an interest which would be voidable upon such sale deposits in the Collector's office the amount requisite under section 199 to prevent the sale, the provisions of section 188 shall apply, and if the person is a tenant inferior to the tenure-holder the the provisions of section 189 shall also apply, as if the tenure was a holding advertized for sale under Chapter XV, and the payment had been made into Court to prevent the sale.

Recovery of money deposited by person interested to stay sale.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 14 Schedule III.

205. (1) Any person aggrieved by a sale of a tenure effected under cover of the provisions of this chapter but not warranted by those provisions may institute a suit against the proprietor, at whose instance the sale was effected, to set aside the sale and recover compensation for the damage caused to him thereby.

Suit to set aside sale.

(2) The purchaser of the tenure shall be made a party to the suit, and shall, if the sale is set aside, be entitled to recover in the suit from the proprietor compensation for the damage (if any) suffered by him.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XVII.—Contract and Custom. Secs. 210—213.)

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 17, cls. (5) and (6). Schedule III.

Suit for compensation by person whose interest becomes voidable in consequence of sale.

206. When a tenure has been sold under this chapter, any person having an interest therein which is under section 202 voidable by the purchaser may, within two months from the date of the sale, institute a suit against the defaulter to recover compensation for the damage caused to him by the sale:

Provided that no such suit shall be maintainable by any tenant inferior to the defaulter if at the time of the sale any arrear of rent was due from him.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 17. Schedule III.

Disposals of proceeds of sales.

207. (1) The proceeds of a sale under this chapter shall be dealt with as follows, namely:—

(a) One per cent. shall first be deducted from the proceeds, and shall be carried to the account of the Government, for the purpose of meeting the expense of any extra establishments which it may be necessary to maintain for carrying into effect the provisions of this chapter.

(b) The arrear on account of which the sale may have been made (with interest and all charges incurred in bringing the tenure to sale) shall next be paid to the landlord.

(c) The balance (if any) remaining after the payments prescribed by clauses (a) and (b) shall be forthwith sent by the officer conducting the sale to the Treasury of the Collector, to be there retained in deposit to answer the claims of persons who may obtain decrees for compensation under section 206, until the expiration of two months from the date of the sale, and if within that period any suits are instituted under that section, until all such suits have been finally decided.

(d) The balance retained under clause (c) shall be applied in the first instance to the payment of the amounts of the decrees (if any) passed against the defaulter under section 206, being distributed rateably among the decree-holders according to the amounts of those decrees, when it is insufficient to discharge those amounts in full.

(e) The residue (if any) of the said balance shall be payable to the defaulter.

(2) Any person interested in money deposited under clause (c) may withdraw the whole or any part thereof, on substituting Government securities, bearing interest, in lieu of the money so held in deposit; such securities to be taken at the rate of discount or premium of the day, as shown by the Government Gazette last received.

Provision as to Sundays and holidays.

208. When any day specified in this chapter is a Sunday or holiday anything required or authorized under this chapter to be done on that day may be done on the next following day not being a Sunday or holiday.

Sale of other tenures.

Sale of other tenures

Modified application of Chapter to other registered tenures.

209. If provision is made by law for the registration in a public register of any tenures other than those saleable under the foregoing sections of this chapter, those sections shall, subject to such modifications as the Local Government from time to time by rule prescribes, apply to the tenures so registered.

CHAPTER XVII.

CONTRACT AND CUSTOM.

Provisions to take effect notwithstanding contract.

210. The provisions of this Act in respect of the following matters shall take effect notwithstanding any contract to the contrary:

(a) The acquisition of the status of a settled raiyat and of the occupancy-right (sections 24, 25 and 26).

(b) The incidents of the occupancy-right specified in section 31.

(c) The right of an occupancy-raiyat to demand a reduction of rent under section 51.

(d) The right of either landlord or tenant to demand a commutation of a produce rent under section 53.

(e) The protection afforded by the Act to a non-occupancy-raiyat and an under raiyat from ejectment except on specified grounds (sections 58, 59, 60 and 63).

(f) The right of a tenant to a reduction of rent on account of the diminution of the area of his holding (section 66).

(g) The right of the raiyat to make improvements and claim compensation for them (sections 88, 89, 90 and 93).

(h) The protection afforded to all tenants against ejectment except in execution of a decree (section 98).

Permanent mukarrarí leases.

211. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a landlord in a permanently-settled area from granting a permanent mukarrarí lease an any terms agreed on between him and his tenant.

Contracts for reclamation.

212. Nothing in this Act shall affect any contract for the reclamation of waste land.

Chur and dearah lands.

213. (1) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, a raiyat holding land of the kind known as chur or dearah, that is to say, land ordinarily liable to improvement or deterioration by fluvial action, shall not acquire a right of occupancy in the land until he has held the land for twelve continuous years; and, until he acquires a right of occupancy in the land, shall be liable to pay such rent for his holding as may be agreed on between him and his landlord.

(2) But the Court may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant, declare that any land has ceased to be chur or dearah land within the meaning of this section, and thereupon all the provisions of this Act shall apply to the land.

Utbundi and hal-hasili systems.

214. Nothing in this Act shall affect the conditions, customary or otherwise, under which land is held on either of the systems known as the "utbundi" system and the "hal-hasili" system.

Section 226.

Saving as to service-tenures.

215. Nothing in this Act shall affect any incident of a ghátwálí or other service-tenure, or, in particular, shall confer a right to transfer or bequeath a service-tenure which, before the passing of this Act, was not capable of being transferred or bequeathed.

Section 85.

Homesteads.

216. When a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the incidents of his tenancy of the homestead shall be regulated by local custom.

Saving of custom.

217. Nothing in this Act shall affect any custom or customary right not inconsistent with, or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, its provisions.

Illustration.

[C. B., s. 19. Expl. 4 (f), B. B., s. 19, Expl. 4 (e), Proviso.] Section 4.

The custom that an under-raiyat should, under certain circumstances, acquire a right of occupancy is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That custom accordingly, wherever it exists, will not be affected by this Act.

CHAPTER XVIII.

LIMITATION.

[B., §§ 77, 78 & 79. C. B., s. 92. B. B., s. 98.] Section 224.

Limitation in suits, appeals and applications in Schedule IV.

218. (1) The suits, appeals and applications specified in Schedule IV annexed to this Act shall be instituted and made within the time prescribed in that schedule for them respectively; and every such suit or appeal instituted, and application made, after the period of limitation so prescribed, shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been pleaded.

(2) Nothing in this section shall revive the right to institute any suit or appeal or make any application which would have been barred by limitation if it had been instituted or made immediately before the commencement of this Act.

Portions of the Indian Limitation Act not applicable to such suits, &c.

219. Sections 7, 8 and 9 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall not apply to the suits and applications mentioned in section 218.

XV of 1877. [C. B., s. 93. B. B., s. 99.] Section 225.

CHAPTER XIX.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Penalties.

[B. B., ss. 91, 122.]

Penalties for illegal interference with produce.

220. (1) If any person, otherwise than in accordance with this Act or some other enactment for the time being in force,

(a) distrains or attempts to distrain the produce of a tenant's holding, or

(b) resists a distraint duly made under this Act, or forcibly or clandestinely removes any property duly distrained under this Act, or

(c) except with the authority or consent of the tenant, prevents or attempts to prevent the reaping, gathering, storing, removing or otherwise dealing with any produce of a holding,

he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

XLV of 1860.

(2) Any person who abets within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code the doing of any act mentioned in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have abetted the commission of criminal trespass within the meaning of that Code.

Agents and representatives of landlords.

Agents and representatives of landlords. Section 229.

Power for landlord to act through agent.

221. (1) Any appearance, application or act, in, before or to any Court or authority, required or authorized by this Act to be made or done by a landlord, may, unless the Court or authority otherwise directs, be made or done also by an agent of the landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord.

(2) Every notice required by this Act to be served on, or given to, a landlord shall, if served on, or given to, an agent of the landlord empowered as aforesaid to accept service of or receive the same, be as effectual for the purposes of this Act as if it had been served on, or given to, the landlord in person.

(3) Every document required by this Act to be signed or certified by a landlord, except an instrument appointing or authorizing an agent, may be signed or certified by an agent of the landlord authorized in writing in that behalf.

Joint-landlords to act collectively or by common agent.

222. Where two or more persons are joint-landlords, anything which the landlord is under this Act required or authorized to do must be done either by both or all those persons acting together, or by an agent authorized to act on behalf of both or all of them.

Powers of Revenue-officers.

Powers of Revenue-officers. Section 227.

223. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the procedure to be followed by Revenue-officers in the discharge of any duty imposed upon them by or under this Act, and may by such rules confer upon any such officer—

Power to make rules regarding procedure and powers of officers.

(a) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits;

(b) power to enter upon any land, and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same; and

(c) power to cut and thresh the crops on any land and weigh the produce, with a view to estimating the capabilities of the soil.

Rules.

Rules Section 228.

224. (1) Every authority having power to make rules under any section of this Act shall, before making the rules, publish a draft of the proposed rules for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

Procedure for making, publication and confirmation of rules.

(2) The publication shall be made, in the case of rules made by the Local Government or High Court, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, and in the case of rules made by any other authority, in the prescribed manner: Provided that every such draft shall be published in the official Gazette.

(3) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date, not earlier than the expiration of one month after the date of publication, at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration.

(4) The authority shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(5) The publication in the official Gazette of a rule purporting to be made under this Act shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

Provisions as to temporarily-settled districts.

Provisions as to temporarily-settled districts. [C B., ss. 6, Excep., & 17, Exception B B., ss. 6, Excep., & 16, Exception.] Section 26.

225. Where the area comprised in a tenure is situate in an estate which has never been permanently settled, nothing in this Act shall prevent the enhancement of the rent upon the expiration of a temporary settlement of the revenue, unless the right to hold beyond the term of the settlement at a fixed rate of rent has been expressly recognized in settlement-proceedings by a Revenue-authority empowered by the Government to make definitively or confirm settlements.

Saving as to land held in a district not permanently settled.

226. When a landlord grants a lease, or makes any other contract, purporting to entitle the tenant of land not included in an area permanently settled to hold that land free of rent or at a fixed rent, and while the lease or contract is in force— [D., § 42] Section 12

Power to alter rent in case of new assessment of revenue.

(a) land-revenue is for the first time made payable in respect of the land, or

(b) land-revenue having been previously payable in respect of it, a fresh settlement of land-revenue is made, a Revenue-officer may, notwithstanding anything in the contract between the parties, by order, on the application of the landlord or of the tenant, fix a fair and equitable rent for the land in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Rights of pasturage, &c.

227. The provisions of this Act applicable to suits for the recovery of arrears of rent shall, as far as may be, apply to suits for the recovery of anything payable or deliverable in respect of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, rights over fisheries and the like. [D., § 82 C. B., s. 3. B B., s. 8 "Rent" a "land." Section 2

Extract from Preamble to Regulation VIII of 1819.

"In the exercise of the privilege * * * conceded to zamíndárs under direct engagements with Government, there has been created a tenure which had its origin on the estates of the Rájá of Bardwán, but has since been extended to other zamíndárís; the character of which tenure is, that it is a taluq created by the zamíndár, to be held at a rent fixed in perpetuity, by the lessee and his heirs for ever; the tenant is called upon to furnish collateral security for the rent, and for his conduct generally, or he is excused from this obligation at the zamíndár's discretion; but even if the original tenant be excused, still, in case of sale for arrears, or other operation leading to the introduction of another tenant, such new incumbent has always in practice been liable to be so called upon at the option of the zamíndár.

"By the terms also of the engagements interchanged, it is, amongst other stipulations, provided that, in case of an arrear occurring, the tenure may be brought to sale by the zamíndár, and if the sale do not yield a sufficient amount to make good the balance of rent at the time due, the remaining property of the defaulter shall be further answerable for the demand.

"These tenures have usually been denominated patní taluqs, and it has been a common practice of the holders of them to underlet on precisely similar terms to other persons who, on taking such leases, went by the name of darpatní taluqdárs: these, again, sometimes similarly underlet to be patnídárs; and the conditions of all the title-deeds vary in nothing material from the original engagements executed by the first holder."

SCHEDULE IV.

LIMITATION.

(See Section 218.)

PART I.—Suits.

Description of Suit.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
1 To eject any tenure-holder or raiyat on account of any breach of a condition in respect of which there is a contract expressly providing that ejectment shall be the penalty of such breach.	One year	The date of the breach.
2 For the recovery of an arrear of rent—
(a) when the arrear fell due before a deposit was made on account of the rent of the same holding under section 73.	Six months	The date of the deposit.
(b) in other cases	Three years	The last day of the Bengali year in which the arrear fell due, where that year prevails, and the last day of the month of Jeyt of the Amli or Fasli year in which the arrear fell due, where either of those years prevails.
3 To recover possession of land claimed by the plaintiff as an occupancy-raiyat.	Two years	The date of dispossession.

PART II.—Appeals.

Description of Appeal.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
4. From any decree or order under this Act to the Court of a District Judge or Special Judge.	Thirty days	The date of the decree or order appealed against
5. From any order of a Collector under this Act to the Commissioner.	Thirty days	The date of the order appealed against.

PART III.—Applications.

Description of Application.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
6. For the execution of a decree or order made under this Act, or any Act repealed by this Act, and not being a decree for a sum of money exceeding Rs. 500, exclusive of any interest which may have accrued after decree upon the sum decreed, but inclusive of the costs of executing such decree, except where the judgment-debtor has by fraud or force prevented the execution of the decree.	Three years	(1) The date of the decree or order; or (2) where there has been an appeal, date of the final decree or order of the Appellate Court, or (3) where there has been a review of judgment, the date of the decision passed on the review.

Dissents.

I DISSENT from the report of the majority of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill.

The Committee commenced their sittings from the 21st November, 1883, and concluded their labours on the 13th March, 1884. They first met twice a week, and the members were required to give forty-eight hours' notice of amendments to be moved by them. From the 26th January the Committee resolved to sit thrice a week from 2 P. M. to 5-30 P.M.; and notices of amendments were required to be sent in to the Secretary the day before the meeting; and the amendments were circulated on the morning of the meeting. The new arrangement was proposed owing to the amount of work which remained undone, and also owing to the near approach of the Simla season; but I cannot refrain from remarking that, apart from personal inconvenience which it necessarily involved, it left the members scant time, scarcely ten hours, for the preparation of amendments, and six hours for their study, even if one gave his whole time to this work. I considered it my duty to protest against the arrangement, as it was neither fair to the individual members of the Committee, particularly to one in my position, being deprived of the opportunity of consulting those whose views I was understood to represent, nor to the momentous interests involved, but my protest was of no avail. The Committee certainly gave their best attention under the circumstances mentioned to the matters before them, and, as far as I was concerned, shewed me the utmost courtesy and consideration, but there was an unavoidable haste in disposing of momentous questions at the last moment, which could not but be regretted.

I wish the Rules of the Council had permitted the Committee to examine witnesses on practical questions connected with the Bill. The Committee, I doubt not, felt the necessity of this power. At the suggestion of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor the Committee in an informal way examined some experienced zamíndárs on the subject of sub-letting.

The Bill has undergone material alterations at the hands of the Committee, but its cardinal principles remain unchanged. In some respects the position of the zamíndárs has been made worse than what it was in the original Bill. On some minor points even-handed justice has been done to both the zamíndár and the raiyat. The middle-man of course gains much more than what he has under the existing law, but the boná-fide cultivator, in whose behalf the greatest anxiety was evinced in the Committee, will, I fear, be practically worse off than he is at present. I do not now wish to discuss the whole Bill, and will not therefore enter into details on these points.

My objections to the Bill have been principally based on these grounds, firstly, because it goes against the ancient and existing land-law of the country, taking away on the one hand and conferring on the other rights which are inconsistent with that law; secondly, because it assumes a construction of the Regulations, which is opposed to judicial decisions, and takes for granted statements and facts not supported by evidence; thirdly, because it does not fulfil the primary object for which it was originally sought, namely, the simplification of the procedure for the settlement and realization of rent; fourthly, because it is calculated to sow dispute and dissension between the landlord and the tenant and flood the land with litigation to the detriment of the peace and welfare of the agricultural community; fifthly, because it will tend to reduce a large proportion of cultivating raiyats into agricultural day-labourers; and sixthly, because, by abolishing the freedom of contract between the landlord and the tenant, and by making the Court and the Revenue-officer the referee and arbiter in all matters of zamíndárí management and raiyatí action, it will neutralize the vital principle of self-reliance in the agricultural population and destroy its backbone, hamper the free operation of economic laws, and stereotype the patriarchal phase of Government with the aggravating evil of litigation at almost every step. These objections, which I took when the Bill was introduced last year, have not, I am sorry to say, been removed by the alterations made by the Select Committee.

In specifying my objections to the Bill I do not propose to discuss it chapter by chapter or to traverse all its details. I propose to confine myself to the leading principles of the Bill and a few principal details.

Tenure-holders.

IN addition to the present class of persons who are recognised as tenure-holders, two other classes have been introduced, namely, (1) occupancy-raiyats who may sub-let more than half their holdings (section 37), and (2) raiyats, the area of whose holdings may exceed 100 standard bíghás, the whole or part of which is sub-let; in this case the tenant will be presumed to be a tenure-holder unless the contrary is shown (section 5, sub-section 5). In the case of the first-mentioned person, who is called a converted tenure-holder, all the incidents of the status of a tenure-holder will hold good except his liability to enhancement of rent. A tenant of the last-mentioned class will be entitled to all the rights and privileges of a tenure-holder. With regard to the first, I cannot understand with what justice is an occupancy-raiyat exempted from his obligations under the Bill as to pre-emption and distraint, and the zamíndár in so far placed in a worse position, because the occupancy-raiyat chooses to sub-let more than half his holding. The conversion of an occupancy-raiyat of a holding, the area of which exceeds 100 bíghás, into a tenure-holder, is, in my opinion, still more arbitrary. The status of a tenure-holder carries certain privileges, which the occupancy-raiyat does not possess, and for which, generally, a valuable consideration is paid to the zamíndár. For instance, a tenure is not, unfrequently, a permanent holding, heritable and transferable according to conditions of contract, and, under the present Bill, will enjoy favoured rates of rent and will be exempt from the rules of pre-emption and distraint. Surely, it cannot be contended that the conversion of the hundred-bighá jotedar into a tenure-holder under an edict of the legislature is consistent with the ancient or existing land-law of the country. In so far, it is a direct encroachment upon the rights of the proprietary class.

Then as to enhancement of rent of tenure-holders, section 8 of Regulation V of 1812 contained the following rule as to the rate at which auction-purchasers might collect:—"In the case of a dependant taluqdár, if the rent of the lands be computed according to the rates payable by raiyats or cultivators for land of a similar quality and description, a deduction shall be allowed from the gross rent in the adjustment of the jama of such dependant taluq at the rate of 10 per cent., for the taluqdár's profit or income, over and above a reasonable allowance for charges of collection according to the extent of the taluq." This section was repealed by Act X of 1859, which, however, contains no rule as to the grounds or limits of enhancement of the rent of tenure-holders and under-tenure-holders. But under case-law the rent may be enhanced up to the limit of the prevailing rate payable by the holders of similar tenures in the neighbourhood, or where no such prevailing rate is easily ascertainable, up to such a limit as shall not exceed 10 per centum of the collections after deducting the expenses of collection (vide Field's Digest). This case-law has been embodied in the present Bill, but with wide variations. For instance "customary rate" has been substituted for "prevailing rate", though the former is less easily ascertainable than the latter. Under the case-law the margin left to the tenure-holder as profit was not to exceed 10 per cent. of the collections, but under the Bill it is to be not less than 10 per cent. of the balance which may remain after deducting, not from the collections, which I take to be actual collections, but from the gross rents, not only the expenses but also "risks of collection". I may observe, I am not aware of any revenue-law under which an allowance is made for "risks of collection". Even the zamíndárs are not allowed any percentage for sums irrecoverable from raiyats on account of the Public Works and Road Cesses, though the liability is not their own, and though they collect the money for Government without any remuneration. It will be thus seen in what advantageous position is the tenure-holder placed under the present Bill compared with his position under the existing law. But this is not all. Under the existing law the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to be enhanced to any reasonable amount, but under the Bill the enhanced rent is not to be more than double the previous rent; under the existing law the enhanced rent is to be paid at once, but under the Bill the Court may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual and payable in five years; under the existing law there is no limit of period as to enhancement of rent, but under the Bill the period is limited to ten years. I allude to the last three provisions to show that while so little consideration has been shown to the zamíndár, who is the proprietor of the land, and who is responsible for Government revenue under the stern sun-set law, so much tenderness has been shown to the tenure-holder who is generally looked upon as an idle factor. Surely this is not the way to discourage sub-letting.

Raiyats at fixed rates.

FOR the first time a legal presumption was introduced by Act X of 1859 to the effect that if the rent of a raiyat had not been changed for a period of twenty years before the commencement of a suit, it shall be presumed that the land has been held at that rent from the date of the Permanent Settlement. Whatever the necessity of such a provision at the time of passing Act X of 1859, that necessity, it cannot be denied, no longer exists. The raiyats have advanced in intelligence and independence, and the practice of granting printed rent-receipts has become common in many parts of the country. They do not, therefore, now stand in need of the same measure of protection against enhancement which was considered necessary in 1859. On the contrary, the effect of this provision has been disastrous to the zamíndár. The Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds drew attention to this point in his memorandum on the Bill of the Rent Commission. He quoted several opinions showing that the law has thrown "an unfair burden of proof upon the zamíndár", and that "it bears very hardly upon auction-purchasers who are often unable to get possession of the zamíndárí papers of their predecessors". This, Mr. Reynolds observes, is forcibly represented by the Collector of Purniyá, who believes that "there is hardly an estate in the whole of Bengal in which the value of the proprietary right has not suffered from this presumption". Without entirely abolishing the presumption Mr. Reynolds recommended that its operation should be confined to cases in which uniform payment could be proved for twenty years before the period when the presumption was first introduced into the law. He proposed a further concession in favour of auction-purchasers by providing that the presumption shall not be pleaded against them. In making these recommendations Mr. Reynolds remarked, "In determining the principle upon which the Legislature should act it would seem that the main point to be considered is the practical effect of the presumption which was introduced into the Act of 1859". Has this presumption generally operated to defeat an unjust claim on the part of the landlord, or to maintain the tenant in a status to which he was not rightfully entitled? It is believed that to this question there can be only one answer. In the great majority of the cases in which the presumption has been successfully pleaded, it has had the effect of conferring upon tenants, whose holdings really originated subsequently to 1793, a privilege which was intended to be confined to those who had held from the date of the Permanent Settlement. If this is really the case, it does not seem inequitable that the rule should be modified in the manner which has now been suggested.

Mr. Reynolds, I am sorry to say, has since changed his opinion, but the validity and justice of his opinion remain all the same. Relying upon it, I moved the amendment of the law to the effect originally proposed by Mr. Reynolds, but neither my motion nor a very much modified proposal to allow the twenty years to count from before the date of the passing of the present Bill was accepted by the majority of the Committee. The Bill thus describes the incidents of holding at fixed rates:

Section 23.—A raiyat holding at a fixed rent or rate of rent—

(a) shall be subject to the same provisions with respect to the transfer of, and succession to, his holding as a tenure-holder, and

(b) shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Coupling this provision with the twenty years' presumption referred to I cannot resist the conviction that it will tempt raiyats, whether entitled to the presumption or not, to declare themselves to be raiyats at fixed rates, and thus defraud the zamíndár of his just rights, who, if he be strong enough to assert them, must go through an expensive and harassing process of litigation to do so.

The intention of the Legislature in introducing this law of presumption was to protect raiyats holding from the date of the Permanent Settlement from arbitrary enhancement of rent by unscrupulous zamíndárs, but the continuance of this provision will, I fear, have the effect of converting by a side-wind every occupancy-raiyat into a mukarrarídár or permanent tenure-holder. The consequence of this provision to good and bad zamíndárs is also striking. Where a zamíndár from a dislike of litigation, forbearance, or sympathy, has not enhanced the rent of a raiyat for more than twenty years, the raiyat, who has been careful enough to preserve his rent-receipts, will easily prove his case, while a zamíndár, who has shewn no such consideration or leniency, who has not scrupled to trouble and harass the raiyat with periodic enhancement, will necessarily have a decided advantage. The result will be that the good zamíndár will suffer and the bad zamíndár will gain.

Occupancy-raiyats.

THE occupancy-raiyat of the modern time is notoriously a creature of Act X of 1859, but I do not wish to revive the controversy on the subject. The twelve years' rule has been in existence for more than a quarter of a century, and it cannot be fair or just to disturb it now. The only fault found with the present law on the subject is that if a zamíndár were so disposed he could defeat the growth of the occupancy-right by shifting the raiyat from field to field. This practice, it is admitted, is not known in Bengal. But the Secretary of State, whilst strongly expressing himself in favour of the present twelve years' rule of continuous possession, has recommended the following modification. He would provide that "every resident raiyat shall have a right of occupancy in the land which he occupies and pays rent for, and that a resident-raiyat shall be one who, or whose ancestor, has occupied any land in the village or estate for twelve years." I do not at all subscribe to the equitableness of this provision. I do not think that it is fair or just that a squatter, because allowed to hold land in one part of an estate for twelve years, should, ipso facto, be entitled to hold land in all other parts of the estate as an occupancy or privileged raiyat. If in any part of the country the zamíndár has sought to nullify the growth of occupancy-right by shifting the raiyat from one plot of land to another, he has, it cannot be denied, acted within the law, and it would be as unreasonable to suppose that he has acted wrongly as to suppose that a tradesman is wrong in suing his debtor before the time, which would, under the law of limitation, bar his claim. As for preventing shifting, if it should be deemed absolutely necessary, I would have preferred to punish such an act by imposing a heavy penalty. But the Committee ruled, that the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India having finally decided the question, they were not competent to re-open it, but I cannot help remarking that the Committee have gone further than the area covered by the Secretary of State's decision. The original Bill contained the following provisions regarding the acquisition of the status of a settled raiyat:—

Section 45.—Every person who, for a period of twelve years, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held, as a raiyat, raiyatí land situate in any village or estate, shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, and though the land so held by him at different times during that period may have been different, be deemed to become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

Again:

Section 47.—Every settled raiyat of a village or estate holding after the second day of March, 1883, as a raiyat, any raiyatí land comprised in that village or estate shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, be deemed to acquire or have acquired in that land a right of occupancy under the law for the time being in force.

At the instance of the Bengal Government the Committee have greatly extended the theory of the settled raiyat and created a new legal presumtion in his favour. Thus:

Section 25.—(1) Every settled raiyat of a village or estate shall have a right of occupancy in all land held by him as a raiyat in that village or estate;

(2) Every person who, being a settled raiyat of a village or estate, held land as a raiyat in that village or estate at any time between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in that land under the law then in force.

Section 26.—(1) Every person who, for a period of twelve years, whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held as a raiyat land situate in any village or estate, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village or estate;

(2) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed for the purposes of this section until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years held the land or some part of it as a raiyat.

(3) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held land continuously in a village or estate, notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times.

(4) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held as a raiyat any land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

(5) Land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyati holding shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been held as a raiyat by each such co-sharer.

(6) A person shall continue to be a settled raiyat of a village or estate as long as he holds any land as a raiyat in that village or estate and for one year thereafter.

(7) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 96, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat, notwithstanding his having been out of possession for more than a year.

These provisions, I submit, are wholly outside the decision of the Secretary of State. That authority would in no case reduce the period of occupation from twelve years as provided in section 25, sub-section (2), nor did he recommend any legal presumption that every raiyat shall be considered a settled raiyat with right of occupancy unless proved to the contrary. The Secretary of State, it would be observed, would recognise a "resident raiyat" as an occupancy-raiyat, but the provisions quoted above do not recognise residence as a condition of accrual of occupancy-right. In the second place, the Secretary of State does not refer to possession by two or more co-sharers as a proof of occupancy-right derived by each such co-sharer. In the third place, he does not say that, even if a settled raiyat leaves his holding and pays no rent, he shall be considered a settled raiyat "for one year thereafter". On the contrary, he declares payment of rent as an inalienable condition of the right. And lastly, the Secretary of State no where says that if a raiyat once abandons a holding and afterwards recovers possession by payment of compensation, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his being out of possession for more than a year. All these proposals, I repeat, are outside the sanction of the Secretary of State, and, as a matter of course, are so many encroachments upon the proprietary rights of the zamíndár.

It is observable that while a person holding land as a raiyat shall not be prevented from acquiring an occupancy-right in the land by reason that he is jointly interested in the land as proprietor or tenure-holder, and a person, though an ijárdár or farmer, shall not lose his right of occupancy in any land which he may subsequently hold in farm, it is declared that if the landlord acquires an occupancy-holding, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist (section 28). On what principle is this right denied to the landlord and conceded to the tenure-holder, who may be a permanent holder, and to the farmer, is not clear to me. It does seem strange and incomprehensible that the zamíndár alone shall not be allowed to enjoy the ordinary rights of a purchaser, simply because he happens to be a zamíndár.

On this point I venture to draw attention to the following remarks of Mr. H. L. Dampier, Senior Member of the Board of Revenue, deservedly regarded as a high fiscal authority in Bengal. He says: "It will be open to the whole world, with one exception only, to acquire by purchase or otherwise and to continue to hold certain rights described as occupancy-rights in a given piece of land. Such rights may be acquired and held by distant non-agricultural capitalists; by the zamíndárs of estates adjoining that within which the land lies; by the zamíndárs, resident or absentee, of the estate itself, if the land is included in a tenure; by any non-resident-holders of tenures, whether in the estate itself or in any other estate; by the very holders of tenures above the lowest under-tenure which includes the land. The one person who is debarred from holding this right, even if he acquires it by purchase from the person in whom it last vested, is 'the landlord', that is, by the definition 'the person or number of persons immediately under whom a tenant holds'; or, according to the proposal made by the Lieutenant-Governor towards the end of paragraph 14, the 'proprietor or permanent tenure-holder immediately under whom the raiyat holds'". The justice of these remarks is so evident that I need say nothing by way of comment.

Transfer of occupancy-holding and pre-emption.

THE question of transferability of the occupancy-holding has been discussed threadbare. I will not therefore repeat the arguments against it, which are already so well known. Suffice it to say that the measure will be equally injurious both to the zamíndárs and the raiyats; the former will have a valuable right unjustly taken away from them and be exposed to the intrusion of hostile persons into their estates, and the latter, under their peculiar circumstances, will, at no distant time, be reduced to the status of day-labourers by being sold out of their holdings, on which they depend for their subsistence. Neither under the Permanent Settlement Regulations nor under Act X of 1859 is an occupancy-holding transferable. When the question of the transferability of the occupancy-holding was first proposed by the Government of Bengal, the Government of India expressed its disapproval of it. The British Indian Association was invited to express its opinion on the subject, and it agreed to the legalization of the sale of the occupancy-holding in satisfaction of decree for rent, and suggested that, where a zamíndár might adopt this remedy, an occupancy-holding once so sold should be declared to have become a transferable tenure. The Lieutenant-Governor of the day practically adopted the suggestion. In a letter to the Government of India, dated the 2nd February, 1878, Mr. Secretary Reynolds wrote:

"The Lieutenant-Governor has with some reluctance withdrawn the proposal that the occupancy-right shall be generally transferable by private sale or other agreement. The weight of opinion is in favour of this proposal, as will be seen by a reference to the letter of the Board of Revenue, and His Honour is satisfied that such transfers would not have the bad effect which has been sometimes apprehended, and that they would not tend to transfer the land to classes whose ownership it might not be thought desirable to encourage. He believes that such a right of transfer would be much to the benefit of landholder and raiyat. It appears, however, that the landlord class are strongly opposed to the concession of any general right of transfer, and the Governor General in Council has expressed serious doubts as to the expediency of including such a provision in the Bill. The Bill, therefore, only proposes to recognize sales of occupancy-tenures at the request of the landlord in execution of decrees of Court, and to this the Lieutenant-Governor believes that no objection will be made."

The Bengal Government has since changed its opinion on the subject, and the concession made by the zamíndárs in 1878 necessarily goes for nothing. In the present Bill the transferability of the occupancy-holding is made general and absolute, subject to a rule of pre-emption. There is nothing in the Bill to prevent greedy land-jobbers or speculators from trafficking in land at the expense of the zamíndárs. As to right of pre-emption accorded to the zamíndár it will, I am afraid, prove in practice more a shadow than a substance. In the first place, the zamíndár will have to pay a consideration for land of which he is the proprietor, and which was never before transferable under the law. He will then have to run a competition with other bidders for the purchase of the land, and, if he cannot come to an agreement with the ráiyat about the price, he must go through the expensive process of a reference to the Court for arbitrement, and must be prepared to pay the price adjudged by the Court. If the raiyats of a zamíndár in any considerable number become recusant and threaten him with the sale of their holdings, it will be difficult for him to keep out hostile people from the holdings unless he has a long purse to buy them up. Practically, therefore, this recognition of the transferability of the occupancy-holding may be worked by evil-disposed raiyats to the utter ruin of the zamíndár. It is noteworthy that while the zamíndár will have to go through the expensive process of obtaining the Court's decision as to price, the ráiyat shall not be bound by that decision, for section 32, sub-section 4, says that when the zamíndár tenders a price to the raiyat, "the raiyat shall either abstain from selling the land or sell it to the landlord at that price". So the landlord will be entirely at the mercy of the raiyat.

Shadowy as the right of pre-emption will practically be, the amended Bill contrives to keep out of the purview of this provision all substantial raiyats, for under it the rule of pre-emption will not apply to tenure-holders, and all occupancy-raiyats who may sub-let more than half their holdings, or who may keep holdings of more than hundred bighás in size part of which is sub-let, are, ipso facto, converted into tenure-holders.

Enhancement of rent.

I HAVE already alluded to the question of the enhancement of the rent of tenure-holders, who are placed at a considerable advantage to the detriment of the zamíndár, a position which they had never before enjoyed under the Permanent Settlement Regulations or under Act X of 1859. With regard to the enhancement of the rent of occupancy-raiyats I wish to point out that at present the enhancement law has come to a dead-lock, and that one of the chief objects of fresh legislation is admitted to be to afford relief to the zamíndárs in this matter; but I am of opinion that the alterations made by the Committee will tend more to maintain the status quo than to secure justice to the landlord. In the first place, under the existing law there is a perfect freedom of contract between the landlord and the tenant regarding enhancement of rent outside the Court, but under the Bill this freedom is entirely taken away, and it is provided that where the arrangement may be voluntary, the enhancement shall not exceed more than four annas in the rupee, that is to say, not more than two annas for a term of at least seven years, and if more than two annas, but not more than four annas in the rupee, for a term of at least fifteen years. Thus a serious disability is imposed upon the landlord in fixing rent outside the Court. When enhancement of rent is sought by suit, the grounds on which the enhancement may be applied for are thus set forth:

(a) That the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity.

(b) That there has been a rise in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(c) That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord.

(d) That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

I am not prepared to say that the revised grounds will materially help the solution of the problem of enhancement. The first ground, "prevailing rate" is not made clear, and the same doubts and uncertainties that now hang round it remain unremoved. An attempt was made to explain it, but it was opposed by the Bengal Government. The second ground will, I am afraid, prove fictitious, for knowing as the Committee do, how unreliable are the price-lists prepared by Government officers, they cannot deny that it will be difficult to obtain reliable data for striking average prices, particularly, "in the locality or at the usual markets"—who is to fix the usual markets? The third ground will be made practically inoperative by the conditions which follow. As for the fourth ground, even if it be fairly worked, its application will be exceptional.

The rules providing for enhancement enquiries by the Revenue-officer will practically leave the whole matter to the discretion of the Revenue-officer. For instance, in ascertaining the prevailing rate, the Revenue-officer is directed to make a local enquiry, but he is not told on what principle he is to find the prevailing rate, and the result will be diversity of practice under diverse officers. In working out enhancement on the ground of rise in prices it is provided that—

(a) The Court shall have regard to the lists of prices periodically published under the authority of the Local Government, and shall compare the average prices during the quinquennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other quinquennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison.

(b) The Court shall not enhance the rent so that the enhanced rent exceeds the previous rent by more than four annas in the rupee.

(c) Subject as aforesaid, and subject also to section 48, the enhanced rent shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the average prices during the last quinquennial period bear to the average prices during the previous quinquennial period taken for purposes of comparison.

In carrying out the above provisions much will depend upon the price-lists, and, as I have already stated, those that are published in the Calcutta Gazette by Government are wholly unreliable. They are collected by the police, who cannot be expected to be over-scrutinous. They are not tested by any responsible agency, not to say that the wholesale and retail prices being generally mixed up, no fair average can be based upon them. Unless special care be taken to prepare the lists—and this remark applies to future lists—they cannot and ought not to be accepted by courts of justice as good and valid evidence. The question still recurs—how will the lists of past prices be prepared?

It will be observed that the value of all crops must be reduced to the price of paddy in Bengal, and that of Indian corn, barley and wheat in Bihár. The specification of the staple food-crops is left to the discretion of the Local Government, which may from time to time vary them. No allowance is made for valuable crops, such as tobacco, sugarcane, mulberry, potato, jute, &c. This rule is evidently founded on the principle of the Tithes Commutation Act of the United Kingdom. There is, however, I venture to submit, no fair analogy between tithes in England and rents in Bengal; for the former represented a fixed share or a tenth part of the crop, while the latter, though originally based on a share of the produce, have now greatly receded from the old standard. An English tithe is not susceptible of enhancement, whereas the Bengal money-rent is legally declared to be liable to enhancement. The question, therefore, arises whether the principle which is held equitable in the commutation of tithes, would be fair and equitable in the enhancement of a money-rent? As far as I can judge, the difficulties in carrying out the principle will by no means be less than what they are under the existing law. As for enhancement on the ground of landlord's improvement, it is so much handicapped by restrictive conditions, that it will, I fear, prove an economic anomaly. After enumerating the circumstances which the Court should take into consideration in ordering enhancement on this ground, section 46 says that the Court shall consider the ability of the land to bear a higher rent. With such an uncertainty hanging over him, will any proprietor with two grains of common sense to rub against one another undertake any improvement?—if he cannot be sure of any return for his money, naturally, he wont lay out money. There are two other points connected with this subject. It was settled in previous correspondence between the Government of Bengal and the British Indian Association that enhancement of rent in any case should not be more than double the present rent, and that every enhancement of rent shall have a currency of ten years. These rules were embodied in the original draft Bill, but, at the instance of the present Bengal Government, both the rules have been altered. It is now declared that, when enhancement is sought on the ground of prevailing rate, the rent shall not exceed the previous rent by more than eight annas in the rupee or fifty per cent., and that, when it is sought on the ground of rise in prices, the enhanced rent shall not exceed the previous rentby more than four annas in the rupee or twenty-five per cent., and that every enhancement shall have a currency of fifteen years. It would be thus seen that there is no finality in the decision of Government, and that the more is conceded by the zámíndárs the more is demanded from them.

It is observable that where the enhancement is sought on the ground of the present rent being below the "prevailling rate", common sense suggests that the rent should be raised to the limit of the "prevailing rate"—it is not clear why a maximum limit of fifty per cent. should be fixed in such a case. Again, where the enhancement is sought on the ground of rise in prices, and the increase is to be given according to the rule of proportion, it is not equitable that there should be again a maximum limit of twenty-five per cent.

Commutation of produce-rents into money-payments.

THIS part of the Bill affects Bihár more than Bengal, and as my honourable collegaue, His Highness the Mahárájá of Darbhangá, will doubtless comment upon it, I need not say much upon it. I may, however, observe that the principle upon which the commutation is directed to be made, namely, (a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and (b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years, will tend to lower the present rents. I should add, that when the Bill was introduced, a distinct assurance was given that the present rents will not be lowered.

Non-occupancy-raiyats.

BOTH under the Permanent Settlement Regulations and Act X of 1859 it was left entirely to the discretion of the landlord to deal with the non-occupancy-raiyat, who is none other than the tenant-at will. But the relations between the landlord and non-occupancy-raiyat are materially altered by this Bill. Nothing will prevent the non-occupancy-raiyat from acquiring the occupancy-right, and, as already observed, he will get the benefit of the legal presumption of a settled raiyat, if he can manage to scatter a few seeds once upon a plot of ground; then when he will be first let in he will be liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between himself and his landlord, but no enhancement will be allowed except by registered agreement, and even when an agreement may be tendered by the landlord to the raiyat, the latter may refuse it, and the former will then be driven to the necessity of instituting a suit to eject him. The Court shall then determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding, and if the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined, the landlord, under order of Court, shall be bound to give him a lease for five years, and if before the termination of the lease the raiyat shall have acquired a right of occupancy, he will be entitled to all the rights and privileges of an occupancy-raiyat. The non-occupancy-raiyat will thus be one in name; the landlords present right to deal with him at his discretion is entirely taken away, while the freedom of contract is disallowed and the landlord is compelled to give a judicial lease for five years. I should observe that in consequence of the introduction of the judicial lease, the original provisions regarding compensation for disturbance have been omitted. These provisions embodied a new-fangled idea not known in this country, and would, if retained, have proved a new apple of discord. But the substitution of the judicial lease for five years involves a great injustice to the landlord, who is tied hand and foot by the Court in a matter in which he has always enjoyed perfect independence of action. The raiyat, in whose favour the judicial lease is ordered, may be most obstreperous and tribulent, may by his bad advice be tainting the whole flock around him, and may thus prove most mischievous, not to say that the landlord, if he settles the land with another raiyat, may get better rent and perhaps better security for payment of rent. But the judicial lease will give him no such option or advantage. I cannot help thinking that the provisions relating to non-occupancy-raiyats involved a further invasion of the proprietary rights of the landlord, and that in favor of a class of tenants who are not attached to the soil, and have, therefore, no manner of moral claim upon the consideration of the landlord.

Sub-letting and sub-raiyats.

ONE principal defect of the Bill, as introduced, was that, while it seriously curtailed the rights and privileges of the zamíndár, it did practically little for the good of the boná-fide cultivator, whose labour constituted the wealth of the country and fed a whole host of proprietors and sub-proprietors including the Government, as the representative of the public. The position of the middleman had been greatly strengthened, while the sub-raiyats, usually the actual cultivators of the soil, were left to the tender mercies of the middlemen. The invidiousness of this condition was fully realized by the Committee, and they proposed various devices for bettering the position of the sub-raiyats. Accordingly, restrictions have been proposed in the Bill on sub-letting, but I doubt whether these provisions will work. In the first place, if an occupancy-raiyat sub-lets more than half his holding, he shall on registration of the same be converted into a tenure-holder. Considering the decidedly advantageous position of the tenure-holder, this will operate as a premium on sub-letting instead of as a repressive measure. In the second place, if an occupancy-raiyat sub-lets, his sub-lease shall not be valid for a term exceeding seven years, and this provision will have a retrospective effect. Surely this will be no loss to the sub-lessor, for the shorter the lease, the greater his gain. In the third place, the landlord of a sub-raiyat shall not, in the case of a registered lease, be entitled to recover rent more than fifty per cent. of what he himself pays, and in any other case not more than twenty-five per cent. I do not understand how this rule will work, where there is a long chain of middlemen, for instance in Backergunge, where there are thirteen grades of middlemen. Will each middleman have the right to claim from his sub-raiyat fifty per cent. in excess of what he pays to his own landlord? What would then be the position of the last link in the chain —of the men who immediately cultivates? And in the fourth place, a sub-raiyat shall not be liable to be ejected by the landlord except at the end of an agricultural year and after a written notice to quit, to be served not less than six months before the expiration of that year. My own impression is that there will be frequent disputes between the superior raiyat and the sub-raiyat as to whether the former has sub-let more than half his holding, and the result will be either silent suffering on the part of the sub-raiyat or frequent litigation. Then, as far as I can judge, the limitation of rent under section 62 will apply only in such cases in which a superior raiyat may sub-let more than half his holding; he will, therefore, studiously keep himself under this limit and thus avoid the clutches of the law. Furthermore, it will be nobody's interest to bring to Court the superior raiyat contravening the law, for no penalty attaches to breach of law. The superior raiyat will make it a point not to let his land to any raiyat who will not accept his own terms, and when a sub-raiyat accepts those terms, he will not seek the benefit of the law; another raiyat, a third party, may wish to get the land on the terms prescribed by law, but he will have no locus standi, if he be not admitted by the superior raiyat. So that the new provisions restricting sub-letting will either prove a dead-letter or give rise to endless litigation.

Improvements.

THE chapter on improvements introduces an alteration in the relations between the landlord and tenant consistent with neither the existing law nor custom. At present improvements are generally made by the landlords, and where they are made by tenants, they are effected with the consent and sanction of the landlord, but this chapter declares that (1) where a raiyat holds at a fixed rent his landlord shall not be entitled to prevent him from making any improvement in respect of his holding, (2) where a raiyat has an occupancy-right he shall have the prior right to make the improvement unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord, and (3) where a non-occupancy-raiyat desires that a certain improvement should be made in his holding, he shall serve a notice on the landlord calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time, and if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with his request, he may make the improvement himself. The whole theory of these provisions ignore the proprietary right of the landlord, and assigns to the Collector the task of deciding as to who has the right to make improvements. If public policy requires that the raiyat should be encouraged to make improvements, surely the first option ought to be given to the landlord to effect them. From an economic point of view, the landlord, having larger capital, is in a better position to carry out improvements, but no facilities are offered to him for this purpose. Even a return in the shape of increased rent is not assured to him for his outlay of capital on improvements, for it will be in the discretion of the Court not to allow an enhancement, if the court thinks that the land cannot bear enhanced rent. The inevitable result of these rules, I am afraid, will be to throw back all improvements. The soundness of the policy, which expects improvements from those who have not the means to make them, and to deter those who can, is unintelligible to me. I suggested that facilities should be given to the landlord to acquire land for purposes of agricultural experiments, model-farms, &c., but my proposals were not accepted. I was referred to an amendment of the Land Acquisition Act.

Management of joint estates.

THE Bill gives power to the District Judge, on the application of the Collector or of any person interested, even a squatter, to deprive co-owners of an estate or tenure of the right of management thereof, if it appears to him that there has ensued or is likely to ensue (a) inconvenience to the public, or (b) injury to private rights. I shall take the last point first. I at once admit that hardships and harassment may be caused to raiyats in consequence of disputes among co-owners and the absence of a common manager, but this point has been met by the Committee in the provisions made for deposit of rent. Section 73, clause (c), says that a tenant may deposit rent when the rent is payable to sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of these co-sharers for the money, when no person has been empowered to receive rent in their behalf. Besides, the co-sharers cannot apply for distraint or sue for enhanced rent unless they make the application or institute the suit jointly or through a common manager. It will be thus seen that the Bill effectually removes all reasonable complaints of raiyats who are tenants of joint estates. As for inconvenience to the public from the joint management of estates, I confess, I do not clearly understand it. If, for instance, the co-parceners default in the payment of revenue, their estates are liable to sale; if they transgress law or fail to comply with public requisitions, their responsibility is easily traceable under the operation of the Bengal Registration Act, and they are liable to punishment. It is not therefore clear why they should be deprived of the management of their own property because the Collector or Judge thinks that it causes "inconvenience to the public". I submit it would be contrary to sound public policy to remove all incentives to exertion and improvement from landed proprietors and capitalists by delegating the management of their property to others on pleas which have no existence in fact.

Record-of-rights, settlement of rents, tables of rates and record of proprietor's private lands.

THE chapters relating to these subjects are doubtless in accordance with the modern ideas of land administration in periodically settled India, but as far as Bengal is concerned, the rights and interest of different parties are generally well defined, and where there might be disputes between landlords and tenants in matters dealt with in these chapters, common sense would suggest that the application of the law should be left to the self-interest of the parties concerned. But the essence of these chapters is that while liberty is accorded to both landlord and tenant to move the machinery provided in them, the Local Government is empowered to bring of its own motion the machinery into action. The application of the provisions contained in these chapters will, I fear, plunge the country into a flood of litigation, stir up the worst passions of both the landlord and the tenant, open a wide door to perjury and forgery, give rise to endless corruption among the subordinate amlah, and throw the agricultural population into a sea of trouble, expense and loss. This was the lesson taught by the Revenue Survey. Of course, when the parties will themselves apply for the enforcement of the provisions under notice, it will be their own lookout, but I do not see any good or valid reason why the Government should, without any application from the parties, step in and inflict upon the country the evils pointed out above The work contemplated cannot, I fear, be accomplished in two or three generations to come, and for all this time will run the festering sore indicated above. If the record-of-rights were confined to those cases in which auction-purchasers at revenue or summary sales may not receive jamabandí papers for their guidance, if the settlement of rents were made applicable to those cases in which the raiyats might combine and withhold payment of rent and agrarian outrages might take place, and if the record of proprietor's private lands were limited to those cases in which the proprietor himself made the application, in all these cases, on the application of parties, it would be reasonable and fair; but to give the wide scope which has been given in these chapters by vesting the Government with unlimited discretion is not only not warranted by the necessities of the case, but will be followed by evils which will be highly detrimental to the best interests, peace and happiness of the agricultural population. As regards tables of rates, the enquiries which have been made on the subject have made it clear that in most parts of the country they are not practicable, that there are so many variations in rates of rent, sometimes one hundred and odd in a village, owing to various causes, historical, personal, economical and social, that it is hopeless to discover any typical or uniform rate, or what was formerly called Pargana rate in any given area. And yet power is taken by the Local Government to order preparation of tables of rates for special areas and to charge landlords and tenants with the cost of this work, though they may not in the least benefit by it. In the same way the expenses which may be incurred by enforcing the provisions relating to record-of-rights and settlement of rents, will be cast upon the landlords and tenants, though no application had been made by them. Thus a new cess will be imposed upon the land for purposes of proceedings which may do more harm than good to the landed classes.

As regards the record of proprietor's private lands which go by the name of khámár, the definition given is wholly opposed to what is contained in the Permanent Settlement Regulations and excludes all waste lands. Section 138 declares:

Section 138.—(1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land—

(a) land which is proved to have been cultivated as khámár, zeraat, sír, nij, nij-jot, or kamut by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and

(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village custom as proprietor's khámár, zeraat, sír, nij, nij-jot, or kamut.

(2) In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land the officer shall have regard to local custom and to the question whether the land was before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land, but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3) If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

Section 37 of Regulation VIII of 1793 thus describes khámár lands:—

Section 37, Regulation VIII of 1793. The above exception [exclusion of lakhiraj lands from the general assessment], however, is not meant to include the Malikanah lands in Bihár, or the nankar, khámár, nij-jot, and other private lands of the zamíndárs and independent talukdárs, or other actual proprietors of land in Bengal and Medníipur, &c.

It will be seen by comparing the language of the Regulation with that of the Bill that no such condition as cultivation for twelve continuous years was attached to the zamíndár's khámár lands under the old law. As for waste lands, it is notorious that they were given to the zamíndár to enable him to recoup the loss which inevitably fell upon him under the crushing assessment of the Permanent Settlement.

Distraint.

THE law of distraint is generally regarded as an important and potential auxiliary in realising rent. In Bihár, I understand, it is largely resorted to. The essence of the present law of distraint is, that the process is a sharp and quick remedy, and that the whole responsibility rests upon the landlord who is liable to heavy penalties in case of abuse of power. Under the Bill distraint is made a process of Court; it is clogged with various restrictions, and by the time the order may be executed the crops may be off the field. The procedure is so much elaborated that it will no longer prove the prompt remedy, which the distraint law ought to be, while the expense and harassment will be such as to compel the landlord to forego it altogether. I am inclined to think that the law of distraint, as provided in the Bill, will remain a dead-letter, and thus the only facility which the landlord possesses at present for realising his rent, quickly, will be taken away from him.

Judicial Procedure.

I NEED not repeat that the Government has over and over promised to simplify the procedure for recovery of rent. It has recognised its obligation in this respect from the time of the Permanent Settlement to this day. One of the primary objects of the present Bill from its first inception has avowedly been the simplification of the procedure for the realisation of rent, and the Committee in deliberating upon the subject fully admitted it, but the practical result of their deliberations, I am constrained to say, is disappointing. I submitted three schemes on the subject: (1) the Patní Procedure, (2) the Certificate Procedure now applicable to Government and Wards Estates, and (3) a modification of the present procedure. I set out below the details of the third scheme.

The zamíndár or rent-receiver in instituting a suit for arrear of rent should make out a primâ facie case by filing necessary papers such as jama-wásil-báki papers and counterfoils of receipts and giving necessary evidence.

The Court should then issue summons. In order to obviate the usual complaint of non-service of summons, I would suggest a provision to the following effect:—

"The summons shall be ordinarily served personally or by a registered postal cover. If for any reason the summons cannot be served personally on the defendant, it shall be affixed at his usual place of residence in the village in which the land is situate, or within five miles thereof. The notice may be served by affixing it at the mál-kacharí of such land, or on the land for which the arrear is due or other conspicuous place thereon, or at the village chauki or chowpal, or at some other conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate. An attestation of service should be taken from the village chaukídár, village mandal, or some two respectable residents of the village, or rural sub-registrar, as the case may be."

The order to prevent abuse, at least two of the abovementioned processes should be observed in every case; and with this safeguard the plea of non-service of summons should not be accepted by the Court as a good ground for re-opening or retrying a case which has been decided ex parte.

The summons should contain a notice that unless the defendant appears within one week from date of service, the Court shall pass a decree for the amount claimed and order immediate execution. The Court should be required to examine the defendant within eight days from the date he enters appearance and give notice of the day appointed to the plaintiff. The defendant should be required to file all documentary proofs and bring his witnesses in support of his pleas on the day of his examination. If the nature of the case admits of the immediate disposal of the suit, the Court should do so; or if the case be contested, it should on that day settle the issues in the presence of both parties and fix another day for hearing and final determination of the suit, not exceeding a fortnight from the date of examination of the defendant.

As regards execution, if the defaulter be a tenure-holder or occupancy-raiyat, his tenure or holding should be sold in execution. If he be a non-occupancy-raiyat, he should be evicted.

No appeal should be admitted unless the amount decreed was deposited. The rent-receiver should be allowed to take out the deposit on giving proper security.

This scheme seemed to enlist the sympathy of many of my honourable colleagues in the Committee, but, to my misfortune, the majority have not been able to accept it. They say—

> For ourselves we must confess that after the most anxious consideration of the various schemes which have been propounded for shortening and simplifying the procedure in rent-suits, we are unable to suggest anything of importance in this direction which would not involve a serious risk of failure of justice. In particular, while we are anxious to facilitate the service of summons and the proof of such service, we are unwilling to give any presumption of law against an absent defendant except on adequate proof of such service.

The Committee have, however, introduced the following new provisions :—

> We have, however, with a view to avoiding, as far as possible, the complication and delay which arise from questions as to the landlord's title being raised in rent-suits, made an important amendment in the section (164) which requires a tenant admitting that rent is due from him, but pleading that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, to pay the amount into Court. Our object is to force the issue of disputed title to be raised separately and independently of the rent-suit, and we have therefore provided that the Court shall, on the money being paid in, cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person, and unless he, within three months, institutes a separate suit against the plaintiff and obtains an order restraining the payment of the money, it will be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

A much more efficacious remedy, in my humble opinion, would have been, as I pointed out in Committee, to declare forfeiture of right of the raiyat in case his disclaimer of the title of his landlord was disproved in Court. The modifications proposed by the Committee would only multiply wheel within wheel, a title-suit in an arrear-suit, and thus vastly delay the realization of rent instead of facilitating it.

The Committee propose to give power to the High Court to make modifications in the ordinary procedure, if necessary, in applying it to the trial of rent-suits. This, to my mind, is tantamount to shirking the question. Surely the legislature, which has enacted the code of procedure, is competent to modify it for the purpose of expediting the trial of rent-suits.

I do hope that when the Committee meet in November next, they will be able to see their way to an efficacious simplification of the present procedure for the realisation of rent, which is a crying grievance with the landlords, and in consequence of which they are not unfrequently heavy losers in meeting the Government demand of the revenue and the cesses. If there is a consensus of opinion on any one point connected with the rent-law, it is on this, and it would be a scandal if, while the whole law is being overhauled, no substantial aid be given to the landlords to realize their just dues.

Freedom of contract.

UNDER this Bill, freedom of contract between the landlord and the tenant is practically abolished. The matters which are placed beyond the reach of contract are thus specified by the Committee :—

> (a) The acquisition of the status of settled raiyat and of the occupancy-right (sections 21, 25 and 26).

(b) The incidents of the occupancy-right specified in section 31.
(c) The occupancy-raiyat's right to demand a reduction of rent under section 51.
(d) The right of either landlord or tenant to demand a commutation of a produce-rent under section 53.
(e) The protection afforded by the Bill to a non-occupancy-raiyat or an under-raiyat from ejectment except on specified grounds (sections 58, 59, 60 and 63).
(f) The right of a tenant to a reduction of rent on account of a diminution of the area of his holding section 66).
(g) The right of a raiyat to make improvements and claim compensation for them (sections 88, 89, 90 and 93).
(h) The protection afforded to all tenants against ejectment except in execution of a decree (section 98).

I have, in my remarks on the introduction of the Bill, strongly protested against this retrograde move. The Permanent Settlement Regulations not only recognized but openly encouraged freedom of contract, and Act X of 1859 did the same. I cannot conceive that if the raiyat can be fairly considered a free agent in mortgaging or selling his hearth and home or his agricultural land, in disposing of the produce of his field, or engaging his labour and fulfilling a thousand other obligations of every-day life, why he should be considered incompetent to enter into contract with his landlord. I would strongly urge the re-consideration of this question.

Civil Courts and Revenue-officers.

THE jurisdiction under the Bill is divided between the Civil Court and the Revenue-officer. The large powers which have been conferred upon the Revenue-officer at the instance of the Bengal Government are, I hope I am mistaken, evidently intended to reduce the land administration of Bengal to the same dead-level system which prevails in Northern India, and which has so notoriously hampered the action of capital and clogged the springs of industry in that part of the country. Whether I refer to the provisions for the commutation of produce-rents into money-payment, to record-of-rights and settlement of rents, to preparation of tables of rates, to superintendence of contracts between the landlord and the tenant; the fixing of standard poles for measurement, the preparation of price-lists, or the like, the Revenue-officer has been made the fulcrum on which no small portion of the structure of the Bill rests. I would not object if the Revenue-officer were made only an executive or administrative officer, but as he has been vested with judicial functions, the objection becomes serious. Nothing, I conceive, can be more injurious to the interests of justice than a system which will place a judicial officer at the beck and nod of the Executive Government. On this point, I would reproduce the enlightened and wise remarks of Lord Cornwallis contained in the preamble to Regulation. II of 1793:

All questions between the Government and the landholders respecting the assessment and collection of the public revenue, and disputed claims between the latter and their raiyats (tenants), have hitherto been cognisable in the Courts of Maal Adawlut, or Revenue Courts. The collectors of revenue preside in these Courts as judges, and an appeal lies from their decision to the Board of Revenue, and from the decrees of that Board to the Governor General in Council in the Department of Revenue. The proprietors can never consider the privileges which have been conferred upon them as secure, whilst the Revenue-officers are vested with these judicial powers. Exclusive of the objections arising to these Courts from their irregular, summary, and often ex parte proceedings, and from the collectors being obliged to suspend the exercise of their judicial functions whenever they interfere with their financial duties, it is obvious that, if the regulations for assessing and collecting the public revenue are infringed, the Revenue-officers themselves must be the aggressors, and that individuals who have been wronged by them in one capacity can never hope to obtain redress from them in another. Their financial occupations equally disqualify them for administering the laws between the proprietors of land and their tenants. Other security must be given to landed property and to the rights attached to it, before the desired improvements in agriculture can be expected to be effected. Government must divest itself of the power of infringing, in its executive capacity, the rights and privileges which, as exercising the legislative authority, it has conferred on the landholders. The Revenue-officers must be deprived of their judicial powers. All financial claims of the public, when disputed under the Regulations must be subjected to the cognisance of Courts of Judicature, superintended by judges who, from their official situations and the nature of their trusts, shall not only be wholly uninterested in the result of their decisions, but bound to decide impartially between the public and the proprietors of land, and also between the latter and their tenants. The collectors of the revenue must not only be divested of the powers deciding upon their own acts, but rendered amenable for them to the Courts of Judicature, and collect the public dues, subject to a personal prosecution for every exaction exceeding the amount which they are authorised to demand on behalf of the public, and for every deviation from the regulations prescribed for the collection of it. No power will then exist in the country by which the rights vested in the landlords by the Regulations can be infringed, or the value of landed property affected. Land must, in consequence, become the most desirable of all property, and the industry of the people will be directed to those improvements in agriculture, which are as essential to their own welfare as to the prosperity of the State.

The broad views, which were expressed by the Government in 1793 apply with ten-fold force in 1884.

Patní tenures.

THE zamíndárs, not without reason, object to the incorporation of the Patní law in this Bill. They hold that every word of that law has during the last 65 years received an accepted and authoritative meaning; that it is well understood by the zamíndárs, the patnídár, the Court and the amlah; that to modernise the language will be to disturb the recollections and traditions of more than three scores of years, and that it is therefore highly desirable to leave the Patní law as it is, text and construction, on the principle of letting well alone. I concur in this opinion and would leave out the Patní chapter from this Bill.

I have hastily drawn up my principal objections to the leading principles of the Bill. I have not had time to comment on details. I propose to bring them forward when the Committee meet in November next.

KRISTODÁS PÁL.

The 14th March, 1881.

Memorandum of dissent from the finding of the majority of the Select Committee on certain provisions of the proposed Tenancy Bill.

1. Chapter IV of the revised Bill provides that a raiyat holding his land at a fixed rate of rent shall be—

(a) subject to the same provisions with respect to transfer, succession, &c., as a tenure-holder; and

(b) liable to be ejected from his holding on the ground of his having broken the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord on breach of which he is liable to be ejected.

The occupancy-raiyat claiming to hold his land at a fixed rate of rent is, in respect of his holding, placed in a more advantageous position than the ordinary occupancy-raiyat—

(a) by the landlord being debarred from pre-empting should the raiyat transfer his holding to a third party;

(b) in not being liable to be ejected should he use his land in such a way as to render it unfit for the purposes of his tenancy.

The majority of the Committee are of opinion that the incidents attached to an occupancy-holding the rent of which is fixed should be different from the incidents attached to an ordinary occupancy-holding; from this I dissent.

If the landlord is to be allowed the right to pre-empt in the one case, he should be allowed to do so in the other; if the raiyat is to be subject to eviction for rendering his land unfit for the purposes of the tenancy in the one case, he should be liable to be evicted in the other.

Every argument that can be adduced in favour of its being permitted in the one case would apply equally in the other.

Pre-emption is, I believe, an off-shoot of Muhammadan law; when the right to pre-empt is claimed among Hindús in Bihár, it is governed by custom.

The right to pre-empt under English law is, I believe, embodied in the provisions of this Bill for the first time, and only with the object of affording the landlord the means of protecting himself against persons who might purchase occupancy-rights with the intention of injuring him.

The landlord will be put to as great inconvenience by a hostile purchaser in the one case as he will be in the other; the same with a farm destroyed. It will be as useless to him in the one case as it will be in the other.

The effect of these provisions, coupled with Chapter VIII, will be ruinous to the landlord.

Every time a landlord elects to exercise his right to pre-empt, a title to hold at fixed rates will be set up

Every time a raiyat transfers his holding as a holding at fixed rates, or a transferee anticipating pre-emption takes measures to evade the law, even though the landlord does not wish to pre-empt, he will be compelled to contest the transfer, for fear his not contesting it at once may be taken as an admission of the transferee's right to hold at fixed rates in perpetuity.

Had the Committee seen its way to accepting my amendments and confined the operation of this chapter to holdings under mukarrarí pattá or raiyats whose rights had been declared by a decree of Court, although the landlords' rights would not have been restored to them in their entirety, the mischievous effects of encouraging persons to attempt to evade the law by setting up the presumption would have been avoided.

2. Chapter V.—Restrictions on sub-letting.

In respect to the right mode of treating the subject of sub-letting, I am at variance, nearly on all points, with the majority of the Committee.

I do not think there is any necessity to place restrictions on sub-letting with the sole object of discouraging it.

I believe the conversion of the occupancy-raiyat who sub-lets into a tenure-holder will be detrimental to the best interests of the landlords.

I believe it necessary to bring the system under some control, partly with a view to protect the occupancy-raiyat, but mainly with a view to protect the poorest class of cultivators, the raiyat's raiyats.

The power to sub-let is a necessity to the raiyat, possibly of even greater importance to him than the power to transfer.

It enables the occupancy-raiyat to tide over his temporary embarrassments.

It enables the labouring classes, who might not otherwise succeed in securing land to assist in the support of their families, to acquire it.

It is legal, and the practice has hitherto been under no sort of restriction, and under no sort of restrictions will it ever be abandoned.

As long as there exists a class of people craving for the possession of land and poorer than the people in possession, or a class who can put the land to more profitable use than the persons who at present hold it, or as long as the line which divides an usufructuary mortgage from a sub-lease remains undefined, sub-letting will be practised.

The sub-lessees should be protected, and while there is yet time the system should be brought under some sort of control.

The matter may soon force itself on the attention of the Government in such a way as to make the shirking of the question an impossibility.

3. Chapter V.—On enhancement.

Under the provisions of the draft Bill submitted to the Select Committee for report, the landlord might enter into an amicable arrangement with his tenant to receive an enhanced rent up to six annas in the rupee on former rates, provided the enhanced rent did not exceed one-fifth the value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops.

He might enhance under suit, on the grounds that the rate paid for the land was below the prevailing rate in the neighbourhood, on the ground that the productive powers of the land had increased otherwise than through the agency of the tenant, and also on account of a permanent rise in prices, provided the enhanced rents did not exceed one-fifth the value of the produce in staple crops, and provided it should in no instance exceed double the previous rent.

Both in the instance of voluntary enhancement and enhancement under suit, the enhanced rent was to hold good for a term of ten years. Under the Bill as revised by the Select Committee, enhancement under contract is in no instance to exceed four annas in the rupee.

Below two annas or up to two annas it shall hold good for seven years, above two annas for fifteen years.

Judicial enhancement by reason of the holding being held at a rate below the rate prevailing in the neighbourhood may be made up to fifty per cent. increase on the former rate, and on account of a permanent increase in prices up to twenty-five per cent.

In any case decided on its merits, whether enhanced or not, the rate shall hold good for fifteen years.

The one-fifth limit has been abandoned in both instances.

Legal enhancement has, I admit, been made very much easier than it is under the present law; but I humbly submit that the omission of a limit which was admitted on all hands to be unascertainable is not sufficient reason for placing the restrictions on enhancement that the majority of the Committee have thought it necessary to place upon it, either in the way of reducing the limit or increasing the term.

It is to be presumed that tenants with fixity of tenure secured to them will only agree to an enhanced rent out of Court, when they know that the landlord by going to Court might get a very much higher rate decreed.

I do not approve of the policy which drives both landlords and tenants to appeal to a Court of law in matters which they can decide very much better for themselves.

In the matter of voluntary enhancement, it was only necessary to declare that enhancement under contract should be under registered agreement, and that the tenant in agreeing to it acted as a free agent.

If it was necessary to put a limit to the amount, the term should have been left to contract.

The fifteen-year limit being adopted in both instances, the landlord will exact the last farthing of what is due to him: we permit no compromise.

It is but fair to the Committee to say that I was alone in the desire to see the arbitrary limit on enhancement on account of the holding being held at a rate below the rent prevailing in the neighbourhood omitted; but I still think it would have been better to have left the matter to the discretion of the Courts.

The Courts have been given the power to make the enhancement gradual over a period of five years. They should be unfettered on both points.

4. Chapter VIII.—On the right of an occupancy-raiyat to hold at fixed rates.

Section 64 (1), Ditto (2), Ditto (3). The first allows a raiyat whose rents have not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement to hold his land at that rent in perpetuity.

The second allows it to be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that a raiyat who has held his land at one rent for 20 years previous to the introduction of the suit has held it at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement.

The third makes the above rule applicable to commuted rents also.

In my notes filed with the rest of the papers on the Bill, I recorded my dissent with the provisions of these sections as they then stood in the Bill; the alterations now made are alterations in form, not in substance.

During our discussions in Committee no arguments were submitted, no attempt was made to justify their being originally embodied in Act X of 1859, none in reply to the assertion that they were an infringement on the terms of the Permanent Settlement, none to induce me to alter the opinion expressed by me in my notes.

The pleas urged for their retention in the present Bill were, that they represented the present law, that no case had been made out to induce the Committee to alter the present law, and that it is more difficult for the raiyat to prove his right to hold at fixed rates, than it is for the landlord to prove how, when and on what terms the raiyat was let into possession of the land.

We urged that the Permanent Settlement and its concomitant Regulations never intended that any class of raiyats other than mukarrarídárs and istimrárdárs should hold their lands at one fixed, unalterable rate in perpetuity.

That it never contemplated the creation of any "privileged" class among occupancy-raiyats.

That Act X of 1859, in creating a privileged class among occupancy-raiyats, trenched upon the proprietary rights of the landlords, and, in securing to the raiyats a right to hold their lands at a fixed rent in perpetuity, it reduced the proprietors to the position of annuitants on their own estates.

In declaring that the presumption shall run from twenty years previous to the introduction of the suit instead of from a fixed date it became a constantly accruing title.

That the privilege being a valuable one, one that it is to the interest of the raiyat to acquire in the future and to the interest of the landlord to prevent his acquiring, it was detrimental to the best interests of both to retain it in the Bill in its present form: it caused constant friction.

At the same time as I denied the justice of its enactments in Act X of 1859, I admitted that it would be harsh and unjust to cancel rights that had grown up under the operation of the present law.

To obviate all appearance of acting unjustly to raiyats who had secured such rights I proposed that the presumption should run from 20 years previous to the introduction of the Act, instead of, as it now does, 20 years previous to the bringing of the suit. I humbly submit that, had the Committee adopted this suggestion, raiyats who have secured to themselves the right to hold at fixed rates would have been secured in their titles, and the first instalment of justice would have been meted out to the zamíndárs. In a Bill which is admittedly being enacted to define the rights of landlord and tenant in the future, which is being passed to restore to the raiyat rights he is supposed to have been deprived of by the legislation of the past or that he has forfeited by his own carelessness or by his own acts, it is but fair to the landlord to restore to him anything that the loose legislation of the past may have deprived him of.

If it is found impossible to return to him what he has been deprived of in the past, he should at least be protected in the future.

Under the terms of the Permanent Settlement, only mukarrarídárs and istimrárdárs were allowed to hold at fixed rates; not so occupancy-raiyats.

Previous to Act X of 1859 any person claiming a right to hold at fixed rates or rents was obliged to prove his title to do so from a date 12 years antecedent to the decennial settlement, his title was otherwise not complete; that is to say, his title was not dependent on anything contained in the Permanent Settlement, but on the acts of the zamíndárs themselves previous to the settlement.

At the time of the Permanent Settlement the cultivators of the soil were divided into three classes—mukarrarídárs or tenure-holders, resident-raiyats with prescriptive rights of occupancy and non-resident-raiyats or tenants-at-will. Act X of 1859 was the first attempt made during 66 years to give non-resident-raiyats rights of occupancy in the soil; in their case, at any rate, the right to hold at fixed rates cannot be founded on anything contained in the terms of the Permanent Settlement, and the landlord should not be called upon to rebut the presumption: the onus of proving the right should be cast on the raiyat.

At the time of the Permanent Settlement, and previous to Act X of 1859, all raiyats with rights of occupancy were treated alike in the matter of rents—"all" were expected to pay the prevailing rate.

It is difficult to find out from a reference to the published papers relating to the passing of Act X of 1859 what led up to the embodiment of these provisions in that Act.

In the draft Bill published in 1857, it only says "hereditary raiyats holding at fixed rates of rent are entitled to receive pattás at those rates", but no mention is made of the 20 years presumption afterwards embodied in the Act of 1859.

Had the Bill of 1857 not been amended, the onus of proving his right to hold at fixed rates would still have been cast on the raiyat claiming it.

In all the published criticisms on this draft Act, Mr. Sconce alone fully discusses the raiyat's right to hold at fixed rates, but he founds the right upon the higher and more intelligible ground that "the Permanent Settlement was not one-sided—permanent for the landlord and not permanent for the tenant"; but he errs in drawing this inference mainly from the provisions of sections 51 and 60 of Regulation VIII of 1793. On a reference to these sections it will be found that the former refers to taluqs, and from the operation of the latter the Province of Bihár was exempted.

I would submit that, if we are to maintain the present law as against the landlord, simply because it is the present law, we are not justified in going beyond the present law in favour of the raiyat as we have done in many instances.

In reference to the declaration often made that it is easier for the landlord to rebut the presumption than for the raiyat to prove his right, I would only repeat that the persons who make this assertion have no conception of the difficulties in the way of the landlord; that it is easier for any given number of tenants to prove their landlord's handwriting than for the landlord to prove the execution of documents executed by men who could not write; and that all the old Regulations made it compulsory on the landlord to execute a document in favour of the raiyat. None made it compulsory on the raiyat to execute one in favour of the landlord.

The present law provides for cases in which the rent has always been paid in cash; under the present Bill, it is intended to go a step further and apply the rule to commuted rents.

Although I was in the unenviable position of sole dissentient on this point in Committee, I must still beg to be allowed to protest against this clause being made law.

It goes far beyond anything we are justified in enacting; it is equal to allowing every raiyat who formerly held at a grain-rent, and now holds at a cash-rent, to hold at one fixed, unalterable rent in the future.

Severely as these provisions bear on the landlords under the present law, they will bear ten times more severely on them in the future.

With the interchange of pattás, and kabúliyats made no longer necessary, the future is in the hands of the raiyat.

Useful as the powers to be given to the Local Governments under the Record-of-rights and Settlement of Rates Chapters may be made in the future, with these provisions unaltered our Courts will be deluged with litigation and the zamíndárs ruined.

Their effect can only be minimized by confining their provisions to rents to be commuted in the future and fixing a date from which the presumption is to count.

Their effect on the transfer and pre-emption clauses I have already noted

5. Chapter IX.—Sub-division of holding.

The Bill declares an occupancy-holding shall in the future be transferable, and rightly declares it shall only be transferable as a whole.

A transfer of a portion of a holding is declared void as against the landlord.

The right to transfer has not hitherto been among the legal incidents of an occupancy-holding: the Courts have times out of number declined to give a transferee a right to hold the land when purchased as against the will of the landlord. In spite of the uncertain tenure of the transferee we see rights of occupancy being sold under voluntary sales and sold under decrees of Court in every district in the province.

In some districts it has become so fixed, it has become so common in spite of its illegality, that the custom now overrides the law.

The prevalence of the custom in spite of its illegality is now forcing the Government to declare it valid.

It is now proposed to legalize the transfer of an entire holding, but to declare it illegal as against a landlord to transfer a portion of a holding.

To legalize the transfer of a portion of a holding would be bad policy—bad for the landlord, worse for the raiyat; but to declare the act of a raiyat void as against the landlord and legal as against himself is to permit a state of things to grow up gradually which will eventually force the Government to interfere and legalize proceedings which they now deprecate.

To allow it to be illegal as against the landlord and legal as against the raiyat will not prevent the raiyat transferring it—it will only depreciate the market-value of the holding.

As the raiyat's necessities arise, he will dispose of his holding piecemeal from the fact of its being invalid against his landlord possibly at one-half of its value.

There are three ways of preventing the raiyat disposing of his holding piecemeal, namely:—

to declare a transfer of a portion of a holding illegal as against both landlord and raiyat;

to allow the landlord to treat the transfer as an abandonment of that portion;

to deem the raiyat to have broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of an agreement between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

The last is the most drastic, and the one I advocated.

6. Chapter X.

Under this chapter the Local Government may at the request of a landlord, at the request of a large number of raiyats or to avert a dispute, order a settlement to be made of the rents of the whole estate.

Under this chapter as it stands the rent-roll settled or ascertained of the estate must hold good for a period of 15 years after a settlement is made, provided nothing debarred the landlord applying for an enhancement.

(1) It would hold good in cases where the landlord applied for an enhancement, and the enhancement was allowed.

(2) It would apply in cases where his application was disallowed.

(3) It would apply where the landlord had a right to apply and did not.

(4) It would hold good in all cases where the settlement was made at the request of a number of raiyats.

(5) It would either compel the landlord to attempt to enhance the rents of all raiyats who were not parties to the application or to be debarred enhancing for 15 years.

(6) It applies to occupancy and non-occupancy-raiyats equally; it would therefore have this result, that it would at once give every non-occupancy-raiyat occupancy-rights.

(7) It will induce raiyats to demand a settlement in order to acquire rights they are not entitled to. It permits of no compromise.

The period should stand as it stood in the Bill, namely, 10 years.

It should only apply to cases in which the landlord applied for an enhancement or occupancy-raiyats had any dispute in reference to their rent.

A non-occupancy-raiyat should not be afforded the means of acquiring occupancy-rights under its shadow, or a most useful chapter will be turned into an instrument of oppression.

7. Chapter XV.—Incumbrances.

The last point on which I would wish to be allowed to record my dissent from the finding of the Committee is one of the utmost importance to the trader and also to the raiyat.

The Bill declares that a tenure, when sold under a decree of Court for arrears of rents, shall first be sold subject to registered incumbrances, but allows an occupancy-holding to be sold free from incumbrances.

The Bill certainly allows a person claiming to hold a lien on an occupancy-holding to protect his interests by paying up the arrears due and thereby to acquire a first mortgage; but this is not sufficient protection.

I do not agree with the Committee in thinking any distinction should be made between tenure-holders and occupancy-holdings.

Raiyats holding at fixed rates being subject to the same provisions as tenure-holders, will encourage litigation.

An attempt will be made to set aside the sales of occupancy-holdings by setting up the presumption to hold at fixed rates after sale.

Whether it will be the duty of the Court, the decree-holder, the debtor or the purchaser to enquire whether it is an ordinary occupancy-holding or an occupancy-holding at fixed rents that is brought to sale, or who will be responsible for any loss, should any occur, is not clear.

It was necessary to declare that the incumbrance to be protected was binding on the whole of the holding, not only on a portion of it, but nothing more.

In not affording the occupancy-raiyat this protection we injure his credit and force him to pay heavy interest where he might borrow on easier terms.

T. M. GIBBON.

Memorandum of dissent from the finding of the majority of the Select Committee on certain provisions of the proposed Tenancy Bill.

WHILE I concur generally with the majority of the Select Committee in accepting the provisions of the Bill as now revised, I think it right to add that in some particulars the interests of the tenants do not appear to me to be sufficiently protected. The Bill greatly facilitates the enhancement of rents, especially by the substitution of the simple ground of a rise in prices for the old rule which required proof of an increase in the value of the produce. While this great advantage has been given to the landlords, the check provided by section 75 (d)* of the original Bill has been taken away, the plea that the rate of rent paid by a raiyat is below the prevailing rate has been retained as a ground of enhancement, and the Bill provides no limitation whatever of the rent which a landlord may demand when a tenant (other than a settled raiyat) is first admitted to the occupation of land. Even in the case of a settled raiyat, the landlord may demand an increase of twenty-five per cent. on the rent previously paid. These sections put into the hands of landlords a powerful engine for enhancing rents up to the maximum amount which a tenant will agree to pay rather than give up the land. For, as agricultural holdings must, from time to time, fall into the hands of the landlords, and as the landlords are left free to let these out at almost any rental they may think fit to demand, it is evident that the prevailing rate will steadily increase, and that this rate will regulate the rents not only of tenants newly admitted to occupation, but of the general body of the tenantry. For this reason, the retention of the prevailing rate as a ground of enhancement appears to me to be fraught with serious danger, and I should be glad to see it eliminated from the Bill.

Similarly, I am of opinion that section 53 of the revised Bill does not sufficiently guard the interests of the tenant in cases in which the landlord applies for a commutation of produce-rents. The section ought to provide, first, that the money-rent shall not in any case exceed the rental at which the holding is entered in the landlord's road-cess returns: and, secondly, that if the commutation is based on the average value of the rent received by the landlord during the preceding ten years, a substantial deduction shall be made from such value in consideration of the whole risk of cultivation being taken by the raiyat. Provision was made for such a deduction in the draft Bill of the Rent Commission, and in the Bill submitted by the Government of Bengal.

The wording of section 96 of the Bill, relating to abandonment, seems to me likely to open the door to serious abuses. When a raiyat has been deprived of his holding under the plea of his having abandoned it, it is of very little use to authorize him to institute a suit for the recovery of possession. If this section is necessary at all, its operation should be confined to holdings in the possession of non-occupancy-raiyats. There is not the smallest reason for extending it to occupancy-holdings, as, in these cases, the landlord's rent is completely secured by his power of bringing the holding to sale for arrears.

* This clause declared that "the enhanced rent shall not in any case exceed one-fifth of the estimated average value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops, calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time".

BENGAL MUNICIPALITIES.

The HON. MR. REYNOLDS said:—I have the honour to move that the Bill to amend and consolidate the law relating to Municipalities be passed. The Bill has occupied the attention of this Council for the greater part of two sessions; it has been very fully discussed both in Select Committee and in the debates which have taken place in this Council-room; and its provisions have been subjected to careful criticism from local Chairmen of Municipalities and from the general public. I think I may with some confidence ask this Council to pass the Bill as a measure which is calculated to supply a practical and workable scheme of Municipal administration, on the basis of self-government by the people through their elected representatives. On this question of representation I desire briefly to refer to a memorial which was presented by some members of the Muhamadan community, who seem to think that the scheme proposed in the Bill will not afford sufficient scope for a proper representation of their interests. It would, I think, be a mistake, as a matter of principle, to adopt any plan of separate representatives for different classes of the public. It is not desirable to accentuate such distinctions, and I see no reason to doubt that the Muhamadans will be represented in due proportion to their numbers and intelligence. If in any case this proportion should not be maintained, it will always be in the power of the Government, which nominates one-third of the Commissioners, to redress the inequality and restore the proper balance. The principle of the Bill is to leave the utmost freedom of action to the Municipal authorities, so long as that freedom is wisely and rightly used. I am not so sanguine as to suppose that cases will never occur of the abuse of the power which this Bill places in the hands of the Municipal Commissioners. But I think that both reason and experience justify us in believing that such cases will not be numerous; that they will become less and less frequent as the principle is recognized, and the lesson learnt, that powers of this kind are a trust for the public good and the common welfare; and I would remind the Council that the provisions of the Bill afford ample security that any partial failures which may attend the earlier period of its working shall not result in serious or permanent injury to the interests which the Bill is designed to protect and encourage. I trust therefore that the Council will agree to the motion which I have now the honour to submit.

The motion was put and agreed to.

CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL ACT AMENDMENT.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay moved that the Bill further to amend the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act, 1876, be taken into consideration.

The motion was agreed to.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay moved that the Bill be passed.

The motion was agreed to and the Bill passed.

HOWRAH AND SUBURBAN POLICE.

The Hon. Mr. Reynolds moved that the Bill to enable the Municipal Commissioners of Howrah and the Suburbs of Calcutta to contribute towards the cost of the police employed in those municipalities be passed.

The motion was agreed to and the Bill passed.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

The Hon. Mr. Macaulay presented the preliminary report of the Select Committee on the Bill to extend the system of Local Self-Government in Bengal. In doing so he said:—I desire, on behalf of the Select Committee, to offer a brief explanation upon two points. The first relates to the form of our report. We have purposely abstained from reporting exhaustively upon the Bill. We understand that the Bill was remanded to us merely that it should be so recast as to conform to the orders of the Secretary of State in regard to the system of control,—that the obstacle, in fact, which has hitherto stood in the way of its being reported upon by public officers and public bodies should be removed. We have generally confined ourselves to this duty, except so far as arrangement and phraseology called for alteration. One new matter indeed we have considered which is unconnected with constitution and control—new, that is, as regards the original Bill, but not new as regards the existing Cess Act. This is a proposal of our hon. colleague, Colonel Trevor, to appoint an Inspector of Local Works in each division, to be paid for by the various District Boards. I may say that we are not agreed upon this proposal, but we have decided to admit it in order that it may be fully discussed. Beyond this we have not specially examined the details of the powers and duties of the authorities under the Bill. We apprehend that it would be premature for us to make even a preliminary report on those details until they have been subjected to that criticism which it was the object of the publication of the Bill last session to invite. Our report therefore is practically a preliminary report upon a part only of the Bill. The second point relates to the extent to which we have found it possible to conform to our instructions. As I informed the Council upon a previous occasion, the suggestion of the Secretary of State was that the District Boards should be controlling, and not administrative, bodies. Now it would have been an easy matter to carry out that suggestion had there been any prospect of a regular system of Local Boards being established in every district in the province. As a matter of fact, however, there are districts in which not more than one Board could be established with any advantage, and in such cases it is obvious the Board must be wholly an administrative Board. The plan adopted, therefore, has been, first to provide for a District Board in every district, and then to provide that, where a Local Board has been established, all or any of the administrative functions of the District Board may be entrusted to it. The District Board will thus be a controlling body, where there are any subordinate bodies for it to control. As there is no motion before the Council, and as, consequently, my hon. colleagues will have no opportunity of speaking upon the matter regarding which I am now addressing them, it would be unbecoming in me to make any observations to-day upon the general policy of this measure. I think, however, that I may at once claim the sympathy of the Council, and take hope for the future, from the incidents of our proceedings this day. At the commencement of last session two measures of kindred character were projected. One was committed to the able guidance of my hon. friend Mr. Reynolds. The other was entrusted to me. Their fates so far have been very different. The same day which has seen the Municipal Bill leave this chamber with the impress of the assent of its members, has seen the Local Self-Government Bill only re-enter it. We have heard my hon. friend claim with just pride to have carried through the Council a sound and workable scheme of municipal administration, based upon the principle of representation. My labours may be said to have but commenced. Those of my hon'ble friend are over,—like Antenor after his wanderings, "nunc placidâ compostus pace quiescit." But, Sir, the acceptance of the one measure by this Council is a matter of happy augury for the future of the other, and while sincerely congratulating the Council and my hon. friend upon the passing of this important measure of municipal reform, I can indulge a confident hope that in the coming session my hon. colleagues will address themselves to the consideration of the measure in my charge with the same assiduity and with the same enlightened and liberal spirit which have characterised our recent debates, and that, under your guidance and with their support and assistance, I shall be enabled to carry it to an equally successful and an equally gratifying conclusion.

The Council was then adjourned.

INTRODUCTION OF THE SYSTEM OF UNION COMMITTEES.

RESOLUTION.

Calcutta, the 31st March 1884.

In Government orders of 17th October 1883, Mr. E. V. Westmacott, C.S. was appointed to the special duty of superintending the preliminary operations for the introduction in selected areas of the system of Union Committees in connection with the scheme of Local Self-Government. In deputing Mr. Westmacott to this duty, it was the Lieutenant-Governor's wish that by the tentative establishment of Union Committees the way might be cleared for the immediate application of the provisions of the Bill, as soon as it became law, in regard to the election of Local Boards in a few sub-divisions in which a successful working of the measure might most reasonably be anticipated. Mr. Westmacott was directed to communicate with the Commissioners of the Presidency, Burdwan and Dacca Divisions, and, after determining with them the sub-divisions to be selected, to proceed to confer personally with the district and sub-divisional officers upon the steps to be taken in each case. The chief object was that Unions should be constructed on something like a definite plan, that the provisions and intention of the law should be fully explained to the people, and that an approximate estimate might be formed in each case of the amount of the income of the Unions from different sources. Mr. Westmacott was desired to submit a report of his proceedings before 1st April. This report has now been received, and the Lieutenant-Governor has perused it with much interest. It will be valuable, not only as furnishing important information in regard to the special areas dealt with, but as indicating the general lines upon which the officers of other districts will be able to proceed, when it is determined to extend the Union system gradually throughout the province. The report is herewith published for general information.

2. Altogether 180 Unions have been formed, and it may be said that the whole area of eight sub-divisions (Nuddea Sudder, Ranaghat, Meherpore, Baraset, Hooghly Sudder, Serampore, Howrah Sudder and Moonsheegunj) has been blocked off into Unions. The exceptions are a small portion of the Serampore thanna outside the municipal boundary, and the chur lands of Moonsheegunj. The latter have been excluded for sufficient reason, the soil being newly-formed alluvial and the population sparse. The Magistrate, Mr. Wyer, is quoted as reporting that "the churs are even more unsuited for the Union system than the mainland." The mainland of the Moonsheegunj sub-division, including the pergunnah of Bikrampore, has a population of quite 1,500 to the square mile. It is well known as containing an educated community, which has for generations supplied probably a larger proportion of candidates for the public service than any other tract of the same extent in Bengal. It includes a large number of Government pensioners who have acquired experience in every department, Revenue, Judicial and Police,—superior and ministerial. At the elections it is reported that 80 electors came forward for every 100 households, and an instance is given where a resident presented a donation of Rs. 500 towards the funds of the Union to be established. On all hands evidence was shown of the keen interest taken by the people in the initiation of this system of elementary Self-Government. Mr. Wyer's remark is unfortunate, and the Lieutenant-Governor would be glad to attribute it merely to ignorance of the district to which he has only recently been appointed.

3. The average area of each Union is about 20 square miles, and the average population about 13,000. The average area is exceptionally large in Chogdah and Ranaghat thannas in the Ranaghat sub-division (29 and 26 respectively) and Hanskhali thanna in Nuddea Sudder (26), and exceptionally small in Dhoomjor in Howrah (12) and Hooghly (6) In Dhoomjor, however, though the average area of the seven Unions is small, the average population is very large (21,371).

4. The attitude of the people in regard to the elections of members of the Committees has been in every way satisfactory. There has been no indication of either of the dangers which might have menaced the scheme,—general apathy, or an attempt on the part of any one class to monopolize power to the detriment of the others. In most cases the attendance was small at the first election. This, however, was undoubtedly due to the fact that the people did not at the outset understand the scope of the measure. "The more fully the real nature of the proposed scheme has been understood," writes Mr. Westmacott, "the more eager have the people been to come forward and select their own representatives." In Ranaghat, where the Deputy Magistrate, Baboo Ram Churn Bose, took trouble to explain the scheme to the people in their own villages before hand, nearly every householder attended. In Serampore only 6·8 per cent. at first came forward; "but in subsequent elections held by Mr. Collier, the Joint-Magistrate, as the people understood the scheme better, the attendance improved considerably, and in the last thanna in which elections were held there were about 22 electors present for every 100 households, while in one election the percentage rose to 40." At the first election held in the Baraset sub-division, "9·4 electors appeared for every 100 households, but the people were then coming in rapidly, and in the second the proportion rose to 23·4 per cent." In the Nuddea Sudder sub-division, where Mr. Ritchie, Joint-Magistrate, took a most intelligent interest in the scheme, the elections are reported to have been very satisfactory. At the first two elections the percentage of voters to households was 19 and 22. The first election in Moonshiegunj failed from want of due notice. At the next the percentage was 39, and afterwards it rose to upwards of 80.

On the other hand the evidence is complete that all classes and castes possessing any real interest in the villages have worked in harmony in regard to the elections. Of the Burdwan elections the Magistrate, Mr. Coxhead, reports that about a quarter of the electors were cultivators, and some 10 per cent. were traders or shop-keepers. The remainder were petty landowners or middlemen. The landless labourers made no attempt to insist upon representation. Mr. Westmacott remarks upon this:—"Even as in the Teutonic gemot freemen only had a voice, so in the village communities of India the men who possess nothing beyond the ability to labour with their hands are considered to have nothing at stake, and so are not allowed a voice in the management of the affairs of the community." From Nuddea Mr. Ritchie reports that the educated classes appear to be in harmony with the people, and to possess their confidence. Mr. Collier says regarding the attitude of the educated classes in Serampore:—"I am of opinion that it has been quite satisfactory. I have seen no signs of an attempt on their part to monopolise the power of election. On the contrary, I have been struck by their evident wish that those persons who possess the confidence of the majority of the people should be elected." Mr. Westmacott gives the occupations of 856 persons elected to serve on the Committees. The list includes 323 landholders and middlemen, 236 cultivators, 229 traders, 41 doctors, 30 teachers and 19 pensioners It is estimated that about 25 per cent. of the persons elected know English. Finally, Mr. Westmacott reports:—"It is the opinion of Government officers and others, who have local knowledge of the various unions, that the electors have made admirable selections, choosing persons of intelligence, substance and respectability resident among them, and the natural leaders of rural society."

5. The elections appear to have been judiciously conducted. The villages of each union were divided into groups, and the groups were left to elect one or two representatives. It is important to observe that the people took great interest in the grouping of villages, and Mr Westmacott justly observes that every step in advance from the village as a unit to any form of grouping is a matter for congratulation. Naturally each village desired to see one of its inhabitants nominated, but the different groups appear to have acquiesced in the result of a show of hands.

6. Mr. Westmacott has made an estimate of the average amount which would probably be at the disposal of each Committee for expenditure on public objects. This estimate is avowedly an incomplete one. It includes, for instance, a share of the existing expenditure on Primary Education, but takes no account of the contributions which the villagers are known to make to the support of the master of the village school. Mr. Westmacott's estimate also necessarily omits all calculation of the amount which would be made over to the Committees for the repair of district roads passing through the Union, though no doubt the Local Boards would find it an economical, as well as an effective, plan to employ the Union Committees for this purpose. Again, while it assumes that the grant for village roads will, as has hitherto been the practice in many sub-divisions, be met by an equal amount from local contributions, it necessarily excludes all subscriptions for special objects. There can be little doubt, however, that these will be forthcoming. Several instances are specified in Mr. Westmacott's report of roads being constructed and metalled entirely from funds raised by the villagers from subscriptions among themselves. In his report of 31st December 1881, Mr. Beames, Commissioner of Burdwan, first brought to the notice of Government the excellent work of self-help done by small rural communities in the Hooghly district. He wrote:—"In some parts of the Serampore sub-division there are many large and populous villages, among the inhabitants of which are many gentlemen of high intelligence and business habits. These gentlemen have undertaken the office of punchayet under the Village Chowkidari Act, and finding a very great demand and necessity for sanitary improvements in their villages, have availed themselves of the influence acquired by their appointment to induce the villagers to subscribe for such purposes. They have built culverts, made roads, and drained dirty places—all with funds contributed by the villagers." Mr. Westmacott refers, amongst other instances, to an instructive case in which two villages together raised as much as Rs. 1,000 for the metalling of a road. Here is a distinct advance towards combination for the general good. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt whatever that when the Union system is established, and the sphere of interest of these Committees is enlarged, the practice of self-help will receive an important development. The estimate of Rs. 740 for each Union is therefore to be taken only as a minimum. In most cases the income will be very much larger.

7. The Lieutenant-Governor considers that the result of the experiment justifies the lines upon which the Local Self-Government Bill has been drawn, and that the system offers promise of excellent results. Success or failure, however, will depend very much upon the attitude of the local officers. Where sub-divisional officers display as intelligent an interest in the development of local institutions as Messrs Carstairs and Collier have shown in Serampore, the result cannot be doubtful. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets that the unavoidable postponement of the passing of the Local Self-Government Act renders it impossible to give legal status at once to the Committees already elected. But he thinks very much may be done in the way of preparing the people for the introduction of the measure, if the Commissioners of the Metropolitan and Dacca Divisions will urge upon the District Road Committees and Magistrates the advisability of intermediately utilizing, as far as possible, the services of these Committees in the disposal of the Road funds and the Primary Education grant.

8. In conclusion, Mr. Rivers Thompson desires to thank Mr. Westmacott for the thoroughness and ability with which he has performed the duty entrusted to him, and for the excellent report which he has submitted. He also tenders his special acknowledgments to Mr. Coxhead, Magistrate of Burdwan, and Messrs. Collier and Ritchie, and Baboo Ram Churn Bose, for the interest they have displayed in carrying out the experimental enquiries of the past few months.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

COLMAN MACAULAY,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Dated the 31st March 1883,

From—E. V. Westmacott, Esq., on Special Duty,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

With reference to your No. 1413T—M of 17th October 1883, I have the honour to submit a report on the progress made in introducing the Union System under the scheme of Local Self-Government, and, in order to render it complete in itself, I have repeated parts of my report previously submitted.

Selection of sub divisions in which to form Unions.

I was directed to confine my operations to the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions, and to the Moonsheegunj Sub-division of the district of Dacca, and in view of the shortness of the time at my disposal, which precluded all idea of extensive operations, and limited me to experiment, and to exemplification of the proposed scheme in localities most favourable to its development, I consulted the Commissioners of the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions as to the sub-divisions in which there might be the best prospect of success, and decided that in the Burdwan Division nothing should be done in the districts of Bankoora, Beerbhoom, or Midnapore, and that Unions should be introduced only in Burdwan, Hooghly, and Howrah. Of the three sub-divisions of Hooghly, Jehanabad was excluded from the scheme, and work taken up only in the Sudder and Serampoor Sub-divisions, of which, with a trifling exception in the latter, the whole extra-municipal area has been divided into Unions. In Burdwan, operations have been confined to the Sudder and Culna Sub-divisions, excluding Raneegunj and Cutwa, and I believe Unions have been formed in one thanna only of each of the two selected sub-divisions.

In the Presidency Division it was determined to attempt the formation of Unions only in the Sudder and two other sub-divisions of Nuddea and in the Baraset Sub-division of the 24-Pergunnahs.

In the following statement I show the extent to which Unions have been sketched out in the selected sub-divisions. The area spoken of denotes the extra municipal area only :—

One hundred and eighty Unions have been sketched out in 33 thannas comprised in 10 sub-divisions, and the whole area of six sub-divisions and of 32 thannas is covered by Unions. In Burdwan, work has been taken up in one thanna only in each of the two selected sub-divisions. The Magistrate has undertaken the conduct of operations himself. In the Serampore Sub-division nearly the whole of the Serampoor thanna is comprised in municipalities, and the extra municipal area, seven square miles, consists of detached villages, far apart, of which it is impracticable to form a Union. Moonsheegunj thanna, in the sub-division of the same name, comprises, on the one hand, a very densely populated area, in which the population may be 1,600 to the square mile, and, on the other, extensive alluvial land newly formed, in which the population may be as low as 300 to the mile. The former has been divided into Unions, but though the Deputy Magistrate thinks Unions might be formed in the chur lands, Mr. Wyer, the Magistrate, remarks "I think the churs are even more unsuited for the Union System than the mainland." In more than one instance, where the Sub-divisional and District Magistrates had at first thought it impracticable to introduce Unions except in limited areas, the success of the experiment has encouraged them to extend it widely.

Necessity for maps on a large scale, and difficulty of obtaining them.

When I had selected the sub-divisions, my attention was next directed to obtaining maps on the large scale of four inches to the mile of the thannas in which I was to work. Hooghly was the only district which I found supplied with such maps, but I hoped that in others they might have been prepared in the districts from tracings from the survey atlases, in which the maps are on the scale required. Dacca, however, was the only district in which this was done. The Surveyor-General was able to give me tracings in cases where the village maps had been congregated into sheets, but only after some delay, and at the cost of Rs. 763, and where the village maps had not been congregated, but where each village was shown on a separate sheet, I was assured that it would not only be very expensive to prepare the maps I wanted, but that they could not be ready for several months. In the district of Nuddea I was obliged to work with maps on a small scale, and even of those the supply appeared to be limited. I think it is to be regretted that these fine maps, for which all the materials exist, should not be available for administrative purposes, and venture to suggest that every thanna, every sub-division, and every district should be furnished with several copies of them. For famine relief, census, police, road-work, drainage, and many other purposes they would be invaluable.

Size of Unions; their area and population.

The best maps available having been procured, I proceeded to roughly block out the area of each thanna into Unions, and here I submit that some remarks on the size of Unions will not be out of place. I believe that the idea of entrusting some of the functions of local self-government to rural Union Committees arose from a suggestion of my own, that the village punchayets formed for the collection and disbursement of the rate raised for the payment of village police might be placed in charge of village pounds, village schools, and village roads. The management of village affairs by the leading men of the community is no novelty in India, but it was by no means certain that villagers could be induced to take any active interest in the management of affairs affecting areas extending beyond the boundaries of their own villages. Mr. Brojendronath De, Joint-Magistrate of Hooghly, reports that the people object to one feature only in the scheme, namely, the large size of Unions, thinking that it would be much better that each village should manage its own affairs, and in other sub-divisions the people have urged that the village should be made the unit. A step in advance was taken when villages were grouped together under the Chowkidaree Act (No. VI of 1870) for the maintenance of village police, and it was thought that this might be utilized in the introduction of local self-government. But when calculations were made as to the amount of funds which could be placed at the disposal of local committees, a subject which I will discuss presently, it appeared that the sums available if divided among chowkidaree punchayets would be so small as to reduce the scheme to an absurdity, and it was therefore necessary to make the Unions much larger than the jurisdictions of the punchayets. It was next proposed to limit the size of Unions by the provision that no house in a Union should be distant more than four miles from any other house, so that in densely inhabited tracts the area of a Union would be about 14 square miles, but when local reasons for grouping villages together were considered, it was found that if this limit were strictly observed, the average area would be very much smaller. The annexed statement shows the average size and population of the Unions which I have approved in each thanna of which the whole area has been divided into Unions.

* Only part of the area divided into unions.

Excluding thanna Moonsheegunj in which, from the differing condition of its several parts to which I have already referred, it is impossible to strike an average, 174 Unions in 32 thannas have an average area of 20 square miles each, and contain on an average 2,575 households, with a population of 13,142. The highest population is 30,458 in the Unions of thanna Srinagar in the Moonsheegunj Sub-division, with an area of only 22 square miles, whereas in thanna Chogdah in Sub-division Ranaghat the average area is 29 square miles with a population of only 13,863. The Unions with the smallest population are in thanna Balagurh in the Sudder Sub-division of Hooghly, averaging 14 square miles and 6,730 population, but in Howrah, thanna Dhomjoor, with an average area of only 12 square miles, gives an average population of 21,371.

Having roughly sketched out the Unions into which I proposed to divide each thanna, in view of natural features of the country and boundaries of jurisdiction of police ou posts, I sent the maps to the sub-divisional officers, who made local inquiry into all circumstances which might affect the grouping of villages together, such as joint chowkidaree punchayets, joint interest in schools or roads, zemindaree arrangements for collection of rents, and the like, and having revised the boundaries of Unions according to such circumstances, they prepared a list of the mouzahs in each Union. In most sub-divisions this work was very carefully done; in some it was entrusted to inferior officers who did not appear to understand the meaning of a map, and when the day of election arrived, it was found necessary to make extensive alterations in the boundaries of Unions. I thought it advisable in every instance to pay attention to the wishes of the people in grouping villages together, considering every case in which a villager extended his interests beyond the limits of his own village to be a step in advance. Valuing maps as I do for administrative purposes, I was surprised to find how little the local police officers had utilized the work done during the operations for the last census, in reconciling the local names of villages with the names recognised in the maps and survey records. Unless this is done, it is impossible to show the position and boundaries of Unions accurately on the maps.

People invited to assemble for election of Union Committees. Attendance of electors.

When a complete list of mouzas corresponding with the map had been prepared for each Union, a date was fixed for elections of Committees for one or two Unions, a place being selected where there would be room for a large number of persons to assemble, and except in the Culna Sub-division of Burdwan I have been myself present with the sub-divisional officer at the first elections held in each sub-division. In most cases the attendance at the earlier elections was scanty: in two, Hooghly Sudder Sub-division and Moonshegunj Sub-division in Dacca, it was so bad that I could not consider that the people were represented at all, and therefore postponed elections for the time. In both these cases the attendance, when I held elections at a later date, was very good indeed. The best attendance was in Ranaghat in Nuddea, where out of 2,170 households 2,006 electors attended. This I attribute partly to the admirable organization of the village police by Major Ramsay, the District Superintendent of Police, whereby information was rapidly circulated among the people, and partly to the trouble taken by the Deputy Magistrate, Baboo Ram Churn Bose, to explain the scheme in the villages to the people beforehand. I commenced holding elections on the 28th November in the Serampoor Sub-division, and on that date held elections for three Unions, in three different places. The average number of electors present for every 100 households was 6·8, 6·3, and 4·2 respectively. This was not very satisfactory, but in subsequent elections held by Mr. Collier, the Joint-Magistrate, as the people understood the scheme better, the attendance improved considerably, and in the last thanna in which elections were held there were about 22 electors present for every 100 households, while in one election the percentage rose to 40. I think that the smallness of the attendance at first was due, not to want of interest in the proceedings, but to ignorance of their meaning, to timidity and fear of being entrapped into some vague liability by taking part in the acts of an assembly the object of which the people did not understand. Mr. Collier has taken great interest in the scheme, and in making it generally understood, and the more clearly the people have realized what was being done and intended, the more eagerly they have come forward to elect Committees.

On the 1st December I held elections for two Unions in the Baraset Sub-division of the 24-Pergunnahs. In the first 9·4 electors appeared for every 100 households, but the people were then coming in rapidly, and in the second the proportion rose to 23·4 per cent. On the 10th December, in two Unions in Hooghly Sudder sub-division, there was a percentage of 8·3 present in the first, but only 1 per cent. in the second, for which I held no elections. Those present said that they had been elected as representatives by their neighbours in the villages, but I did not consider this satisfactory. Holding elections for the same Union on the 31st January, I found the proportion of electors to households to be over 16 per cent.

On the 12th December, at two elections in the Nuddea Sudder Sub-division, the percentages were 19 and 22. In some villages, the educated persons at first endeavoured to ignore the lower orders, and discourage them from voting, but this was not allowed. Elections in this sub-division have been very satisfactory, Mr. Ritchie, the Joint-Magistrate, having taken great trouble about them. Altogether, out of 63,844 households in the Sub-division, 9,441 electors came forward, or about 14·7 per cent.

On the 3rd January, at the election in the Ranaghat Sub-division of Nuddea, to which I have already referred, the percentage was 97 electors to every 100 households. This high average has scarcely been maintained at subsequent elections, but the attendance has throughout been very good.

On the 7th January the attendance at two elections in the Moonsheegunj Sub-division of Dacca was so bad that I did not hold elections. The Deputy Magistrate admitted that he had not given due notice, and at a subsequent meeting held on the 19th February, found the percentage of electors present to be 39. The Deputy Magistrate has reported the attendance at five elections held since my visit to have been very good indeed. I do not quite understand his figures, and as they refer to a portion only of the thanna, I have no means of checking them; but there seem to have been on an average over 80 electors present for every 100 households.

On the 15th January, at elections in the Meherpoor Sub-division in Nuddea, I found 10 electors present for every 100 households, and at elections since held by the Assistant Magistrate, the attendance seems to have been still more scanty.

In Burdwan Sudder Sub-division, on the 30th January, the proportion of electors to households was only 4·6, and in eight Unions in which elections have been held 1,338 electors have come forward for 24,570 households, being about 5·4 per cent. The Magistrate reports that the villagers have shown a tendency rather to send representatives than to attend in large numbers, and that on the whole the people have not shown much enthusiasm. As I have said with reference to the elections in Hooghly, I do not think this representation by delegates satisfactory. We have no guarantee that the persons who appear as delegates really represent the whole community.

In Howrah Sudder Sub-division, on the 2nd February, I found attendance rather poor. In one group there were 104 electors to represent 578 households, but in another only 8 for 896 households. On an average there were six electors present for every 100 households.

At the elections held in the Kulna Sub-division of Burdwan there were on an average 11·5 electors present for every 100 households.

Even where the attendance has been worst, I am inclined to think that it has been due, not so much to want of interest in the scheme, as to the villagers sending a few of their number as representatives instead of coming themselves. In many instances this has undoubtedly been the case, and therefore the interest taken by the people in the elections cannot always be gauged by the numbers actually present.

Functions of Union Committees explained to electors.

The more fully the real nature of the proposed scheme has been understood, the more eager have the people been to come forward and select their own representatives. Where it was not understood, they held aloof at first, fearing lest it should be a scheme for taxation, and in some instances electors who were actually present were deterred by some feeling of this kind from coming forward to be counted. At every election brief explanations were given in the plainest language possible of what it was proposed to do. It was explained that the villages in a Union were grouped together for purposes of local improvement; that the people were to be entrusted with the management of their own schools, roads, pounds, water-supply, drainage, and other matters affecting their common welfare; that such funds as might be available would be made over to them for these purposes; that besides contributions from the road cess and Government grants for education, they would have complete control of the expenditure of the income from pounds so long as such expenditure was for the benefit of the public, and that they were now called together to elect a punchayet or committee from among themselves to whose management local affairs should be entrusted. It was specially explained that the scheme involved no taxation whatever, but that the people were at liberty to raise funds voluntarily for any local purpose. These explanations were always considered satisfactory, and even where the people were at first timid in coming forward I generally found that as the elections proceeded they became more and more eager to bring forward candidates in whom they felt confidence.

Various classes of the people to which electors belonged.

I have spoken of the proportion borne by the number of electors present to the number of households in each Union, but I have considered it also important to observe the classes of people to which the electors belonged At the first elections held, as I have said, in the Serampoor Sub-division, six or seven electors were present for every hundred households, and every village in the first Union except two was represented. The electors present were principally Goalas and Mahomedans, substantial and respectable ryots, but I saw scarcely any of the educated, English-speaking class who alone have been able to make public their views respecting local self-government, and to declare their eagerness to undertake the duties involved in the idea. Fortunately, one of the Mookerjees, zemindars of Jonai, was present, giving me most valuable assistance in explaining matters to the people, and in giving me local information, and I ascertained beyond doubt that the educated classes were not holding aloof, but that scarcely any of them were resident in the Union in question. I held three elections at different places on the same day, and at the third a very fair proportion of educated persons were present. It would have been matter for regret if on the one hand the educated classes had held aloof from the formation of rural Unions, as spheres inadequate to their political aspirations, or if, on the other, they had monopolised the representation by discouraging the bulk of the people from coming forward, and representing to them that the elections were matters affecting only the superior classes of society. Once or twice indications of this latter attitude were observed, but they were quite exceptional, and generally educated men and men of superior caste and position have come forward as belonging to the people, and the people have shown that they are in sympathy with them, and possess their confidence, by electing many of them as their representatives So many of the persons who have received an English education are employed in towns as clerks, pleaders, medical practitioners, and the like, that the number actually resident in the rural villages in which their ancestral homes may be is small.

Attitude of the educated classes.

Mr. Ritchie, Joint-Magistrate of Nuddea, reports that educated people * * * "have not held aloof at all. They appear to me to be in harmony with the people, and to possess their confidence. I have found no difficulty in any case in reconciling the wishes of the common people with those of the educated classes." From Mr. Ritchie's detailed reports, I observe that the only Unions in which 'bhodro lok' did not come forward in large numbers in his sub-division were those in which there were scarcely any of those classes resident.

Mr. Collier, Joint-Magistrate of Serampoor, says with reference to the attitude of the educated classes, "I am of opinion that it has been quite satisfactory. I have seen no signs of an attempt on their part to monopolise the power of election. On the contrary, I have been struck by their evident wish that those persons who possess the confidence of the majority of the people should be elected. * * * On the other hand, I have not found any disposition on the part of the educated classes to hold altogether aloof. They appear perfectly willing to serve if elected, and also come forward to vote. * * * The impression on my mind from the elections that I have held so far is, that there is much more harmony among the various classes in the mofussil than I had previously supposed. One is always liable to be too much influenced by one's judicial experiences in such matters, forgetting that they are necessarily confined to the darker side of things."

Mr. Coxhead, Magistrate of Burdwan, notes respecting his first four elections, that "about a quarter of the electors were cultivators, while the greater part of the rest live on the land as jotdars or lakhirajdars. Some ten per cent. are traders or shopkeepers, and there was a sprinkling of native medical practitioners. The labouring class were almost entirely unrepresented. It may be presumed that they were quite content to leave their interests in the hands of their fellow-villagers who belonged to a higher social grade."

Mr. Coxhead has made careful inquiry into the caste, education, and social standing of 1,123 electors. Among them he found 350 Mahomedans, and 172 Brahmans; the rest were of various Hindoo castes. Where inquiry into the point was made, about 40 per cent. were found able to read and write. In several cases European planters and native zemindars of position have been present at elections. Petty zemindars and the local agents of absentee zemindars have attended in large numbers, and I have no note of any instance in which a resident zemindar of any position has held aloof from the proceedings. Had such persons shown themselves hostile to the scheme, I should certainly have heard if it. It is not necessary to quote further from the reports of other officers, as all agree in saying that educated and uneducated, high caste and low, Hindoo and Mahomedan, have shown equal readiness to come forward in answer to the invitation to assemble, and elect their representatives. Of arrogance of caste as displayed in a wish to exclude the lower castes from voting, I think I may say we have seen nothing. Of arrogance of education, specially among the younger men, there have been a few instances, but they have been where the scope of the Union scheme has been misapprehended or imperfectly understood. Where it was thought that the functions of Government were to be made over to the natives of the country, the educated men thought themselves the only persons fitted to exercise those functions; but this feeling gave way when it was made clear to them as villagers, that village affairs were to be managed by representatives appointed by the villagers, and then, in accordance with principles which have been recognized from generation to generation, the educated men admitted that every member of the village community had a right to an equal voice in the assembly. The recognition of this right, however, by no means implies manhood suffrage, or that every adult male in the village is considered to be entitled to make his voice heard in the assembly. I have quoted Mr. Coxhead's remark that the labouring class was, in the Burdwan elections, almost entirely unrepresented, and in other districts also this has been the case, so far as I have been able to observe. Even as in the Teutonic gemot freemen only had a voice, so in the village communities of India the men who possess nothing beyond the ability to labour with their hands are considered to have nothing at stake, and so are not allowed a voice in the management of the affairs of the community. I may almost say that they are not held to be members of the community. They may appear as ryots in the zemindar's rent-roll, because they pay rent for the land on which their huts are built, but they have no share in the lands of the village. Traders, physicians, school-masters, barbers, blacksmiths, washermen, and carpenters are all recognized members of the village community, but the unskilled labourers, who live only by working in the fields, do not appear to be so, and they acquiesce in the situation, and do not attempt to take place in the village assembly.

I did not think it practicable to scrutinize closely the qualification of every elector, and beyond turning away a number of school-boys at almost every election, accepted all who came forward. The annexed statement shows in tabular form for each sub-division the attendance of electors in proportion to the number of households, so far as I have collected the figures:—

Form of election.

In a primary as distinguished from a representative assembly, where every member of it possesses a vote, and where the members are drawn from a large area to a centre, that centre being a populous place, the inhabitants of that place will be present in greater numbers than the people of distant villages, and will by their numerical superiority monopolise the representation of the whole area. In view of this, I have endeavoured to hold elections, not in the large and central villages, which will form the head-quarters of their respective Unions, but at places on the border between two Unions, and I have moreover to a certain extent deprived the assemblies of their primary character, and made them representative, by dividing the villages of each Union into groups, and allowing each group to elect one or more representatives. I generally formed the central villages into one group, and divided those surrounding them into four. In this grouping the people took great interest, and frequently gave reasons for grouping villages together in modification of my proposals, to which I almost invariably acceded. I have before stated my opinion that every step in advance from the village as a unit to any form of grouping is a matter for congratulation, and a ground for hoping that the affairs of the whole Union may be considered rather than the affairs of each separate village in the Union. In one instance, the people of two whole groups asked to be allowed to vote together. I think it desirable that the officer holding the elections should furnish the Magistrate of the district with a note of the villages forming each of these groups, and of the name or names of the members of the Committee elected by each group. It will probably be thought advisable that every vacancy which may hereafter require to be filled up, on account of death, resignation, or the like, before a general election of members takes place, should be filled by a person elected by that group only which had elected the person whose place he is required to take, and not by a general vote of the electors of the Union at large.

Division of the Union into groups for representation.

As soon as the grouping of villages was settled, the electors of each village in a group were called forward, and counted; while the functions of Union Committees were explained to them, and they were then asked to nominate the person whom they wished to be their representative on the Committee. In some cases, where the people understood the nature of the proceedings beforehand, they at once declared the names of the persons they wished to choose, but generally they preferred retiring to consult, and while awaiting the issue of their deliberations, I called up the electors of other groups, and explained to them in their turn what was required of them. When each group of electors came forward to announce their choice, they were rarely unanimous. Each village was generally able to agree, but it was seldom that all the villages in a group were able to do so. Some groups brought forward the names of four or five candidates, and most of them named more than one. In these cases the name of each candidate was written down, and then read out in turn, the electors in favour of each being told to hold up their hands so that the votes might be counted. The number of votes in favour of each candidate being recorded, and every group having declared its choice, I proceeded to examine the qualifications of the persons chosen, ascertaining that they were payers of license-tax, cesses, or rates, were residents in in the Union, and had never been convicted of any non-bailable offence. It was easy to declare who was the man chosen by the majority of electors in each group, but the representation of minorities required some consideration, as the maximum of nine members for each Committee was not to be exceeded. If a numerically small community, separated distinctly from the rest of the Union, such as a village of Mahomedans or Christians in the midst of a Hindoo population, urgently desired representation, I allowed it if I could do so without injustice to others. Where the parties supporting two candidates in a group were nearly equal, I would generally allow the election of both, and, without adhering to any strict rules, I think I succeeded in every instance in forming a Committee of those persons in whom the people resident in the Union felt confidence, as the guardians of their interests, and the Magistrates and subdivisional officers who have been holding elections subsequent to those held in my presence appear to have been equally successful. I think I have only heard of one case in which a nominee of the people was disqualified by having been convicted of a criminal offence, and a few have been rejected as not being regularly resident in the Unions for which they were nominated. A few again, but very few, have refused to act, and the grounds of refusal have been reasonable enough, such as sickness or old age. Mere cases of coyness, without valid reasons for refusal, generally gave way to explanation and persuasion. The question whether the members of Committees were to be paid has often been asked, but no great disappointment was shown at the reply, which was generally that if they worked for the people, it was for the people to pay them.

Class of persons elected to serve on Union Committees.

I have received intimation of the election of Committees, on the principles which I have endeavoured to explain, in 157 Unions, the number of persons elected being 1,170 in 155 of them. In the other two I have only heard the fact that elections have been held. I have not in every case been furnished with details as to the caste, occupation, education, and social standing of these persons, but those which I am able to give in the annexed table may be taken as typical of the rest. The details do not agree with the totals, because many persons are shown twice, for instance as landholders and also as traders or physicians. Among the jotdars, especially in Nuddea, it is impossible to say without detailed inquiry whether a man is an actual cultivator, or, as he is in many instances, a middle man. Under the head of landholders are shown persons of very different positions ranging from zemindars of position and potneedars to petty middlemen. I have not found it possible to analyse the figures very closely, and must confess that the results I give are of very little value for determining the status of the persons elected.

Out of 931 elected persons of whose caste I have notes, I find—

Brahman	321
Mahomedan	266
Kayasth	104
Koibort o	67
Christian	1
Other castes	172

Among 856 of whose occupation I have notes, I find—

Landholders and middlemen	323
Jotdars and cultivators	236
Traders	229
Persons in the employ of zemindars and indigo factories ...	132
Physicians	41
Schoolmasters, pundits, &c.	30
Pensioners	19
Priests	18
Clerks	8
Pleaders and mooktars	7
Of no occupation	3
Fisherman, blacksmith, sugar-boiler, oilman, embroiderer, engineer, weaver, each	1

The notes which I have received respecting the knowledge of English possessed by the persons elected are very imperfect. Having, however, myself been present at 18 elections, and received some notes on this point from other officers, I am able to say that where there are a number of persons who have received an English education resident among the rural population, being at the same time men of substance and respectability, the people are inclined to elect them as their representatives. In the Sudder Sub-division of Howrah, when two Committees, each consisting of six members, were elected, five in one Committee and two in the other were acquainted with English. This is, however, above the average. Out of 140 persons elected in the Serampoor Sub-division, Mr. Collier has noted 21, or about 15 per cent., as knowing English, though from their occupation I think it probable that some others should have been placed in the same category. In Burdwan Sudder Sub-division Mr. Coxhead has noted 14 out of 63, or 22 per cent. For the sub-divisions of the Presidency Division my notes are very imperfect on this point. In one Committee of six in Baraset, I found five members who knew English. Out of 45 persons in the Moonsheegunj Sub-division, 11 knew English, or about 25 per cent. On the whole I think nearly one-fourth of all the person elected would be found to know English if the notes on the point were complete. I have before observed that the great majority of persons who have received an English education are employed in towns, and do not reside in the rural villages. It has been very carefully ascertained that they are not holding aloof from the process of forming rural Unions where they are really rural residents. A very small percentage of the persons elected are unable to read and write Bengali. Mr Coxhead, in Burdwan, has taken the trouble in some cases to make inquiries on this point respecting the electors also, of whom he found over 40 per cent. able to read and write.

It is the opinion of Government officers and others who have local knowledge of the various Unions, that the electors have made admirable selections, choosing persons of intelligence, substance, and respectability resident among them, and the natural leaders of rural society. Mr. Collier observes that they appear to look to personal character more than to anything else, and mentions an instance in which of two brothers, well educated zemindars, one was elected and the other rejected by the ryots of their own estate as a man in whom they could not feel confidence. Mr. Collier remarks that the electors understand that the Committees will have certain sums to spend for the benefit of the community, and look on the members elected as trustees on their behalf, and are therefore particularly anxious that they should be men whom they can trust. Without saying that they lay no stress on education and intelligence, Mr. Collier thinks that what they look at chiefly is honesty and fairness.

The absence of ill-feeling between various classes has been very marked, and I have been surprised by the extreme rarity of cases in which villages have been divided into hostile factions, compared with what my experience in Eastern Bengal had led me to expect. Such cases there have been, but not many. Whoever the leading men in the villages may be, zemindars and their agents, traders, physicians, or substantial ryots, they are the men that have been chosen, and Mahomedan communities have shown no objection to electing Hindus to represent them.

Vague as may have been the ideas of Unions and Union Committees which electors had conceived before coming to the place of meeting, they thoroughly understood before they separated that they were invited to choose local Committees, whom they could trust to carry out measures for the material improvement of the condition of the rural community, and those best qualified to judge have pronounced unanimously that they have chosen well. No system of selection and nomination by the officers of Government could have given better Committees, and I doubt whether it could have given Committees nearly as good as those the people have chosen for themselves. We have undoubtedly found the men whom the people feel that they can trust, and those men are willing to undertake the duty of working for the people's benefit.

Record of position and boundaries of Unions.

The name, position, and boundaries of each Union proposed, upon which I am directed to report, will be found in the annexed Registers of Unions. As a list of the survey mouzas forming each Union is given in the register, a reference to the survey maps will at once show the position and boundaries of the Union. I have before spoken of the difficulty of obtaining maps, and as most of those which I have obtained have been placed in the hands of the sub-divisional officers, who could scarcely have grouped the villages for election without them, I am unable to send copies of maps with this report.

The names of the persons elected are given in the annexed registers of Union Committees. The following statement shows the number of Unions into which every thanna in which the work has been taken up has been divided, the number in which elections have been held, and the number of registers which I am able to submit. I have not in every case received the registers of Unions, and where elections have not yet been held, registers of Committees have of course not been prepared. I submit that those remaining may be obtained through the Commissioners of Divisions, and also that the registers in which columns have been left blank, although materials for entry undoubtedly exist, should be returned for completion.

Financial considerations.

The Register of Unions shows the village in which every post office, pound, ferry, and primary school, is situate in every Union, with the average income of every pound and ferry, the average amount spent by Government on primary education, and the gross expenditure during the last five years on village roads in every Union. From these materials I have made some calculations as to the funds which may be available for each Union; but as only 139 registers out of 180 have reached me, I cannot report fully as regards each Union. I think that all grants for village roads and primary education may be made over to Union Committees; that every Committee should be entrusted with the management of all existing pounds in its Union, with power to open such other pounds as the public convenience may require, and with the expenditure of the income derived from pounds. I am not prepared to recommend that the proceeds of public ferries should be made over to them, except in some instances such as where a ferry meets a purely local want, not being on a line of road, but only providing access to a local market. Where a ferry exists on a line of road passing through several Unions, I think that more Unions than one should share in the income derived from it. I think, however, that Union Committees might be encouraged to take farms of public ferries. Whether funds should be made over to the Committees for the maintenance and repair of district as distinct from village roads is a question not easy to answer. I have not been able to obtain much information as to the average annual expenditure under this head, except for the Hooghly Sudder Sub-division, where the Joint-Magistrate reports that Rs. 150 might be made over to each Union for the maintenance of unmetalled roads. I think it will be very desirable that district or sub-divisional road cess committees should arrange with every Union Committee for the maintenance and repair of such parts of district roads as traverse its Union; but such arrangement must be made locally. It may be practicable in some cases, and not in others. Mr. Collier suggests that the payment of rewards for the destruction of wild animals might be entrusted to Union Committees It is possible that servants of Union Committees might be made postmasters, thereby receiving some addition to their incomes, but I do not suppose it would ever be practicable to entrust the control of post offices to the Union Committees.

Income from pounds.

The annexed statement shows in tabular form for each sub-division the result of my calculations as to the income to be derived from pounds. In column 4, I show the number of Unions for which I have figures. These are complete only for the following sub-divisions:—

24-Pergunnahs, Baraset.
Nuddea, Sudder.
Ditto, Meherpore.
Ditto, Ranaghat.
Burdwan, Sudder.
Ditto, Culna.
Hooghly, Serampore.

In column 5, I show the number of existing pounds, and in column 6 the average gross income derived from them. I have not thought it necessary to deduct cost of maintenance and salaries of pound-keepers, because the Union Committees will be able to arrange for this expenditure more economically than Government can, and in many instances it has been met by farmers of pounds, and the income shown denotes net profit to Government. The distribution of pounds varies considerably. Whereas in the Sudder Sub-division of Nuddea there are 49 pounds in 27 Unions, there are in Serampore only seven pounds in 20 unions. In one union in Nuddea there are four pounds, yielding an income of Rs. 679, while in others there is no pound at all. I shew in column 7 the average income of each existing pound, in column 8 the additional number of pounds given by allowing one to every union in which there are none, in column 10 the estimated gross income from pounds in each sub-division, when these additional ones are opened, and in column 11 the average income I expect for each union from its pounds. This ranges from Rs. 299 in Serampore to Rs. 116 in Burdwan, but between individual pounds the difference is far greater, ranging from Rs 507 in Serampore to Rs. 46 in Nuddea. I believe the distance from which ryots bring trespassing cattle to the pound to be generaliy so short, that I do not expect the income of existing pounds to be at all diminished by opening additional ones, and I believe that the income of every pound under the management of a committee composed of men trusted by the villagers will be much larger than the income received by Government clear of the profits of farmers and the peculation of dishonest pound-keepers. My figures shew an average income from pounds for each union of Rs. 230, and I feel confident that it would really be much higher. Perhaps I may safely estimate it at Rs. 400. The Joint-Magistrate of Hooghly does not think it would exceed Rs. 150, but as the existing pounds in the Sudder sub-division pay an average of Rs. 206, and those in Serampore of Rs. 299, I am unable to agree with him:—

Allotments for primary education.

I have ascertained from the Director of Public Instruction what the grant for primary education to each district has been for the current year, and the annexed table shews the amount available for each of the sub-divisions in which I have been working, in the proportion borne by the number of its thannas to the total number af thannas in the district. In column 8 I shew the average amount available for each union, if the whole could be divided among them, but the Director is of opinion that at least half should be reserved for payment of sub-Inspectors, and for giving rewards as the result of examinations, which could not be conducted by the union committees. In column 9 therefore I shew the average amount which might be actually allotted to each union in each sub-division :—

District.	Number of thannas in district.	Allotment for current year.	Sub-division.	Number of thannas in sub-division.	Proportion of allotment due to sub-division.	Number of unions.	Gross amount for each union.	Net amount to be allotted to committee.

In the district of Hooghly something must perhaps be deducted in consideration of the fact that nearly the whole of one thanna in each of the two sub-divisions is included in municipalities, but I am not aware whether any portion of the primary education grant is expended in municipalities or not.

The annexed statement shows the number of existing primary schools in those Unions of each sub-division for which I have received figures, the average amount spent on them annually by Government in each Union, and for comparison I repeat the figures given in column 9 of the last statement :—

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Division.	District.	Sub-division.	Number of Unions.	Number of existing primary schools.	Average annual cost to Government of primary schools in sub-division.	Average spent in each Union.	Average amount available for each Union shown in foregoing statement.

The comparison, however, is not of much value, as the expenditure shown in column 7 appears to include payment of rewards by result of examination. From my calculation it appears to me that exclusive of all such payments, every Union Committee might receive from the primary education grant an average annual sum of about Rs. 83, or in round figures Rs 90, being Rs. 7-8 per month, and with this, by making the schoolmasters act as pound-keepers, village accountants, and perhaps post-masters, and by supplementing their pay by private contributions as is done at present, I think each Union Committee might maintain at least two very fair primary schools.

Allotments for village roads.

Thirdly, I have to consider what funds might be allotted to the rural Unions from the district road funds. This is a matter lying entirely within the discretion of the district road committees, or the Boards to which their functions may hereafter be transferred. The annexed table shows the average amount available for every Union on the basis of the allotments made to each sub-division for the current year :—

Division.	District.	Sub-division.	Number of Unions.	Allotment for village roads.	Average amount available for each Union.	Amount spent in the last five years on village roads.	Annual average per Union.

These figures give an average of Rs. 111 available for each Union, and I should think the district committees might easily allot to each Union a sum of at least Rs. 125 for village roads.

I do not take into consideration any income from ferries, or any allotments for maintenance and repair of district roads. For this I have given my reasons.

Voluntary contributions.

It remains to consider the amount which the people may be expected to raise voluntarily among themselves for expenditure on public works by the Union Committees. Except where teachers in primary schools have been appointed by Government officials without consulting the wishes of the people, as has been too often the case, it has always been customary for the villagers to contribute something, whether in cash, maintenance, or lodging, for the support of the gooroo of the village patshala, and in Mahomedan districts many teachers are regularly maintained by the people without any contribution from Government. I hope that, in continuance of this custom, funds may be placed by the villagers at the disposal of the Committees for educational purposes. I see no reason why the Committees should not undertake the management of grant-in-aid schools. In allotting funds for village roads, I believe it has been the practice in the best managed sub-divisions to make every grant conditional on the contribution by the people of a sum at least equal to that granted, and I feel confident that such contributions will be continued. The Joint-Magistrate of Hooghly mentions an instance, in which two villages offered, in November last, to contribute Rs. 1,000 towards metalling a certain road, and another, where a village offered Rs. 250 towards a branch road to their village. Mr. Collier speaks of three new roads, each several miles in length, being constructed from exclusively private funds, and two villages in which the roads running through them have been metalled from private subscriptions. He observes, that in the Serampoor Subdivision the Mahomedans are especially prominent in constructing works of public utility from private funds. The Deputy Magistrate of Moonsheegunj reports that in one Union, where 87 electors were present for every 100 households, a resident came forward with a donation of Rs. 500 to commemorate the introduction of the Union System, to be applied to some public purpose for the good of his village at the discretion of Government. I think there are good grounds for hoping that the Union Committees, being composed of men thoroughly trusted by their neighbours, will receive large amounts by voluntary contribution not only for schools and roads, but for improvement of water-supply, drainage, clearing jungle, destruction of wild animals, and other objects for which the people are in the habit of raising funds among themselves. From my experience as a district officer, I think that Magistrates when on tour will, by kindly inquiry into the working of Committees, and by suggestions, stimulate the people to carry out works for their own benefit at their own cost. The Union Committees will supply organizations for the purpose which have hitherto been wanting, and the people will supply them with funds which they would refuse to supply if they were to be expended by the subordinate servants of Government.

The average income for each Union then may be calculated as—

	Rs.
Income from pounds	400
Allotment for primary education	90
Allotment for village roads	125
Voluntary contributions	125
Total ...	740

Possibility of amalgamating Union Committees with Chowkidaree Punchayets.

I am directed to take this opportunity of considering whether I can recommend any amalgamation of the village chowkidaree punchayets with Union Committees, and I am unable to recommend anything of the kind. In the first place, as you observe, the services which the Union Committees will have to discharge are of a purely voluntary and honorary character, whereas the result of inquiries made by the Commission of Inquiry into the working of the Chowkidaree Act, upon which I had the honour to serve last year, convinced me that it was necessary to retain some form of compulsion to induce the village punchayets to raise the necessary funds for the payment of chowkidars. Even if it had been possible to persuade the Union Committees to undertake the distasteful duties of chowkidaree punchayets, of which I was never very sanguine, it could only have been where Unions were not larger than the jurisdictions of punchayets. I certainly thought that, punchayets being already in existence, some functions of local self-government might have been made over to them, but I do not think persons voluntarily undertaking the duties of Union Committees would ever consent to undertake the duties and liabilities of the punchayets. The final necessity, however, of grouping from twenty to forty villages together in Unions has, I think, precluded all possibility of their doing so. That a Committee of the leading men of the village should be made responsible for the payment of the village police, whether their neighbours contribute willingly or not, was felt as a hardship, which would be felt to be twenty times as burdensome by a representative committee, made liable for the payment of the police of twenty villages. I feel sure that a hint of such a scheme given to the villagers assembled to meet me would have put an end to the alacrity with which the persons elected have undertaken the duties of Union Committees.

Nomination by the Magistrate.

In one of the earlier elections held by me, when the interest taken by the people in the Union scheme was somewhat vague and languid, one group of villages in a Union was not represented by any electors, and I told the sub-divisional officer that I thought it would eventually be desirable for the Magistrate to nominate a person to represent those villages in addition to those elected by the other villages in the Union. Subsequently, however, one or two similar cases have been met satisfactorily by supplementary elections held by the sub divisional officers, and the interest shown in elections generally has been such that I doubt whether nomination will ever be necessary. I have not held that any minimum number of votes is essential to the election of a candidate, and, however few the representatives of a group of villages may be, I think it better to accept their nominee as an elected candidate than to leave the nomination to the Magistrate. Such nomination may possibly be found necessary in the future, but hitherto it has not been so.

Recapitulation.

To recapitulate briefly the results of my work during the last five months, I have the honour to report that the whole of 31 thannas and the greater part of two more, comprising the whole of six sub-divisions, nearly the whole of two more, and part of two sub-divisions in Burdwan, have been divided into Unions, each comprising an average area of 20 square miles, and containing a little more than 2,500 households with a population of between 13,000 and 14,000. The number of Unions so formed is 180, and in 157 of them Committees of from five to nine members each have been elected, while I hope the remaining elections will be completed within the next few weeks. The people have generally, especially as the functions of the proposed Committees became understood, shown a keen interest in the elections of their representatives, and the Committees have been formed of men who are the real leaders of rural society, men of substance, respectability, intelligence, and a fair amount of education, and, above all, men whom their neighbours can trust to work for their material improvement. I trust that this will be considered satisfactory. I may add that I consider the introduction of the Union System so successful as regards the formation of representative committees, that I see no reason why it should not be carried much further another season.

Rainfall, Weather, and State and Prospects of the Crops.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

CALCUTTA,
The 31st March 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING 28TH MARCH 1884.

The past week has been characterized by normal weather of the hot season over a large part of the Province including Behar, Chutia Nagpur and Orissa, and the adjoining or western districts of South-West Bengal and North Bengal. The barometer fell rather rapidly and unequally during the early part of the week, and a slight depression formed over North Bengal and Assam. This accompanied increased strength on the part of the westerly winds of the Gangetic plain, and the sea winds from the Bay of Bengal. The vapour brought up by the latter was condensed and deposited as rain-showers during local storms chiefly in the eastern and northern districts of East and North Bengal.

This depression filled up during the afternoon of the 25th and morning of the 26th, when fine weather with clear skies was established probably for some days over the Province.

Atmospheric pressure diminished over the Province rapidly until the 25th, when there was a clearly marked depression over North Bengal and Assam. Pressure increased rapidly on the 26th and 27th, and was at the end of the week oscillating within narrow limits, with a general tendency to decrease, due to rapidly increasing temperature. The average pressure for the week was below the normal everywhere. The deficiency averaged ·05″ in Orissa, and the western districts of South-West Bengal, ·04″ to ·05″ in Behar, and ·02″ in Chutia Nagpur, the eastern districts of South-West Bengal, and the southern districts of East Bengal.

Temperature was above the average during the week, except in those districts where the sea winds blew more strongly than usual, or which received heavy rain-showers. The mean temperature of the week was generally from 1° to 2° above the normal average for the observing stations in Behar, Chutia Nagpur, and the western districts of South-West Bengal. It was from 1° to 2° below it over the remainder of the Province. The minimum temperature observations of Gya are, as for some time past, inaccurate and worthless.

The highest maximum temperatures exceeding 100° observed at different stations were—

Chyebassa	105·1°
Raneegunj	101·0°
Berhampore	100·7°
Nya Doomka	100·2°
Gya	100·2°

During the past week the Central Provinces and North Deccan were the hottest portions of of India, and the southern districts of Chutia Nagpur (as represented by Chyebassa) the hottest in the Province of Bengal.

Winds were generally normal in direction. The sea winds in South Bengal had a slightly stronger westerly element than is usual in March, more especially in the eastern districts, represented by Jessore and Dacca. The winds in every part of the Province increased in force until the 25th, when moderately strong winds prevailed in all districts. They diminished in strength with the filling up of the depression in North Bengal on the 26th, and were slightly below their normal strength during the remainder of the week.

Rainfall.—The slight disturbance in Northern Bengal occasioned moderate showers over the greater part of North Bengal, and slighter and more local showers in the eastern districts of South-West Bengal and in East Bengal. The rainfall in North Bengal occurred between the 22nd and 25th, and was heaviest in the districts near the hills. The only rainfalls exceeding two inches were 2·5 inches at Nowgong in the Rajshahye district, 2·3 inches at Kurigram, and 2·04 inches at Bogdogra, both in the Rungpore district. The 25th was the day of most general rainfall in East and South-West Bengal. No rain, with the exception of a few light showers of no importance, fell in Behar, Chutia Nagpur, Orissa, and the western districts of South-West Bengal. The average rainfall was considerably in excess in North Bengal. In South-West Bengal an average amount was received, the excess in the eastern districts compensating the deficiency in the western districts.

The rainfall was in defect over the remainder of the Province.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 28th of March 1884 :—

Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of India.

MEMORANDA ON THE MORTUARY STATISTICS OF THE DISTRICTS IN BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF JANUARY 1884.

(1) The returns from the districts in Bengal disclose that, during the above-mentioned month, 113,000 persons died among a population of 66,163,884, representing an annual ratio of 20·40 per 1,000 against 26·52 per 1,000 in the preceding month, and 20·64 per 1,000 during the corresponding month of 1883.

(2) The following districts furnished the highest proportions of deaths as compared with the mortality in them during the corresponding month of the preceding year :—

Districts.	Ratio per mille during— January 1884.	January 1883.
Pubna ...	42·84	26·40
Nuddea ...	38·04	47·76
Rajshahye ...	35·52	33·36
Backergunge ...	34·20	33·00
Jessore ...	32·40	39·36
Dacca ...	29·40	30·72
Balasore ...	29·28	30·12

Districts.	Ratio per mille during— January 1884.	January 1883.
Birbhoom ...	27·60	28·80
Noakhali ...	27·00	21·84
Khulna ...	26·88	27·00
Midnapore ...	26·40	24·72
24-Pergunnahs ...	25·44	37·68
Rungpore ...	25·44	15·84
Burdwan ...	25·32	39·00

(3) The mortality from the principal death-causes is exhibited below, as contrasted with the casualty rates from the same causes during the preceding month and the corresponding month of the past year :—

	Ratio per mille during— January 1884.	December 1883.	January 1883.
Cholera	·84	1·44	1·92
Small-pox	·12	·08	·12
Fever	15·36	20·52	15·12
Bowel-complaints	·84	·96	·84
Injury	·12	·12	·12
Other causes	3·00	3·24	2 28

The above figures indicate that, as compared with both the past periods under notice, cholera exhibited a sensible decrease; that fever, as compared with the preceding month, was considerably less fatal; that the mortality from the diseases classed under the head of "Other causes" was comparatively higher than that of the corresponding month of the preceding year; and that there was no noticeable difference in the fatality from the rest of the diseases, as contrasted with both the periods with which comparison is made.

(4) The highest fatal results from cholera, fever, bowel-complaints and "other causes" were returned from the following districts. The other diseases do not appear to have prevailed with more than ordinary severity anywhere :—

Cholera.	Ratio per mille.	Fever.	Ratio per mille.	Bowel-complaints.	Ratio per mille.	Other causes.	Ratio per mille.

OFFICE OF SANITARY COMMISSIONER FOR BENGAL,
The 31st March 1884.

R. LIDDERDALE, [illegible], Deputy Surgeon-General,
Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal.

MEMORANDA.

THE births and deaths registered in the first class Municipalities in Bengal during the week ending 15th March 1884 amount to 609 and 857, against 671 and 743, respectively, and yield the proportions in relation to population exhibited below, in contrast with the similar results of the preceding week ending 8th March :—

	During the weeks ending—
	15th March 1884.	8th March 1884.
Births	23·9	26·4
Proportion per cent. of male to female births	136	106
Deaths	33·7	29·2
Proportion per cent. of male to female deaths	149	132

indicating a sensible improvement in the registration of deaths and a falling off in that of births.

(2) Municipalities which returned the highest proportions of births and deaths :—

Births	Ratio per mille.	Deaths.	Ratio per mille.
Comillah	50·1	Suburbs of Calcutta ...	56·2
Kishnaghur	37·8	Gya	53·3
Burdwan	36·6	Burdwan	51·9
Serampore	35·3	Poori	49·3
Hughli	34·9	Jessore	42·8
Purneah	34·6	Kishnaghur	41·6
Durbhanga	31·5	Purneah	41·5
		Patna	35·4
		Bhagulpore	35 3

(3) The principal diseases mentioned in the table appended to this memoranda proved fatal at the following rates in comparison with the results of the preceding week :—

	Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—
	15th March 1884.	8th March 1884.
Cholera	6·5	4·0
Small-pox	4·3	3·1
Fever	11·6	10·6
Bowel-complaints	3·8	3·8
Injury	·4	·3
Other causes	7·1	7·4

The above figures indicate that there was an increase of mortality from all the death-causes except bowel-complaints and the diseases grouped under the head of "Other causes," notably from cholera.

(4) Excluding bowel-complaints, the mortality from which was high nowhere, the rest of the death-causes carried off the largest number of the population of the following Municipalities :—

Cholera	Ratio per mille.	Small pox.	Ratio per mille.	Fever.	Ratio per mille.	Injury.	Ratio per mille.	Other causes.	Ratio per mille.
Suburbs of Calcutta ...	24·4	Gya ...	24·6	Jessore ...	36 7	Burdwan ...	6·1	Poori ...	25·7

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as returned in the census of 1881. The total population ... has been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to could not be considered as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form as age classification.

COLMAN MACAULAY,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

BYE-LAWS OF THE NARAINGUNGE MUNICIPALITY.

For regulating the conduct of business at Meetings of the Commissioners.

1. An Ordinary General Meeting of the Commissioners shall be held fortnightly.

2. All such meetings shall be convened by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman by notice to be served on each Commissioner, not later than three days preceding the day of the meeting.

3. In the event of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman determining to call an Extraordinary General Meeting, not less than two clear days' notice shall be given to the Commissioners of the day fixed for such Extraordinary General Meeting.

4. The Chairman, or in his absence Vice-Chairman, shall call a special meeting on a requisition signed by not less than three of the Commissioners.

5. Every notice convening a meeting shall be accompanied by a list of the business signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman to be brought forward at such meeting.

6. Any Commissioner wishing to bring forward any business shall give notice of such intention in writing to the Chairman a week before the meeting, when the Chairman or Vice-Chairman shall include such business in the list of the business to be laid before such meeting.

7. No business shall be considered or proposition received at any meeting, if it does not appear in the list of business, till after the business list is concluded.

8. At all Ordinary General Meetings the proceedings shall be commenced by the Secretary reading the minutes of the last Ordinary or Extraordinary General Meeting, with a view to ascertain if the resolutions passed at such meeting have been faithfully and accurately recorded in the words used by the mover of such resolution, or, if amendments thereto shall have been passed, in the words used by the mover of such duly passed amendments.

9. In the event of any Commissioner being of opinion that any such resolution has not been accurately recorded, it shall be competent to such Commissioner to state his opinion to that effect, and thereupon the Chairman shall decide, whether or no such resolution has been accurately recorded by reference to the original draft of such resolution written and signed by the mover, and if he finds the Minute to be inaccurate, he shall then and there make the necessary correction in the Minute Book, provided that no discussion as to the propriety or otherwise of such resolution shall be allowed.

10. The order in which the several subjects shall be discussed at a meeting shall be determined by the order in which they are mentioned in the Chairman's list.

11. On the Commissioners proceeding to the consideration of any subject, the Secretary shall first read to the Commissioners the letters and papers connected with such subject, and thereupon any Commissioner may make a proposition regarding such subject, and address the meeting prior to the question being put to the vote by the President, provided that such Commissioner shall confine his remarks to the subject under consideration.

12. Every proposition made shall be written out by the proposer, and signed by him.

13. Every proposition shall be seconded by one Commissioner who shall also sign or initial the draft proposition written by the proposer.

14. The Commissioner who first addresses the meeting shall be entitled to be heard first, and should more than one Commissioner address the meeting, the right of precedence shall be determined by the President.

15. Any Commissioner shall be at liberty to call the attention of the President to a point of order, even when a Commissioner is addressing the meeting.

16. Any Commissioner may propose an amendment to a proposition, to the effect that certain words in the proposition originally made be omitted therefrom, that certain words be substituted, or that certain words be added thereto, provided that such amendment be proposed when the subject is being discussed and the original proposition is still before the meeting.

17. On the discussion being concluded, in the event of several amendments having been proposed, the President shall put the last amendment to the vote first; if negatived, he shall put the second amendment, and then the first, and if all the amendments are lost, the original proposition shall be put to the vote.

18. No Commissioner shall be allowed to vote by proxy when he is unable to attend a meeting, or under any circumstances.

19. On a proposition being made and seconded, the President shall put the same to the vote.

20. Votes shall be taken by show of hands.

21. All votes shall be put by the President, first in the affirmative and then in the negative form.

22. Any Commissioner may decline to vote on any subject without assigning his reason for abstaining from voting.

23. Any Commissioner may, with the President's permission, make a proposition that a subject under consideration be postponed, or that the consideration of it be adjourned either to a fixed date or sine die.

24. It shall be competent to any Commissioner to move a resolution to the effect that the subject under consideration be referred to a committee, provided that such Commissioner shall also at the same time propose the names of the members of such committee.

25. It shall be competent to the members of any such committee appointed to vote at any general meeting on the subject reported on by such committee.

26. Should any Commissioner object to any part of a report submitted by such committee, such Commissioner shall be competent to make a proposition that the report be adopted, except with regard to the particular part objected to by him, or that such report be again referred to the committee, or that the report be entirely set aside.

27. A subject once finally disposed of by a resolution duly passed at a meeting shall not be re-opened at any subsequent meeting, unless at least three-fourths of the Commissioners present at a meeting, of which due notice has been given, consent that such subject shall be re-opened and re-considered, provided that resolutions adjourning the consideration of a subject may be re-considered at any meeting after the usual notice.

28. The minutes of the proceedings of all meetings shall show the names of the President and of all members attending, the words of every proposition and every amendment, and, in cases where votes are taken, the number of votes pro and con.

For regulating the mode of collecting taxes.

29. Every collecting officer shall be provided with a certificate of his authority to collect, and every such certificate shall bear the seal of the Municipality and the signature of the Chairman or Vice-Chairman. Every collecting officer at the time of demanding payment shall be bound to show this certificate if required.

30. The collecting officer taking the money in payment of any demand shall give the receipt for it.

For regulating the conduct of persons employed by the Commissioners.

31. All persons employed by the Commissioners, whose services may no longer be required, shall be liable to discharge after receipt of previous notice, or pay in advance for the period of one month, and no such person shall withdraw from the duties of his office without having given previous notice for the period of one month, on pain of forfeiture of one month's salary.

32. All persons now holding, or who may hereafter be appointed to any office under the Commissioners, shall, when required to do so, furnish good security to such amount as the Commissioners may from time to time fix, and any person failing to furnish such security within reasonable time, or within such time as the Commissioners may appoint, shall be held to have thereby forfeited his appointment, and may be removed from office.

33. The Commissioners shall have power to inflict, for neglect of duty, a fine not exceeding one month's pay upon any person employed by them.

For the regulation and management of privies.

34. Every owner or occupier of any house, land, or premises from which offensive matter is not removed by the said owner or occupier, shall give free access to the servants of the Municipality to such parts of his house, land, or premises where night-soil or filth is kept for the removal of such night-soil or filth within such hours as may have been fixed on by the Municipal Commissioners.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 5.

35. Every person shall construct his privy above ground, and shall provide his privy or premises with a suitable moveable receptacle of metal or earthenware.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

36. No owner or occupier of any house, land, or premises, in or on which any privy may be situated, shall allow night-soil, urine, or filth of any kind to flow or be discharged from such privy into any drain, water-course, river, tank, hollow or excavation (or any place containing waste and stagnant water).

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

37. No person shall throw, deposit, or discharge any night-soil, sewage, or the contents of any drain, privy, or cesspool into any river, tank, khal, water-course, or receptacle for water, or dispose of the above-mentioned kinds of offensive matter in any other way than as the Municipal Commissioners may from time to time direct.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

38. No person shall carry night-soil through the streets otherwise than in a closely covered receptacle of such description and pattern as shall be required from time to time by the Municipal Commissioners, and between such hours as the Municipal Commissioners at meeting may from time to time direct.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

39. No night-man, sweeper, or other person carrying night-soil through the streets shall loiter or deposit any vessel containing night-soil on or by the side of any public road or street.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

40. No place shall be used for the collection of night-soil, or as a tolla mehter's depôt, without a license from the Municipal Commissioners.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

41. In granting a license for a public latrine, the Commissioners may make such conditions as they think necessary for ensuring that it shall be kept in a clean and proper state, and for registering the persons employed in such latrine, &c., and may provide that if these conditions be violated the license may be withdrawn.

For regulating burning ghauts and burying-grounds.

42. No person shall bury or cause to be buried any corpse in any burial-ground, in a grave constructed of masonry in such manner that the top of the coffin, or the body when no coffin is used, shall be at a less depth than five feet from the surface of the ground.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

43. No person shall bury, or cause to be buried, in any burial-ground, any corpse in a grave not constructed of masonry which shall be less than six feet deep.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

44. No person shall build or dig, or cause to be built or dug, any grave in any burial-ground at a less distance than two feet from any other existing grave.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

45. No person shall build or dig, or cause to be built or dug, a grave in any burial-place in any other line than that marked out by the Commissioners.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

46. No grave once used shall be opened for the burial of another body without the permission of the Commissioners.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

47. Every person who shall bring or convey, or cause to be brought or conveyed, any corpse, or part thereof, to any burning ground, shall burn or cause the same to be burnt within two hours after its arrival at the said burning-ground.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

48. No person when burning, or causing to be burnt, any corpse, or part of a corpse, in any burning-ground, shall permit the same, or any part thereof, to remain without being completely reduced to ashes, or shall permit the clothes of other articles connected with the burning of such corpse to remain at or near such burning-ground, unless the same be completely reduced to ashes.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 20.

49. No person shall remove or sell any clothes or other articles appertaining to a corpse, which may have been left at any burial-ground or burning ghaut.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 50.

50. No one shall carry a corpse, or part of a corpse, through any highway, unless it be decently covered and totally concealed from view.

The penalty for infringement shall be a fine not exceeding Rs. 10.

DISTRICT ROAD FUND.

NOTIFICATION No. 159

The 8th April 1884.

THE following annual accounts and abstracts of the reports of the Road Cess Committees of the districts of Chittagong, Noakholly, Tipperah, and Chittagong Hill Tracts for the cess year 1882-83, together with the remarks thereon of the Commissioner of the Chittagong Division, are published for general information.

G. F. E. S. NEILL, Major, M.S.C.,

Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, P. W. D.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Chittagong, on the Committee's operations for the cess year 1882-83.

A SYSTEM of holding a Committee meeting on the first Monday in each month was introduced and found to work well. The attendance was good and the members took interest in their work, and showed more inclination to consider the interests of the mofussil rate-payers than formerly.

Rupees 14,000 were allotted for the improvement of the village roads in the district, of which Rs. 2,000 were made over to the Branch Committee at Cox's Bazar, and a greater portion of the remaining Rs. 12,000 was distributed for improving the village communications in the various thanas of the sudder sub-division.

The trees planted on the sides of the Ramghur Road have been maintained, and the sides of the Hill Tract roads from Halda to Sultanpore been planted by a private individual at his own cost.

The existing roads have been efficiently maintained and are generally in improved condition. There is, however, a great need of cross-communications in the district, and efforts are being made to have this supplied from the village road grant.

The several establishments under the Committee have worked well.

A. MANSON,
Chairman, District Road Committee.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Noakholly, on the Committee's operations for the cess year 1882-83.

IRON bridges are being put up on the roads constructed in the islands of Hatia and Sundeep, and materials for the abutment work of these bridges have been collected. Materials for the masonry abutment of the proposed screw pile bridge over the Noakholly Khall at Dhoomchur on the Chittagong road have also been to a great extent collected. The work will be set on foot as soon as the estimate is sanctioned by Government. Several tenders have been received from firms in India and England for the construction of the above screw pile bridge.

The diversion and extension of the old Lakhipore road and the Nowdona tow-path have been completed, and the Parusuram road nearly completed. Much injury was done to the works by the early setting in of the rains, and a heavy flood in June caused considerable damage to the Chagalnaya road, with this exception all the roads in the district are in good order.

In some instances money has been paid to village mutbers by way of grant-in-aid for the construction and repairs of village roads. Rules have been framed under which grants of money are made on the responsibility of substantial mutbers of the villages. Some of them are selected to execute the work, and others to certify correctness of the amount spent.

No compensation whatever has been given for lands taken up for these roads, settlements being made by the villagers themselves with the owners of the land

Trees have been planted in almost all the main roads in the district. Most of them are fruit-bearing, and they are thriving well.

The members of the Branch Road Cess Committee at Fenny sub-division appear to have taken interest in their work.

The District Engineer has given satisfaction, and his subordinates, with one exception, have worked fairly well.

RAMLAL SEN,
Vice-Chairman.

Abstract of a report by the Chairman of the District Road Cess Committee, Tipperah, on the Committee's operations for the cess year 1882-83.

IN all, nine meetings of the District Road Cess Committee were held during the year. The attendance of the members of this Committee and that of the Brahmunbariah Branch Committee was fair. But the attendance of members at the meetings of the Chandpore, Chowdagram, and Muradnagar Branch Road Cess Committees was worse than it was last year.

SINCE its constitution the District Road Committee has constructed, improved, or maintained about 67 village roads and two khalls or water-courses in the district.

SIX hundred and fifty fruit trees have been put out on the Companygunge road, and considerable progress in tree-planting was made on the road from Commillah to Arrybary. The total number of trees planted and protected with tattees was 2,131, which represent a length of 18 miles of road planted.

The books and returns were all in good order and correctly kept up to date.

The different establishments under the Road Committee have, on the whole, worked satisfactorily.

L. R FORBES,
Deputy Commissioner.

No. 462 CT., dated Camp Comillah, the 27th February 1884.

From—E. E. LOWIS, ESQ., Commissioner of the Chittagong Division,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit the following report on the administration of the district road funds in the Districts of the Chittagong division for the cess year ending 30th September 1883, and to annex hereto the district reports and accounts in original, together with a general abstract of the accounts for the whole division.

2. An abstract of particulars regarding the meetings of the several District Road and Branch Committees in the Regulation Districts of this division during the year under report is also enclosed.

3. The reports and accounts were received in this office on the dates noted in the margin. The delay in Chittagong is attributed to non-receipt of accounts from the sub-Division of Cox's Bazar on account of which the figures for the whole district could not be compiled and laid before the Committee for approval until the 4th February last.

Chittagong, 6th February 1884.
Noakholly, 17th December 1883.
Tipperah, 23rd December 1883.
Hill Tracts, 8th November 1883.

4. The provisions of Act IX (B.C.) of 1880 have not been in force in the Chittagong Hill Tracts. There is no Committee there for the management of its road funds, the administration therefore solely rests with the Deputy Commissioner.

The subjoined table compares the attendance of the members of the District and Branch Road Committees with that of the preceding year :—

COMMITTEE.	CESS YEAR ENDING 30TH SEPTEMBER 1882.				CESS YEAR ENDING 30TH SEPTEMBER 1883.
	Members.		Number of meetings held.	Average attendance at meeting.	Members.		Number of meetings held.	Average attendance at meeting.
	Official.	Non-official.			Official.	Non-official.
Chittagong	5	10	6	8·16	5	15	8	10·4
Cox's Bazar	.....	... ..	.....	.....	2	4	5	4·2
Noakholly	5	12	15	7·26	5	12	10	5·7
Fenny Branch Committee	2	7	4	6	2	10	4	2
Tipperah	6	13	10	8·5	5	11	9	6·8
Brahmanbariah Branch Road Cess Committee	6	12	6	6·6	6	12	4	6·25
Chandpore Branch Road Cess Committee	6	15	5	9	6	15	7	9
Muradnagar Branch Road Cess Committee	2	18	6	10·7	2	18	6	9·6
Chowdagram Branch Road Cess Committee	4	13	5	9·2	4	13	6	8

From the above it will appear that the attendance of the members in Chittagong, Tipperah, Brahmanbariah and Branch Committees in Tipperah was fair, but in the case of Noakholly and the Branch Committees of Fennny and Cox's Bazar it was most unsatisfactory. The members of the Committees, however, are reported to have taken interest in their work.

5. The total receipts of the division for the year under revenue amounted to Rs. 2,95,393-13-6. This, together with the unexpended balance of the previous year and the receipts under the heads "Advances" and "Deposits" give a total income of Rs. 4,03,360-1-8 available for expenditure during the year under report. Out of this sum, Rs. 2,94,724-5-5 were actually expended, and Rs. 21,105-7-7 expended in repayment of advances and deposits, leaving a net balance of Rs. 87,530-4-8.

6. In Chittagong the year began with a deficit balance of Rs 2 657-9-4 and, it is satisfactory to observe that the fund is now in a solvent condition, with a balance of Rs. 28,917-8-7 at its credit at the close of the year.

7. As in the previous year in Chittagong, the heaviest item of expenditure was under the head of repairs. This district at one time possessed a very complete system of roads, which gradually fell into disrepair from want of funds to keep them up. Every effort is now being made to re-establish communication. In the other two districts of Noakholly and Tipperah more money was spent on original works than on repairs

8. Trees are being planted on the road sides of all the Regulation Districts. I have always pressed on the Road Cess Committees the necessity for expending money on village roads, and it is satisfactory to find that the matter has received attention. During his cold-weather tour the Magistrate has many opportunities of ascertaining local requirements in this direction, and money is nowhere better or more economically spent than by a village body in the repair of a road which is useful to the villagers.

The Indian Law Reports.

Published under Authority.

THE "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Office of the Legislative Department at Calcutta, except the copies for officials in the Bengal Presidency, which are distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the copies for subscribers registered by Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., which are distributed by that firm; and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad respectively.

On and from the 1st January 1884, the terms of subscription and sale will be reduced as follow :—

Notes on Forestry,

BY C. F. AMERY,

Deputy Conservator, Forests, N.-W. Provinces

THIS little work, published with the approval of the Government of India, treats of the general principles of forest management in all its branches, and is recommended not only to forest officers, but to all who are interested in the progress of forest management in this country.

May be obtained of Messrs. King, King & Co., Bombay, and of Messrs. Wyman & Co., Calcutta. Price Rs. 3-8, or including postage, Rs. 4. Or of the publishers, Messrs. Trubner & Co., Ludgate Hill, London. Price five shillings.

provision in the Bill. The Bill, therefore, only proposes to recognize sales of occupancy-tenures at the request of the landlord in execution of decrees of Court, and to this the Lieutenant-Governor believes that no objection will be made."

The Bengal Government has since changed its opinion on the subject, and the concession made by the zamíndárs in 1878 necessarily goes for nothing. In the present Bill the transferability of the occupancy-holding is made general and absolute, subject to a rule of pre-emption. There is nothing in the Bill to prevent greedy land-jobbers or speculators from trafficking in land at the expense of the zamíndárs. As to right of pre-emption accorded to the zamíndár it will, I am afraid, prove in practice more a shadow than a substance. In the first place, the zamíndár will have to pay a consideration for land of which he is the proprietor, and which was never before transferable under the law. He will then have to run a competition with other bidders for the purchase of the land, and, if he cannot come to an agreement with the raiyat about the price, he must go through the expensive process of a reference to the Court for arbitrement, and must be prepared to pay the price adjudged by the Court. If the raiyats of a zamíndár in any considerable number become recusant and threaten him with the sale of their holdings, it will be difficult for him to keep out hostile people from the holdings unless he has a long purse to buy them up. Practically, therefore, this recognition of the transferability of the occupancy-holding may be worked by evil-disposed raiyats to the utter ruin of the zamíndár. It is noteworthy that while the zamíndár will have to go through the expensive process of obtaining the Court's decision as to price, the raiyat shall not be bound by that decision, for section 32, sub-section 4, says that when the zamíndár tenders a price to the raiyat, "the raiyat shall either abstain from selling the land or sell it to the landlord at that price". So the landlord will be entirely at the mercy of the raiyat.

Shadowy as the right of pre-emption will practically be, the amended Bill contrives to keep out of the purview of this provision all substantial raiyats, for under it the rule of pre-emption will not apply to tenure-holders, and all occupancy-raiyats who may sub-let more than half their holdings, or who may keep holdings of more than hundred bíghás in size part of which is sub-let, are, ipso facto, coverted into tenure-holders.

Enhancement of rent.

I HAVE already alluded to the question of the enhancement of the rent of tenure-holders, who are placed at a considerable advantage to the detriment of the zamíndár, a position which they had never before enjoyed under the Permanent Settlement Regulations or under Act X of 1859. With regard to the enhancement of the rent of occupancy-raiyats I wish to point out that at present the enhancement law has come to a dead-lock, and that one of the chief objects of fresh legislation is admitted to be to afford relief to the zamíndárs in this matter; but I am of opinion that the alterations made by the Committee will tend more to maintain the status quo than to secure justice to the landlord. In the first place under the existing law there is a perfect freedom of contract between the landlord and the tenant regarding enhancement of rent outside the Court, but under the Bill this freedom is entirely taken away, and it is provided that where the arrangement may be voluntary, the enhancement shall not exceed more than four annas in the rupee, that is to say, not more than two annas for a term of at least seven years, and if more than two annas, but not more than four annas in the rupee, for a term of at least fifteen years. Thus a serious disability is imposed upon the landlord in fixing rent outside the Court. When enhancement of rent is sought by suit, the grounds on which the enhancement may be applied for are thus set forth:

(a) That the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity.

(b) That there has been a rise in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(c) That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord.

(d) That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

I am not prepared to say that the revised grounds will materially help the solution of the problem of enhancement. The first ground, "prevailing rate" is not made clear, and the same doubts and uncertainties that now hang round it remain unremoved. An attempt was made to explain it, but it was opposed by the Bengal Government. The second ground will, I am afraid, prove fictitious, for knowing as the Committee do, how unreliable are the price-lists prepared by Government officers, they cannot deny that it will be difficult to obtain reliable data for striking average prices, particularly, "in the locality or at the usual markets"—who is to fix the usual markets? The third ground will be made practically inoperative by the conditions which follow. As for the fourth ground, even if it be fairly worked, its application will be exceptional.

The rules providing for enhancement enquiries by the Revenue-officer will practically leave the whole matter to the discretion of the Revenue-officer. For instance, in ascertaining the prevailing rate, the Revenue-officer is directed to make a local enquiry, but he is not told on what principle he is to find the prevailing rate, and the result will be diversity of practice under diverse officers. In working out enhancement on the ground of rise in prices it is provided that—

(a) The Court shall have regard to the lists of prices periodically published under the authority of the Local Government, and shall compare the average prices during the quinquennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other quinquennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison.

(b) The Court shall not enhance the rent so that the enhanced rent exceeds the previous rent by more than four annas in the rupee.

(c) Subject as aforesaid, and subject also to section 48, the enhanced rent shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the average prices during the last quinquennial period bear to the average prices during the previous quinquennial period taken for purposes of comparison.

In carrying out the above provisions much will depend upon the price-lists, and, as I have already stated, those that are published in the Calcutta Gazette by Government are wholly unreliable. They are collected by the police, who cannot be expected to be over-scrutinous. They are not tested by any responsible agency, not to say that the wholesale and retail prices being generally mixed up, no fair average can be based upon them. Unless special care be taken to prepare the lists—and this remark applies to future lists—they cannot and ought not to be accepted by courts of justice as good and valid evidence. The question still recurs—how will the lists of past prices be prepared?

It will be observed that the value of all crops must be reduced to the price of paddy in Bengal, and that of Indian corn, barley and wheat in Bihár. The specification of the staple food-crops is left to the discretion of the Local Government, which may from time to time vary them. No allowance is made for valuable crops, such as tobacco, sugarcane, mulberry, potato, jute, &c. This rule is evidently founded on the principle of the Tithes Commutation Act of the United Kingdom. There is, however, I venture to submit, no fair analogy between tithes in England and rents in Bengal; for the former represented a fixed share or a tenth part of the crop, while the latter, though originally based on a share of the produce, have now greatly receded from the old standard. An English tithe is not susceptible of enhancement, whereas the Bengal money-rent is legally declared to be liable to enhancement. The question, therefore, arises whether the principle, which is held equitable in the commutation of tithes, would be fair and equitable in the enhancement of a money-rent? As far as I can judge, the difficulties in carrying out the principle will by no means be less than what they are under the existing law. As for enhancement on the ground of landlord's improvement, it is so much handicapped by restrictive conditions, that it will, I fear, prove an economic anomaly. After enumerating the circumstances which the Court should take into consideration in ordering enhancement on this ground, section 46 says that the Court shall consider the ability of the land to bear a higher rent. With such an uncertainty hanging over him, will any proprietor with two grains of common sense to rub against one another undertake any improvement?—if he cannot be sure of any return for his money, naturally, he wont lay out money. There are two other points connected with this subject. It was settled in previous correspondence between the Government of Bengal and the British Indian Association that enhancement of rent in any case should not be more than double the present rent, and that every enhancement of rent shall have a currency of ten years. These rules were embodied in the original draft Bill, but, at the instance of the present Bengal Government, both the rules have been altered. It is now declared that, when enhancement is sought on the ground of prevailing rate, the rent shall not exceed the previous rent by more than eight annas in the rupee or fifty per cent., and that, when it is sought on the ground of rise in prices, the enhanced rent shall not exceed the previous rentby more than four annas in the rupee or twenty-five per cent., and that every enhancement shall have a currency of fifteen years. It would be thus seen that there is no finality in the decision of Government, and that the more is conceded by the zámíndárs the more is demanded from them.

It is observable that where the enhancement is sought on the ground of the present rent being below the "prevailling rate", common sense suggests that the rent should be raised to the limit of the "prevailing rate"—it is not clear why a maximum limit of fifty per cent. should be fixed in such a case. Again, where the enhancement is sought on the ground of rise in prices, and the increase is to be given according to the rule of proportion, it is not equitable that there should be again a maximum limit of twenty-five per cent.

Commutation of produce-rents into money-payments.

THIS part of the Bill affects Bihár more than Bengal, and as my honourable collegaue, His Highness the Mahárájá of Darbhangá, will doubtless comment upon it, I need not say much upon it. I may, however, observe that the principle upon which the commutation is directed to be made, namely, (a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and (b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years, will tend to lower the present rents. I should add, that when the Bill was introduced, a distinct assurance was given that the present rents will not be lowered.

Non-occupancy-raiyats.

BOTH under the Permanent Settlement Regulations and Act X of 1859 it was left entirely to the discretion of the landlord to deal with the non-occupancy-raiyat, who is none other than the tenant-at will. But the relations between the landlord and non-occupancy-raiyat are materially altered by this Bill. Nothing will prevent the non-occupancy-raiyat from acquiring the occupancy-right, and, as already observed he will get the benefit of the legal presumption of a settled raiyat, if he can manage to scatter a few seeds once upon a plot of ground; then when he will be first let in he will be liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between himself and his landlord, but no enhancement will be allowed except by registered agreement, and even when an agreement may be tendered by the landlord to the raiyat, the latter may refuse it, and the former will then be driven to the necessity of instituting a suit to eject him. The Court shall then determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding, and if the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined, the landlord, under order of Court, shall be bound to give him a lease for five years, and if before the termination of the lease the raiyat shall have acquired a right of occupancy, he will be entitled to all the rights and privileges of an occupancy-raiyat. The non-occupancy-raiyat will thus be one in name; the landlords present right to deal with him at his discretion is entirely taken away, while the freedom of contract is disallowed and the landlord is compelled to give a judicial lease for five years. I should observe that in consequence of the introduction of the judicial lease, the original provisions regarding compensation for disturbance have been omitted. These provisions embodied a new-fangled idea not known in this country, and would, if retained, have proved a new apple of discord. But the substitution of the judicial lease for five years involves a great injustice to the landlord, who is tied hand and foot by the Court in a matter in which he has always enjoyed perfect independence of action. The raiyat, in whose favour the judicial lease is ordered, may be most obstreperous and tribulent, may by his bad advice be tainting the whole flock around him, and may thus prove most mischievous, not to say that the landlord, if he settles the land with another raiyat, may get better rent and perhaps better security for payment of rent. But the judicial lease will give him no such option or advantage. I cannot help thinking that the provisions relating to non-occupancy-raiyats involved a further invasion of the proprietary rights of the landlord, and that in favor of a class of tenants who are not attached to the soil, and have, therefore, no manner of moral claim upon the consideration of the landlord.

Sub-letting and sub-raiyats.

ONE principal defect of the Bill, as introduced, was that, while it seriously curtailed the rights and privileges of the zamíndár, it did practically little for the good of the boná-fide cultivator, whose labour constituted the wealth of the country and fed a whole host of proprietors and sub-proprietors including the Government, as the representative of the public. The position of the middleman had been greatly strengthened, while the sub-raiyats, usually the actual cultivators of the soil, were left to the tender mercies of the middlemen. The invidiousness of this condition was fully realized by the Committee, and they proposed various devices for bettering the position of the sub-raiyats. Accordingly, restrictions have been proposed in the Bill on sub-letting, but I doubt whether these provisions will work. In the first place, if an occupancy-raiyat sub-lets more than half his holding, he shall on registration of the same be converted into a tenure-holder. Considering the decidedly advantageous position of the tenure-holder, this will operate as a premium on sub-letting instead of as a repressive measure. In the second place, if an occupancy-raiyat sub-lets, his sub-lease shall not be valid for a term exceeding seven years, and this provision will have a retrospective effect. Surely this will be no loss to the sub-lessor, for the shorter the lease, the greater his gain. In the third place, the landlord of a sub-raiyat shall not, in the case of a registered lease, be entitled to recover rent more than fifty per cent. of what he himself pays, and in any other case not more than twenty-five per cent. I do not understand how this rule will work, where there is a long chain of middlemen, for instance in Backergunge, where there are thirteen grades of middlemen. Will each middleman have the right to claim from his sub-raiyat fifty per cent. in excess of what he pays to his own landlord? What would then be the position of the last link in the chain —of the men who immediately cultivates? And in the fourth place, a sub-raiyat shall not be liable to be ejected by the landlord except at the end of an agricultural year and after a written notice to quit, to be served not less than six months before the expiration of that year. My own impression is that there will be frequent disputes between the superior raiyat and the sub-raiyat as to whether the former has sub-let more than half his holding, and the result will be either silent suffering on the part of the sub-raiyat or frequent litigation. Then, as far as I can judge, the limitation of rent under section 62 will apply only in such cases in which a superior raiyat may sub-let more than half his holding; he will, therefore, studiously keep himself under this limit and thus avoid the clutches of the law. Furthermore, it will be nobody's interest to bring to Court the superior raiyat contravening the law, for no penalty attaches to breach of law. The superior raiyat will make it a point not to let his land to any raiyat who will not accept his own terms, and when a sub-raiyat accepts those terms, he will not seek the benefit of the law; another raiyat, a third party, may wish to get the land on the terms prescribed by law, but he will have no locus standi, if he be not admitted by the superior raiyat. So that the new provisions restricting sub-letting will either prove a dead-letter or give rise to endless litigation.

Improvements.

THE chapter on improvements introduces an alteration in the relations between the landlord and tenant consistent with neither the existing law nor custom. At present improvements are generally made by the landlords, and where they are made by tenants, they are effected with the consent and sanction of the landlord, but this chapter declares that (1) where a raiyat holds at a fixed rent his landlord shall not be entitled to prevent him from making any improvement in respect of his holding, (2) where a raiyat has an occupancy-right he shall have the prior right to make the improvement unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord, and (3) where a non-occupancy-raiyat desires that a certain improvement should be made in his holding, he shall serve a notice on the landlord calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time, and if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with his request, he may make the improvement himself. The whole theory of these provisions ignore the proprietary right of the landlord, and assigns to the Collector the task of deciding as to who has the right to make improvements. If public policy requires that the raiyat should be encouraged to make improvements, surely the first option ought to be given to the landlord to effect them. From an economic point of view, the landlord, having larger capital, is in a better position to carry out improvements, but no facilities are offered to him for this purpose. Even a return in the shape of increased rent is not assured to him for his outlay of capital on improvements, for it will be in the discretion of the Court not to allow an enhancement, if the court thinks that the land cannot bear enhanced rent. The inevitable result of these rules, I am afraid, will be to throw back all improvements. The soundness of the policy, which expects improvements from those who have not the means to make them, and to deter those who can, is unintelligible to me. I suggested that facilities should be given to the landlord to acquire land for purposes of agricultural experiments, model-farms, &c., but my proposals were not accepted. I was referred to an amendment of the Land Acquisition Act.

Management of joint estates.

THE Bill gives power to the District Judge, on the application of the Collector or of any person interested, even a squatter, to deprive co-owners of an estate or tenure of the right of management thereof, if it appears to him that there has ensued or is likely to ensue (a) inconvenience to the public, or (b) injury to private rights. I shall take the last point first. I at once admit that hardships and harassment may be caused to raiyats in consequence of disputes among co-owners and the absence of a common manager, but this point has been met by the Committee in the provisions made for deposit of rent. Section 73, clause (c), says that a tenant may deposit rent when the rent is payable to sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of these co-sharers for the money, when no person has been empowered to receive rent in their behalf. Besides, the co-sharers cannot apply for distraint or sue for enhanced rent unless they make the application or institute the suit jointly or through a common manager. It will be thus seen that the Bill effectually removes all reasonable complaints of raiyats who are tenants of joint estates. As for inconvenience to the public from the joint management of estates, I confess, I do not clearly understand it. If, for instance, the co-parceners default in the payment of revenue, their estates are liable to sale; if they transgress law or fail to comply with public requisitions, their responsibility is easily traceable under the operation of the Bengal Registration Act, and they are liable to punishment. It is not therefore clear why they should be deprived of the management of their own property because the Collector or Judge thinks that it causes "inconvenience to the public". I submit it would be contrary to sound public policy to remove all incentives to exertion and improvement from landed proprietors and capitalists by delegating the management of their property to others on pleas which have no existence in fact.

Record-of-rights, settlement of rents, tables of rates and record of proprietor's private lands.

THE chapters relating to these subjects are doubtless in accordance with the modern ideas of land administration in periodically settled India, but as far as Bengal is concerned, the rights and interest of different parties are generally well defined, and where there might be disputes between landlords and tenants in matters dealt with in these chapters, common sense would suggest that the application of the law should be left to the self-interest of the parties concerned. But the essence of these chapters is that while liberty is accorded to both landlord and tenant to move the machinery provided in them, the Local Government is empowered to bring of its own motion the machinery into action. The application of the provisions contained in these chapters will, I fear, plunge the country into a flood of litigation, stir up the worst passions of both the landlord and the tenant, open a wide door to perjury and forgery, give rise to endless corruption among the subordinate amlah, and throw the agricultural population into a sea of trouble, expense and loss. This was the lesson taught by the Revenue Survey. Of course, when the parties will themselves apply for the enforcement of the provisions under notice, it will be their own lookout, but I do not see any good or valid reason why the Government should, without any application from the parties, step in and inflict upon the country the evils pointed out above. The work contemplated cannot, I fear, be accomplished in two or three generations to come, and for all this time will run the festering sore indicated above. If the record-of-rights were confined to those cases in which auction-purchasers at revenue or summary sales may not receive jamabandí papers for their guidance, if the settlement of rents were made applicable to those cases in which the raiyats might combine and withhold payment of rent and agrarian outrages might take place, and if the record of proprietor's private lands were limited to those cases in which the proprietor himself made the application, in all these cases, on the application of parties, it would be reasonable and fair; but to give the wide scope which has been given in these chapters by vesting the Government with unlimited discretion is not only not warranted by the necessities of the case, but will be followed by evils which will be highly detrimental to the best interests, peace and happiness of the agricultural population. As regards tables of rates, the enquiries which have been made on the subject have made it clear that in most parts of the country they are not practicable, that there are so many variations in rates of rent, sometimes one hundred and odd in a village, owing to various causes, historical, personal, economical and social, that it is hopeless to discover any typical or uniform rate, or what was formerly called Pargana rate in any given area. And yet power is taken by the Local Government to order preparation of tables of rates for special areas and to charge landlords and tenants with the cost of this work, though they may not in the least benefit by it. In the same way the expenses which may be incurred by enforcing the provisions relating to record-of-rights and settlement of rents, will be cast upon the landlords and tenants, though no application had been made by them. Thus a new cess will be imposed upon the land for purposes of proceedings which may do more harm than good to the landed classes.

As regards the record of proprietor's private lands which go by the name of khámár, the definition given is wholly opposed to what is contained in the Permanent Settlement Regulations and excludes all waste lands. Section 138 declares:

Section 138.—(1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land—

(a) land which is proved to have been cultivated as khámár, zeraat, sír, nij, nij-jot, or kamut by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and

(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village custom as proprietor's khámár, zeraat, sír, nij, nij-jot, or kamut.

(2) In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land the officer shall have regard to local custom and to the question whether the land was before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land, but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3) If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

Section 37 of Regulation VIII of 1793 thus describes khámár lands:—

Section 37, Regulation VIII of 1793. The above exception [exclusion of lakhiraj lands from the general assessment], however, is not meant to include the Malikanah lands in Bihár, or the nankar, khámár, niy-jot, and other private lands of the zamíndárs and independent talukdárs, or other actual proprietors of land in Bengal and Midnípur, &c.

It will be seen by comparing the language of the Regulation with that of the Bill that no such condition as cultivation for twelve continuous years was attached to the zamíndár's khámár lands under the old law. As for waste lands, it is notorious that they were given to the zamíndár to enable him to recoup the loss which inevitably fell upon him under the crushing assessment of the Permanent Settlement.

Distraint.

THE law of distraint is generally regarded as an important and potential auxiliary in realising rent. In Bihár, I understand, it is largely resorted to. The essence of the present law of distraint is, that the process is a sharp and quick remedy, and that the whole responsibility rests upon the landlord who is liable to heavy penalties in case of abuse of power. Under the Bill distraint is made a process of Court; it is clogged with various restrictions, and by the time the order may be executed the crops may be off the field. The procedure is so much elaborated that it will no longer prove the prompt remedy, which the distraint law ought to be, while the expense and harassment will be such as to compel the landlord to forego it altogether. I am inclined to think that the law of distraint, as provided in the Bill, will remain a dead-letter, and thus the only facility which the landlord possesses at present for realising his rent, quickly, will be taken away from him.

Judicial Procedure.

I NEED not repeat that the Government has over and over promised to simplify the procedure for recovery of rent. It has recognised its obligation in this respect from the time of the Permanent Settlement to this day. One of the primary objects of the present Bill from its first inception has avowedly been the simplification of the procedure for the realisation of rent, and the Committee in deliberating upon the subject fully admitted it, but the practical result of their deliberations, I am constrained to say, is disappointing. I submitted three schemes on the subject: (1) the Patní Procedure, (2) the Certificate Procedure now applicable to Government and Wards Estates, and (3) a modification of the present procedure. I set out below the details of the third scheme.

The zamíndár or rent-receiver in instituting a suit for arrear of rent should make out a primá facie case by filing necessary papers such as jama-wásil-bákí papers and counterfoils of receipts and giving necessary evidence.

The Court should then issue summons. In order to obviate the usual complaint of non-service of summons, I would suggest a provision to the following effect:—

"The summons shall be ordinarily served personally or by a registered postal cover. If for any reason the summons cannot be served personally on the defendant, it shall be affixed at his usual place of residence in the village in which the land is situate, or within five miles thereof. The notice may be served by affixing it at the mál-kachari of such land, or on the land for which the arrear is due or other conspicuous place thereon, or at the village chauki or chowpal, or at some other conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate. An attestation of service should be taken from the village chaukídár, village mandal, or some two respectable residents of the village, or rural sub-registrar, as the case may be."

The order to prevent abuse, at least two of the abovementioned processes should be observed in every case; and with this safeguard the plea of non-service of summons should not be accepted by the Court as a good ground for re-opening or retrying a case which has been decided ex parte.

The summons should contain a notice that unless the defendant appears within one week from date of service, the Court shall pass a decree for the amount claimed and order immediate execution. The Court should be required to examine the defendant within eight days from the date he enters appearance and give notice of the day appointed to the plaintiff. The defendant should be required to file all documentary proofs and bring his witnesses in support of his pleas on the day of his examination. If the nature of the case admits of the immediate disposal of the suit, the Court should do so; or if the case be contested, it should on that day settle the issues in the presence of both parties and fix another day for hearing and final determination of the suit, not exceeding a fortnight from the date of examination of the defendant.

As regards execution, if the defaulter be a tenure-holder or occupancy-raiyat, his tenure or holding should be sold in execution. If he be a non-occupancy-raiyat, he should be evicted.

No appeal should be admitted unless the amount decreed was deposited. The rent-receiver should be allowed to take out the deposit on giving proper security.

This scheme seemed to enlist the sympathy of many of my honourable colleagues in the Committee, but, to my misfortune, the majority have not been able to accept it. They say—

"For ourselves we must confess that after the most anxious consideration of the various schemes which have been propounded for shortening and simplifying the procedure in rent-suits, we are unable to suggest anything of importance in this direction which would not involve a serious risk of failure of justice. In particular, while we are anxious to facilitate the service of summons and the proof of such service, we are unwilling to give any presumption of law against an absent defendant except on adequate proof of such service.

The Committee have, however, introduced the following new provisions :—

We have, however, with a view to avoiding, as far as possible, the complication and delay which arise from questions as to the landlord's title being raised in rent-suits; made an important amendment in the section (164) which requires a tenant admitting that rent is due from him, but pleading that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, to pay the amount into Court. Our object is to force the issue of disputed title to be raised separately and independently of the rent-suit, and we have therefore provided that the Court shall, on the money being paid in, cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person, and unless he, within three months, institutes a separate suit against the plaintiff and obtains an order restraining the payment of the money, it will be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

A much more efficacious remedy, in my humble opinion, would have been, as I pointed out in Committee, to declare forfeiture of right of the raiyat in case his disclaimer of the title of his landlord was disproved in Court. The modifications proposed by the Committee would only multiply wheel within wheel, a title-suit in an arrear-suit, and thus vastly delay the realization of rent instead of facilitating it.

The Committee propose to give power to the High Court to make modifications in the ordinary procedure, if necessary, in applying it to the trial of rent-suits. This, to my mind, is tantamount to shirking the question. Surely the legislature, which has enacted the code of procedure, is competent to modify it for the purpose of expediting the trial of rent-suits.

I do hope that when the Committee meet in November next, they will be able to see their way to an efficacious simplification of the present procedure for the realisation of rent, which is a crying grievance with the landlords, and in consequence of which they are not unfrequently heavy losers in meeting the Government demand of the revenue and the cesses. If there is a consensus of opinion on any one point connected with the rent-law, it is on this, and it would be a scandal if, while the whole law is being overhauled, no substantial aid be given to the landlords to realize their just dues.

Freedom of contract.

UNDER this Bill, freedom of contract between the landlord and the tenant is practically abolished. The matters which are placed beyond the reach of contract are thus specified by the Committee :—

(a) The acquisition of the status of settled raiyat and of the occupancy-right (sections 21, 25 and 26).

(b) The incidents of the occupancy-right specified in section 31.
(c) The occupancy-raiyat's right to demand a reduction of rent under section 51.
(d) The right of either landlord or tenant to demand a commutation of a produce-rent under section 53
(e) The protection afforded by the Bill to a non-occupancy-raiyat or an under-raiyat from ejectment except on specified grounds (sections 58, 59, 60 and 63).
(f) The right of a tenant to a reduction of rent on account of a diminution of the area of his holding section 66).
(g) The right of a raiyat to make improvements and claim compensation for them (sections 88, 89, 90 and 93).
(h) The protection afforded to all tenants against ejectment except in execution of a decree (section 98).

I have, in my remarks on the introduction of the Bill, strongly protested against this retrograde move. The Permanent Settlement Regulations not only recognized but openly encouraged freedom of contract, and Act X of 1859 did the same. I cannot conceive that if the raiyat can be fairly considered a free agent in mortgaging or selling his hearth and home or his agricultural land, in disposing of the produce of his field, or engaging his labour and fulfilling a thousand other obligations of every-day life, why he should be considered incompetent to enter into contract with his landlord. I would strongly urge the re-consideration of this question.

Civil Courts and Revenue-officers.

THE jurisdiction under the Bill is divided between the Civil Court and the Revenue-officer. The large powers which have been conferred upon the Revenue-officer at the instance of the Bengal Government are, I hope I am mistaken, evidently intended to reduce the land administration of Bengal to the same dead-level system which prevails in Northern India, and which has so notoriously hampered the action of capital and clogged the springs of industry in that part of the country. Whether I refer to the provisions for the commutation of produce-rents into money-payment, to record-of-rights and settlement of rents, to preparation of tables of rates, to superintendence of contracts between the landlord and the tenant, the fixing of standard poles for measurement, the preparation of price-lists, or the like, the Revenue-officer has been made the fulcrum on which no small portion of the structure of the Bill rests. I would not object if the Revenue-officer were made only an executive or administrative officer, but as he has been vested with judicial functions, the objection becomes serious. Nothing, I conceive, can be more injurious to the interests of justice than a system which will place a judicial officer at the beck and nod of the Executive Government. On this point, I would reproduce the enlightened and wise remarks of Lord Cornwallis contained in the preamble to Regulation. II of 1793:

All questions between the Government and the landholders respecting the assessment and collection of the public revenue, and disputed claims between the latter and their raiyats (tenants), have hitherto been cognisable in the Courts of Maal Adawlut, or Revenue Courts. The collectors of revenue preside in these Courts as judges, and an appeal lies from their decision to the Board of Revenue, and from the decrees of that Board to the Governor General in Council in the Department of Revenue. The proprietors can never consider the privileges which have been conferred upon them as secure, whilst the Revenue-officers are vested with these judicial powers. Exclusive of the objections arising to these Courts from their irregular, summary, and often ex parte proceedings, and from the collectors being obliged to suspend the exercise of their judicial functions whenever they interfere with their financial duties, it is obvious that, if the regulations for assessing and collecting the public revenue are infringed, the Revenue-officers themselves must be the aggressors, and that individuals who have been wronged by them in one capacity can never hope to obtain redress from them in another. Their financial occupations equally disqualify them for administering the laws between the proprietors of land and their tenants. Other security must be given to landed property and to the rights attached to it, before the desired improvements in agriculture can be expected to be effected. Government must divest itself of the power of infringing, in its executive capacity, the rights and privileges which, as exercising the legislative authority, it has conferred on the landholders. The Revenue-officers must be deprived of their judicial powers. All financial claims of the public, when disputed under the Regulations must be subjected to the cognisance of Courts of Judicature, superintended by judges who, from their official situations and the nature of their trusts, shall not only be wholly uninterested in the result of their decisions, but bound to decide impartially between the public and the proprietors of land, and also between the latter and their tenants. The collectors of the revenue must not only be divested of the powers deciding upon their own acts, but rendered amenable for them to the Courts of Judicature, and collect the public dues, subject to a personal prosecution for every exaction exceeding the amount which they are authorised to demand on behalf of the public, and for every deviation from the regulations prescribed for the collection of it. No power will then exist in the country by which the rights vested in the landlords by the Regulations can be infringed, or the value of landed property affected. Land must, in consequence, become the most desirable of all property, and the industry of the people will be directed to those improvements in agriculture, which are as essential to their own welfare as to the prosperity of the State.

The broad views, which were expressed by the Government in 1793 apply with ten-fold force in 1884.

Patní tenures.

THE zamíndárs, not without reason, object to the incorporation of the Patní law in this Bill. They hold that every word of that law has during the last 65 years received an accepted and authoritative meaning; that it is well understood by the zamíndárs, the patnídár, the Court and the amlah; that to modernise the language will be to disturb the recollections and traditions of more than three scores of years, and that it is therefore highly desirable to leave the Patní law as it is, text and construction, on the principle of letting well alone. I concur in this opinion and would leave out the Patní chapter from this Bill.

I have hastily drawn up my principal objections to the leading principles of the Bill. I have not had time to comment on details. I propose to bring them forward when the Committee meet in November next.

KRISTODÁS PÁL.

The 14th March, 1881.

Memorandum of dissent from the finding of the majority of the Select Committee on certain provisions of the proposed Tenancy Bill.

1. Chapter IV of the revised Bill provides that a raiyat holding his land at a fixed rate of rent shall be—

(a) subject to the same provisions with respect to transfer, succession, &c., as a tenure-holder; and

(b) liable to be ejected from his holding on the ground of his having broken the terms of a written contract between him and his landlord on breach of which he is liable to be ejected.

The occupancy-raiyat claiming to hold his land at a fixed rate of rent is, in respect of his holding, placed in a more advantageous position than the ordinary occupancy-raiyat—

(a) by the landlord being debarred from pre-empting should the raiyat transfer his holding to a third party;

(b) in not being liable to be ejected should he use his land in such a way as to render it unfit for the purposes of his tenancy.

The majority of the Committee are of opinion that the incidents attached to an occupancy-holding the rent of which is fixed should be different from the incidents attached to an ordinary occupancy-holding; from this I dissent.

If the landlord is to be allowed the right to pre-empt in the one case, he should be allowed to do so in the other; if the raiyat is to be subject to eviction for rendering his land unfit for the purposes of the tenancy in the one case, he should be liable to be evicted in the other.

Every argument that can be adduced in favour of its being permitted in the one case would apply equally in the other.

Pre-emption is, I believe, an off-shoot of Muhammadan law; when the right to pre-empt is claimed among Hindús in Bihár, it is governed by custom.

The right to pre-empt under English law is, I believe, embodied in the provisions of this Bill for the first time, and only with the object of affording the landlord the means of protecting himself against persons who might purchase occupancy-rights with the intention of injuring him.

The landlord will be put to as great inconvenience by a hostile purchaser in the one case as he will be in the other; the same with a farm destroyed. It will be as useless to him in the one case as it will be in the other.

The effect of these provisions, coupled with Chapter VIII, will be ruinous to the landlord.

Every time a landlord elects to exercise his right to pre-empt, a title to hold at fixed rates will be set up

Every time a raiyat transfers his holding as a holding at fixed rates, or a transferee anticipating pre-emption takes measures to evade the law, even though the landlord does not wish to pre-empt, he will be compelled to contest the transfer, for fear his not contesting it at once may be taken as an admission of the transferee's right to hold at fixed rates in perpetuity.

Had the Committee seen its way to accepting my amendments and confined the operation of this chapter to holdings under mukarrarí pattá or raiyats whose rights had been declared by a decree of Court, although the landlords' rights would not have been restored to them in their entirety, the mischievous effects of encouraging persons to attempt to evade the law by setting up the presumption would have been avoided.

2. Chapter V.—Restrictions on sub-letting.

In respect to the right mode of treating the subject of sub-letting, I am at variance, nearly on all points, with the majority of the Committee.

I do not think there is any necessity to place restrictions on sub-letting with the sole object of discouraging it.

I believe the conversion of the occupancy-raiyat who sub-lets into a tenure-holder will be detrimental to the best interests of the landlords.

I believe it necessary to bring the system under some control, partly with a view to protect the occupancy-raiyat, but mainly with a view to protect the poorest class of cultivators, the raiyat's raiyats.

The power to sub-let is a necessity to the raiyat, possibly of even greater importance to him than the power to transfer.

It enables the occupancy-raiyat to tide over his temporary embarrassments.

It enables the labouring classes, who might not otherwise succeed in securing land to assist in the support of their families, to acquire it.

It is legal, and the practice has hitherto been under no sort of restriction, and under no sort of restrictions will it ever be abandoned.

As long as there exists a class of people craving for the possession of land and poorer than the people in possession, or a class who can put the land to more profitable use than the persons who at present hold it, or as long as the line which divides an usufructuary mortgage from a sub-lease remains undefined, sub-letting will be practised.

The sub-lessees should be protected, and while there is yet time the system should be brought under some sort of control.

The matter may soon force itself on the attention of the Government in such a way as to make the shirking of the question an impossibility.

3. Chapter V.—On enhancement.

Under the provisions of the draft Bill submitted to the Select Committee for report, the landlord might enter into an amicable arrangement with his tenant to receive an enhanced rent up to six annas in the rupee on former rates, provided the enhanced rent did not exceed one-fifth the value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops.

He might enhance under suit, on the grounds that the rate paid for the land was below the prevailing rate in the neighbourhood, on the ground that the productive powers of the land had increased otherwise than through the agency of the tenant, and also on account of a permanent rise in prices, provided the enhanced rents did not exceed one-fifth the value of the produce in staple crops, and provided it should in no instance exceed double the previous rent.

Both in the instance of voluntary enhancement and enhancement under suit, the enhanced rent was to hold good for a term of ten years. Under the Bill as revised by the Select Committee, enhancement under contract is in no instance to exceed four annas in the rupee.

Below two annas or up to two annas it shall hold good for seven years, above two annas for fifteen years.

Judicial enhancement by reason of the holding being held at a rate below the rate prevailing in the neighbourhood may be made up to fifty per cent. increase on the former rate, and on account of a permanent increase in prices up to twenty-five per cent.

In any case decided on its merits, whether enhanced or not, the rate shall hold good for fifteen years.

The one-fifth limit has been abandoned in both instances.

Legal enhancement has, I admit, been made very much easier than it is under the present law; but I humbly submit that the omission of a limit which was admitted on all hands to be unascertainable is not sufficient reason for placing the restrictions on enhancement that the majority of the Committee have thought it necessary to place upon it, either in the way of reducing the limit or increasing the term.

It is to be presumed that tenants with fixity of tenure secured to them will only agree to an enhanced rent out of Court, when they know that the landlord by going to Court might get a very much higher rate decreed.

I do not approve of the policy which drives both landlords and tenants to appeal to a Court of law in matters which they can decide very much better for themselves.

In the matter of voluntary enhancement, it was only necessary to declare that enhancement under contract should be under registered agreement, and that the tenant in agreeing to it acted as a free agent.

If it was necessary to put a limit to the amount, the term should have been left to contract.

The fifteen-year limit being adopted in both instances, the landlord will exact the last farthing of what is due to him: we permit no compromise.

It is but fair to the Committee to say that I was alone in the desire to see the arbitrary limit on enhancement on account of the holding being held at a rate below the rent prevailing in the neighbourhood omitted; but I still think it would have been better to have left the matter to the discretion of the Courts.

The Courts have been given the power to make the enhancement gradual over a period of five years. They should be unfettered on both points.

4. Chapter VIII.—On the right of an occupancy-raiyat to hold at fixed rates.

Section 64 (1),
Ditto (2),
Ditto (3).
} The first allows a raiyat whose rents have not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement to hold his land at that rent in perpetuity.

The second allows it to be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that a raiyat who has held his land at one rent for 20 years previous to the introduction of the suit has held it at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement.

The third makes the above rule applicable to commuted rents also.

In my notes filed with the rest of the papers on the Bill, I recorded my dissent with the provisions of these sections as they then stood in the Bill; the alterations now made are alterations in form, not in substance.

During our discussions in Committee no arguments were submitted, no attempt was made to justify their being originally embodied in Act X of 1859, none in reply to the assertion that they were an infringement on the terms of the Permanent Settlement, none to induce me to alter the opinion expressed by me in my notes.

The pleas urged for their retention in the present Bill were, that they represented the present law, that no case had been made out to induce the Committee to alter the present law, and that it is more difficult for the raiyat to prove his right to hold at fixed rates, than it is for the landlord to prove how, when and on what terms the raiyat was let into possession of the land.

We urged that the Permanent Settlement and its concomitant Regulations never intended that any class of raiyats other than mukarrarídárs and istimrárdárs should hold their lands at one fixed, unalterable rate in perpetuity.

That it never contemplated the creation of any "privileged" class among occupancy-raiyats.

That Act X of 1859, in creating a privileged class among occupancy-raiyats, trenched upon the proprietary rights of the landlords, and, in securing to the raiyats a right to hold their lands at a fixed rent in perpetuity, it reduced the proprietors to the position of annuitants on their own estates.

In declaring that the presumption shall run from twenty years previous to the introduction of the suit instead of from a fixed date it became a constantly accruing title.

That the privilege being a valuable one, one that it is to the interest of the raiyat to acquire in the future and to the interest of the landlord to prevent his acquiring, it was detrimental to the best interests of both to retain it in the Bill in its present form: it caused constant friction.

At the same time as I denied the justice of its enactments in Act X of 1859, I admitted that it would be harsh and unjust to cancel rights that had grown up under the operation of the present law.

To obviate all appearance of acting unjustly to raiyats who had secured such rights I proposed that the presumption should run from 20 years previous to the introduction of the Act, instead of, as it now does 20 years previous to the bringing of the suit. I humbly submit that, had the Committee adopted this suggestion, raiyats who have secured to themselves the right to hold at fixed rates would have been secured in their titles, and the first instalment of justice would have been meted out to the zamíndárs. In a Bill which is admittedly being enacted to define the rights of landlord and tenant in the future, which is being passed to restore to the raiyat rights he is supposed to have been deprived of by the legislation of the past or that he has forfeited by his own carelessness or by his own acts, it is but fair to the landlord to restore to him anything that the loose legislation of the past may have deprived him of.

If it is found impossible to return to him what he has been deprived of in the past, he should at least be protected in the future.

Under the terms of the Permanent Settlement, only mukarrarídárs and istimrárdárs were allowed to hold at fixed rates; not so occupancy-raiyats.

Previous to Act X of 1859 any person claiming a right to hold at fixed rates or rents was obliged to prove his title to do so from a date 12 years antecedent to the decennial settlement, his title was otherwise not complete; that is to say, his title was not dependent on anything contained in the Permanent Settlement, but on the acts of the zamíndárs themselves previous to the settlement.

At the time of the Permanent Settlement the cultivators of the soil were divided into three classes—mukarrarídárs or tenure-holders, resident-raiyats with prescriptive rights of occupancy and non-resident-raiyats or tenants-at-will. Act X of 1859 was the first attempt made during 66 years to give non-resident-raiyats rights of occupancy in the soil; in their case, at any rate, the right to hold at fixed rates cannot be founded on anything contained in the terms of the Permanent Settlement, and the landlord should not be called upon to rebut the presumption: the onus of proving the right should be cast on the raiyat.

At the time of the Permanent Settlement, and previous to Act X of 1859, all raiyats with rights of occupancy were treated alike in the matter of rents—"all" were expected to pay the prevailing rate.

It is difficult to find out from a reference to the published papers relating to the passing of Act X of 1859 what led up to the embodiment of these provisions in that Act.

In the draft Bill published in 1857, it only says "hereditary raiyats holding at fixed rates of rent are entitled to receive pattás at those rates", but no mention is made of the 20 years presumption afterwards embodied in the Act of 1859.

Had the Bill of 1857 not been amended, the onus of proving his right to hold at fixed rates would still have been cast on the raiyat claiming it.

In all the published criticisms on this draft Act, Mr. Sconce alone fully discusses the raiyat's right to hold at fixed rates, but he founds the right upon the higher and more intelligible ground that "the Permanent Settlement was not one-sided—permanent for the landlord and not permanent for the tenant"; but he errs in drawing this inference mainly from the provisions of sections 51 and 60 of Regulation VIII of 1793. On a reference to these sections it will be found that the former refers to taluqs, and from the operation of the latter the Province of Bihár was exempted.

I would submit that, if we are to maintain the present law as against the landlord, simply because it is the present law, we are not justified in going beyond the present law in favour of the raiyat as we have done in many instances.

In reference to the declaration often made that it is easier for the landlord to rebut the presumption than for the raiyat to prove his right, I would only repeat that the persons who make this assertion have no conception of the difficulties in the way of the landlord; that it is easier for any given number of tenants to prove their landlord's handwriting than for the landlord to prove the execution of documents executed by men who could not write; and that all the old Regulations made it compulsory on the landlord to execute a document in favour of the raiyat. None made it compulsory on the raiyat to execute one in favour of the landlord.

The present law provides for cases in which the rent has always been paid in cash; under the present Bill, it is intended to go a step further and apply the rule to commuted rents.

Although I was in the unenviable position of sole dissentient on this point in Committee, I must still beg to be allowed to protest against this clause being made law.

It goes far beyond anything we are justified in enacting; it is equal to allowing every raiyat who formerly held at a grain-rent, and now holds at a cash-rent, to hold at one fixed, unalterable rent in the future.

Severely as these provisions bear on the landlords under the present law, they will bear ten times more severely on them in the future.

With the interchange of pattás, and kabúliyats made no longer necessary, the future is in the hands of the raiyat.

Useful as the powers to be given to the Local Governments under the Record-of-rights and Settlement of Rates Chapters may be made in the future, with these provisions unaltered our Courts will be deluged with litigation and the zamíndárs ruined.

Their effect can only be minimized by confining their provisions to rents to be commuted in the future and fixing a date from which the presumption is to count.

Their effect on the transfer and pre-emption clauses I have already noted

Chapter IX.—Sub-division of holding.

The Bill declares an occupancy-holding shall in the future be transferable, and rightly declares it shall only be transferable as a whole.

A transfer of a portion of a holding is declared void as against the landlord.

The right to transfer has not hitherto been among the legal incidents of an occupancy-holding: the Courts have times out of number declined to give a transferee a right to hold the land when purchased as against the will of the landlord. In spite of the uncertain tenure of the transferee we see rights of occupancy being sold under voluntary sales and sold under decrees of Court in every district in the province.

In some districts it has become so fixed, it has become so common in spite of its illegality, that the custom now overrides the law.

The prevalence of the custom in spite of its illegality is now forcing the Government to declare it valid.

It is now proposed to legalize the transfer of an entire holding, but to declare it illegal as against a landlord to transfer a portion of a holding

To legalize the transfer of a portion of a holding would be bad policy—bad for the landlord, worse for the raiyat; but to declare the act of a raiyat void as against the landlord and legal as against himself is to permit a state of things to grow up gradually which will eventually force the Government to interfere and legalize proceedings which they now deprecate.

To allow it to be illegal as against the landlord and legal as against the raiyat will not prevent the raiyat transferring it—it will only depreciate the market-value of the holding.

As the raiyat's necessities arise, he will dispose of his holding piecemeal from the fact of its being invalid against his landlord possibly at one-half of its value.

There are three ways of preventing the raiyat disposing of his holding piecemeal, namely:—

to declare a transfer of a portion of a holding illegal as against both landlord and raiyat;

to allow the landlord to treat the transfer as an abandonment of that portion;

to deem the raiyat to have broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of an agreement between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

The last is the most drastic, and the one I advocated.

6. Chapter X.

Under this chapter the Local Government may at the request of a landlord, at the request of a large number of raiyats or to avert a dispute, order a settlement to be made of the rents of the whole estate.

Under this chapter as it stands the rent-roll settled or ascertained of the estate must hold good for a period of 15 years after a settlement is made, provided nothing debarred the landlord applying for an enhancement.

(1) It would hold good in cases where the landlord applied for an enhancement, and the enhancement was allowed.

(2) It would apply in cases where his application was disallowed

(3) It would apply where the landlord had a right to apply and did not.

(4) It would hold good in all cases where the settlement was made at the request of a number of raiyats.

(5) It would either compel the landlord to attempt to enhance the rents of all raiyats who were not parties to the application or to be debarred enhancing for 15 years.

(6) It applies to occupancy and non-occupancy-raiyats equally; it would therefore have this result, that it would at once give every non-occupancy-raiyat occupancy-rights.

(7) It will induce raiyats to demand a settlement in order to acquire rights they are not entitled to. It permits of no compromise.

The period should stand as it stood in the Bill, namely, 10 years.

It should only apply to cases in which the landlord applied for an enhancement or occupancy-raiyats had any dispute in reference to their rent.

A non-occupancy-raiyat should not be afforded the means of acquiring occupancy-rights under its shadow, or a most useful chapter will be turned into an instrument of oppression.

7. Chapter XV.—Incumbrances.

The last point on which I would wish to be allowed to record my dissent from the finding of the Committee is one of the utmost importance to the trader and also to the raiyat.

The Bill declares that a tenure, when sold under a decree of Court for arrears of rents, shall first be sold subject to registered incumbrances, but allows an occupancy-holding to be sold free from incumbrances.

The Bill certainly allows a person claiming to hold a lien on an occupancy-holding to protect his interests by paying up the arrears due and thereby to acquire a first mortgage; but this is not sufficient protection.

I do not agree with the Committee in thinking any distinction should be made between tenure-holders and occupancy-holdings.

Raiyats holding at fixed rates being subject to the same provisions as tenure-holders, will encourage litigation.

An attempt will be made to set aside the sales of occupancy-holdings by setting up the presumption to hold at fixed rates after sale.

Whether it will be the duty of the Court, the decree-holder, the debtor or the purchaser to enquire whether it is an ordinary occupancy-holding or an occupancy-holding at fixed rents that is brought to sale, or who will be responsible for any loss, should any occur, is not clear.

It was necessary to declare that the incumbrance to be protected was binding on the whole of the holding, not only on a portion of it, but nothing more.

In not affording the occupancy-raiyat this protection we injure his credit and force him to pay heavy interest where he might borrow on easier terms.

T. M. GIBBON.

Memorandum of dissent from the finding of the majority of the Select Committee on certain provisions of the proposed Tenancy Bill.

WHILE I concur generally with the majority of the Select Committee in accepting the provisions of the Bill as now revised, I think it right to add that in some particulars the interests of the tenants do not appear to me to be sufficiently protected. The Bill greatly facilitates the enhancement of rents, especially by the substitution of the simple ground of a rise in prices for the old rule which required proof of an increase in the value of the produce. While this great advantage has been given to the landlords, the check provided by section 75 (d)* of the original Bill has been taken away, the plea that the rate of rent paid by a raiyat is below the prevailing rate has been retained as a ground of enhancement, and the Bill provides no limitation whatever of the rent which a landlord may demand when a tenant (other than a settled raiyat) is first admitted to the occupation of land. Even in the case of a settled raiyat, the landlord may demand an increase of twenty-five per cent. on the rent previously paid. These sections put into the hands of landlords a powerful engine for enhancing rents up to the maximum amount which a tenant will agree to pay rather than give up the land. For, as agricultural holdings must, from time to time, fall into the hands of the landlords, and as the landlords are left free to let these out at almost any rental they may think fit to demand, it is evident that the prevailing rate will steadily increase, and that this rate will regulate the rents not only of tenants newly admitted to occupation, but of the general body of the tenantry. For this reason, the retention of the prevailing rate as a ground of enhancement appears to me to be fraught with serious danger, and I should be glad to see it eliminated from the Bill.

Similarly, I am of opinion that section 53 of the revised Bill does not sufficiently guard the interests of the tenant in cases in which the landlord applies for a commutation of produce-rents. The section ought to provide, first, that the money-rent shall not in any case exceed the rental at which the holding is entered in the landlord's road-cess returns: and, secondly, that if the commutation is based on the average value of the rent received by the landlord during the preceding ten years, a substantial deduction shall be made from such value in consideration of the whole risk of cultivation being taken by the raiyat. Provision was made for such a deduction in the draft Bill of the Rent Commission, and in the Bill submitted by the Government of Bengal.

The wording of section 96 of the Bill, relating to abandonment, seems to me likely to open the door to serious abuses. When a raiyat has been deprived of his holding under the plea of his having abandoned it, it is of very little use to authorize him to institute a suit for the recovery of possession. If this section is necessary at all, its operation should be confined to holdings in the possession of non-occupancy-raiyats. There is not the smallest reason for extending it to occupancy-holdings, as, in these cases, the landlord's rent is completely secured by his power of bringing the holding to sale for arrears.

H. J. REYNOLDS.

The 17th March, 1884.

* This clause declared that "the enhanced rent shall not in any case exceed one-fifth of the estimated average value of the gross produce of the land in staple crops, calculated at the price at which raiyats sell at harvest-time"

D. FITZPATRICK,

Secretary to the Government of India.

29	Durbhunga, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—strong west wind prevailing Harvesting of rubbee nearly completed Rahar is said to have given a good outturn. Rain urgently wanted for mung, cheena, indigo, and dhan sowings. Prices almost stationary. Public health fair.
30	Mozufferpore, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—dry and warm; a violent west wind blows all day. Rain much wanted for cheena and mung, and for ploughing. The rubbee harvest is practically over without change in the estimated outturn. The high wind has damaged poppy, indigo, and mango crops.
31	Sarun „ 7 .	Nil	Weather—bright and hot with strong west wind throughout the week Rubbee crops harvested with fair results. Opium weighments going on. Prospects of indigo on unirrigated lands bad, the strong west winds having destroyed a good deal of the sowings. Cheena sowing going on. Early sowings coming on well. Prices steady. Small-pox of a mild type prevalent. Otherwise public health good.

Bhagulpore Divn. 32	Chumparun, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—hot, with strong west wind. Harvesting of rubbee crops progressing; eight annas outturn expected for the district. A fall in the prices of wheat and barley is reported from the interior. Public health good.
33	Monghyr April 7 '84	Nil	Weather—high west winds and great heat during the day. Harvesting of rubbee continues. Prices have risen somewhat. The high winds have injured the mango blossoms. Public health generally good.

	Jamui .	Nil
34	Bhagulpore, „ 8 „	Nil	Weather—hot westerly winds. Rubbee harvest almost completed. Cheena is the only standing crop, and it promises well. The mung and paddy which has been sown in the low lands in the north does not promise well. Prices stationary. Small-pox not abated, many cases reported in the town of Bhagulpore.
35	Purneah, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—very dry and windy. Fair outturn of wheat, linseed, pulses, and barley in the north; very poor in the south. Rain very much required everywhere. Health fair.
36	Maldah, „ 7 „	A few drops on the 4th.	Weather—very hot, with strong westerly winds and dust-storms which last from before noon till nearly sunset. Rubbee harvest going on well. Boro paddy being watered by artificial means. Rain now much wanted for ploughing and preparing lands for early rice and for improving the condition of the boro paddy and mulberry and indigo. There are no other important crops now on the ground. The dry scorching heat of the west wind has killed about ten annas of the mulberry silkworms of this bandh. Mulberry-growers are cutting the superfluous plant for cattle-fodder. The same wind has also destroyed the mango crop to the extent of about 14 annas and it is endangering the prospects of the boro paddy crop. Prices of food-grains stationary. Sporadic cases of cholera and a few cases of small-pox reported, otherwise public health good. There is a scarcity of water inland and the rivers are unusually low.
37	Sonthal Perghs. „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—dry, with strong west winds. Sugarcane, mohua and mango are the only crops. A good deal of land has been prepared. Prices are rising. Cholera and small-pox still reported.

Orissa Divn. 38	Cuttack, April 7 '84	Nil	Weather—hot. Ploughing in progress. Dalua in ear; in some places reaping commenced. Wheat being reaped State of other miscellaneous crops good. Price of rice unchanged. Public health generally good, only a few sporadic cases of cholera reported from Kendrapara sub-division.
39	Pooree, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—seasonable. Lands being ploughed for the ensuing sarad crop. Dalua paddy being harvested. Miscellaneous crops doing well. Common rice selling at 26 seers per rupee. Small-pox and cattle-disease still prevailing.
	Khoorda .	Nil
40	Balasore, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—hot and bright. Ploughing in progress, but rain is much required. A few cases of cholera reported from the interior, otherwise public health good.

41	Hazaribagh, April 7 '84	Nil	Weather—hot and latterly cloudy. Rubbee harvest over. Preparations for the next sowings continue. Prices continue the same. Small-pox still prevails in certain parts. General health good.
42	Lohardugga, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—hot, with westerly wind. Rubbee harvest nearly over. Outturn estimated below six annas. Rain wanted for spring ploughings. Prices steady. Health generally good.
43	Singbhoom, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—very dry and hot. Mango crop indifferent, Mohua very good. General health fair.
44	Manbhoom, „ 7 „	Nil	Weather—hot west wind blowing steadily. A few drops of rain fell at Purulia on the evening of the 4th. Wheat and barley being harvested. Sugarcane being planted. Mohua dropping, and mangoes promising. Coarse rice in the Purulia market selling at 23 seers the rupee. Small-pox reported from Roghunathpore, Nirsha and Jheria. Cholera from Purulia, Sara, Roghunathpore, and Nirsha, and cattle-disease from Manbazar.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

CALCUTTA,
The 7th April 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING 4TH APRIL 1884.

THERE is little that calls for much notice in the meteorology of the past week. The chief features were those which accompany the hot weather in its most pronounced form. The most important were excessive temperature, strong winds, and unusual dryness of the air. Pressure oscillated rather rapidly between narrow limits, but has on the whole fallen during the week, the result of increasing temperature.

Atmospheric pressure.—The changes of pressure were of little or no importance, and were probably mainly due to vertical action (of expansion), produced by increasing heat or solar radiation. Pressure was on the average for the week below the normal mean at all stations (except at Chittagong and perhaps Hazaribagh). The deficiency ranged from ·01″ to ·03″ in Bengal, and was greatest at Dacca and from ·03″ to ·06″ in Behar. It was a maximum at Purneah.

Temperature.—In consequence of the unusual dryness of the air and the absence of cloud, temperature increased steadily during the week. The increase was very marked in the maximum, and also in the mean daily temperature. It was smaller in amount in the minimum temperature, the nights being somewhat cooler than usual. Maximum temperatures exceeding 100° were registered during the week at all the stations in Central Bengal, and nearly all the Behar stations. Chyebassa was, as during the previous fortnight, the hottest station in the province. The following were the highest maximum temperatures (exceeding 103°) recorded at the hottest stations of the province during the week :—

Chyebassa ..	107·1°	Berhampore ..	104·2°
Raneegunge ..	105·0°	Gya ..	103·2°
Purneah ..	104·7°	Nya Doomka ..	103·2°
Burdwan ..	104·5°

Hence West Bengal, South Behar and Chutia Nagpur formed the area of highest temperature.

The mean temperature of the week was above the average at all stations except False Point. The excess was greatest in Behar, where it averaged 3½° and decreased eastwards. It was 2° in South-West Bengal and 1° in East Bengal.

Winds were stronger than usual during the week. The chief feature, however, was the increased influence of the westerly land winds blowing down the Gangetic valley into Behar and Bengal. Dry westerly winds prevailed over the whole of Central Bengal as far east as Serajgunge. The sea winds at the head of the Bay blowing into Bengal, also contained a much stronger westerly element than usual; hence over nearly the whole of the province winds ranging between north-west and south-west prevailed. South-easterly or easterly winds were only felt in the neighbourhood of the hills of North and East Bengal.

Humidity.—In consequence of the unusual force and extension of the dry westerly winds of Northern India (much drier than usual in consequence of the light south-west monsoon rainfall of 1883 and the almost entire absence of the winter rains) the air has been remarkably dry over the whole of the province except in the immediate neighbourhood of the Bengal and Orissa coasts and the hills of North Bengal. In consequence very low 10 A M. humidities have been registered at the Central Bengal and Behar stations, such as have not been recorded for many years in the month of April. The following are a few of the more remarkable :—

	Date.	Humidity.
Calcutta	April 3rd	23
Dinagepore	,, 3rd	17
Purneah	,, 3rd	15
Bankipore	,, 3rd	15
Dehree	,, 2nd	9
Gya	March 31st	9
Hazaribagh	April 2nd	8
Bhagulpore	,, 2nd	6

Such low humidities are not uncommon in the western districts of Sind and the Punjab in June and July, but are very exceptional in the Province of Bengal.

No rain fell during the week, except a very light shower at Kalimpong in the Darjeeling district.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 4th of April 1884 :—

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park-street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 1·0° lower; and finally, the thermometer, which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during the last 20 years and upwards, is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

N. B.—In the monthly abstract for February 1884, read 26·946 for 26·945 inches as the average pressure of 24 years.

MEMORANDA.

From the annexed table, exhibiting the vital statistics of the first class Municipalities in Bengal for the week ending 22nd March 1884, the following results have been gathered:—

(1) That during the week in question births and deaths were recorded in the proportions, respectively, of 27·3 and 38·1 per 1,000 of population, as opposed to 23·9 and 33·7 per 1,000, respectively, during the preceding week ending 15th March, indicating a considerable rise in the registration of both events.

(2) That these events were returned at the highest rates by the undermentioned Municipalities:—

Births	Ratio per mille.	Deaths.	Ratio per mille.
Ranaghat	65·9	Gya	78 6
Kishnaghur	53·0	Ranaghat	77·9
Hughli	48·3	Suburbs of Calcutta ...	62·7
Durbhanga	45·6	Burdwan	61 0
Burdwan	39 7	Utterpara	56 6
Howrah	37·4	Bhagulpore	47 1
Bhagulpore	36·2	Hughli	44 3
Chittagong	35·2	Howrah	41·4
		Comillah	38·5
		Santipore	35 0
		Kishnaghur	34·1
		Patna	34·1

(3) That the diseases specified in the appended table proved fatal at the rates exhibited below:—

	Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—
	22nd March 1884.	15th March 1884.
Cholera	9·4	6 5
Small-pox	4·4	4·3
Fever	12 6	11·6
Bowel-complaints	4·2	3·8
Injury	2	·4
Other causes	7·2	7 1

showing that, in comparison with the preceding week, there occurred an increase of mortality from cholera, fever and bowel-complaints, particularly from the first named disease, the other diseases exhibiting fractional variations of fatality.

(4) That of the death-causes above indicated, cholera, small-pox, fever and the diseases classed under the head of "Other causes" proved conspicuously fatal in the undermentioned Municipalities:—

Cholera.	Ratio per mille	Small pox.	Ratio per mille	Fever.	Ratio per mille	Other causes	Ratio per mille.

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, and it was not considered necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to cannot be compared with that of the natives for purposes of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been [illegible] classified from the point of age classification.

Traffic Manager's Office, Jamalpur, the 5th April 1884. W. J. Macpherson, for Traffic Manager.

General remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over East Indian Railway during the four weeks ending 23rd February 1884.

Increases.

Coal up and down.—Due to large orders and increased demand for brick-buring purposes.

Grain and pulses.—Attributable to active demand for local consumption owing to scarcity of supplies.

Cotton.—Greater demand for shipment to Great Britain and China, and the Calcutta market being favourable, are the causes of this increase.

Iron.—This increase can only be accounted for by the ordinary fluctuation of trade.

Railway Materials, Foreign.—Due to the railways, Trans-Ganges, being in course of active construction.

Saltpetre.—Due to brisker demand and better prices.

Seeds.—Increases in indigo seed, til seed, and other oilseeds are balanced by corresponding decreases in linseed, mustard seed and other seeds, leaving a net increase of mds. 18,411 and Rs. 108, and these fluctuations are due to better demand for til and other oilseeds, and scanty crops of linseed and mustard seed.

Timber and Firewood.—Increased requirements of timber for building and firewood for brick-burning purposes account for the improvement in this traffic.

DECREASES.

Wheat.—This decrease is due to total want of demand in English and Continental markets.

Rice, husked.—This decrease is attributable to reduced imports and weak markets, both local and foreign.

Piece-goods.—Want of demand in Tirhoot, Dinapore and Delhi districts, and a great falling off in the trade at both Calcutta and Bombay ports.

Opium.—Less quantity having been manufactured this year has led to a decrease in the receipts from this staple.

Stone.—Due to active demand for stone for building purposes last year, which did not exist during the period under review.

Sugar, unrefined.—The increase in weight and decrease in earnings are due to failure of the sugarcane crops in many districts leading to short lead traffic and want of demand at distant trade centres.

Salt—Ordinary fluctuation of trade and lesser demand from the Patna and Gya districts.

Hides.—Due to dull markets and weak imports from the mofussil marts.

The Indian Law Reports.

Published under Authority.

THE "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Office of the Legislative Department at Calcutta, except the copies for officials in the Bengal Presidency, which are distributed by the Bengal Secretariat, and the copies for subscribers registered by Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., which are distributed by that firm; and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad respectively.

On and from the 1st January 1884, the terms of subscription and sale will be reduced as follow:—

PART VI.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Report of a Select Committee, together with the Bill as settled by them, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 14th March, 1884:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bengal Tenancy Bill was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the schedule hereto annexed, and have the honour to submit this preliminary Report.

2. We have recast the Bill, and have embodied in the revised Bill such alterations as commended themselves to the majority of us, but there are various points on which we consider that further information is requisite, and we recommend that the Bill as altered by us should be republished for further criticism, in the interval that will elapse before we resume our labours in November.

3. The present Report being only a preliminary one, several members of the Committee wish it to be recorded that they postpone the expression of their opinions on particular points until the final Report is submitted to the Council. It must also be understood that generally in referring to the decisions of the Committee we state the views of the majority.

CHAPTER II.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

4. This chapter has been introduced for the purpose of describing the different classes of tenants with which the Bill deals. It will be seen from it that raiyats at fixed rates are now treated as a distinct class instead of being, as in the original Bill, a sub-class of tenure-holders. It will further be observed that the term "non-occupancy-raiyats" has been substituted for "ordinary raiyats," which latter term has been justly objected to as a misnomer Lastly, it will be seen that tenants of homestead or Bastu land, which is not part of an occupancy-holding, have no place in the revised Bill. It may be that on further consideration it will be found desirable to introduce into the Bill some provisions relating to tenants of this class, but at present we have not before us the information requisite for dealing with the questions involved. It is clear that, owing to the various conditions which attach to the holdings of such tenants in different parts of the country, Chapter VII of the original Bill would, if it were to be retained, need amendment in certain particulars. But we are unable to formulate this amendment, pending the receipt of further information, which we hope will be supplied by the Local Government.

5. In the section which relates to the distinction between tenure-holders and raiyats, we have endeavoured to describe, rather than to define, each class. Whilst recognising the expediency of laying down rules for the guidance of Courts in dealing with cases which lie near the border-line between the two classes, we retain the opinion that any attempt to frame a rigid definition of either class would tend to create, rather than to remove, difficulties.

CHAPTER III.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

6. The sections (14-17) of the original Bill relating to the right to hold at fixed rates have been removed to Chapter VIII of the revised Bill, and will be more particularly referred to when we come to speak of that chapter. Section 20 of the original Bill, which contained a special provision relating to lands in temporarily-settled districts, has been transferred to the supplemental chapter.

7. We have made a considerable alteration in section 7, sub-section (3), which lays down the rules to be followed by the Court in enhancing the rent of a tenure in cases where the matter is not provided for by contract or custom. It is now simply enacted that the Court shall not leave the tenure-holder less than 10 per cent. of the profits, and in fixing the rent shall have regard to the circumstances under which the tenure was created, to the improvements made by the holder of it, and to the cost and risks of collection. We have left untouched the provisions that the enhanced rent should not be more than double the previous rent and that it should hold good for 10 years.

8. The special provisions of the original Bill relating to patní tenures, with the exception of the definition section (86), which has been transferred to the preliminary chapter, and the section (42) regarding summary sale, which has been placed in the chapter relating to that subject, have been included in this chapter.

9. Of the alterations we have made in the sub-division of this chapter relating to registration of transfers and successions, the following only seem to call for notice, namely :—

(1) the addition to sub-section (1) of section 15 of a proviso allowing a landlord to refuse to register a transfer of a tenure if any rent is in arrear;

(2) the abolition of the additional fee imposed by section 27 (2), clause (b), of the original Bill as a penalty for delay in applying for registration, and the insertion of a clause fixing the fee at Rs. 2 where no rent is payable by the tenure-holder [section 15 (2)];

(3) the addition to section 18 of a sub-section providing that a person becoming entitled to a tenure by transfer or succession shall not be entitled to recover rent by suit, distraint or other proceeding until the transfer or succession has been registered or a notice of it has been served on the landlord; and

(4) the amendment of the section (now section 21) relating to the granting of copies of entries in the register, so that the fee for every copy granted shall be such amount, not less than one anna or more than one rupee, as the Local Government may fix.

CHAPTER IV.

RAIYATS HOLDING AT FIXED RATES.

10. In the matters of transfer and succession we have assimilated the conditions of the settled-raiyat holding at fixed rates to those of tenure-holders. It was suggested that this class of raiyats should be sub-divided into (a) those holding under a registered lease or judicially declared title, and (b) those holding at fixed rates under the statutory presumption, the former being assimilated to tenure-holders and the latter to raiyats with a right of occupancy; but the majority of us were unable to accept this proposal.

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

Our attention has been drawn to the inconvenience which may arise in certain exceptionally large estates, such as those of the Mahárájá of Burdwan and others, from the status of settled-raiyat holding good over the whole estate. We desire to learn if the Government of Bengal consider that in these exceptional estates any known fiscal or administrative area can be advantageously substituted for the area of an estate.

12. Another matter connected with the definition of "estate" for the special objects of this chapter, to which we desire to draw attention, is the provision in section 27 (b) to the effect that where a partition has taken place "since the first day of January, 1853" the parent estate shall, notwithstanding the partition, be regarded as a single estate. The date mentioned was chosen because it was understood that it might reasonably be expected that from about that time complete records of partitions would be forthcoming; but the particular point of time to which we should go back is of course open to further consideration, and accordingly we have directed that the words fixing it shall be shown in italics.

13. We have, at the instance of the Government of Bengal, inserted in section 26 (definition of settled-raiyat) a sub-section (2) providing that when it is proved or admitted that a person holds land as a raiyat, it shall be, as between him and his landlord, presumed for the purpose of the section, until the contrary is shown, that he has for twelve years held the land or some part of it as a raiyat. Such a presumption appears to us to be warranted by the existing state of things in the Lower Provinces, and, while it tends to simplify litigation, it is one which the landlord ought to have no difficulty in rebutting in any case in which it does not hold good.

14. We have [section 26 (6)] retained in substance the provision of the original Bill under which a person does not lose his status as a settled-raiyat merely by the accident of his being out of possession of a holding in the village or estate for any time not exceeding one year, but have added to it a clause [sub-section (7)] to the effect that if he recovers possession of any land under section 96 (as to which see infra paragraph 66) he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled-raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession for more than a year.

15. The chapter relating to merger having been omitted from the Bill for reasons to be explained further on, we have thought it desirable, in order to prevent any misapprehension, to insert in this chapter a section (28), providing that, if the landlord of a raiyat having a right of occupancy acquires the interest of the raiyat by purchase or otherwise, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist, but that nothing in this provision shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

16. We have omitted section 48 of the original Bill, which provided for the acquisition of the occupancy-right by grant, and have substituted for section 49 of that Bill relating to the acquisition of the occupancy-right in lands of the classes comprised under the term khámár as there defined, a section (30) simply providing that nothing in the chapter shall confer a right of occupancy in lands of those classes where such lands are held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year.

17. We have, in affirming that the raiyat may use the land in any manner that does not render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, added [section 31, clause (a)] that he shall not cut down trees thereon in contravention of any local custom.

18. In the division which relates to the landlord's right of pre-emption, and which is now headed "restrictions on transfer", we have [in section 32 (4)] provided that the landlord, if he elects to purchase, must tender the price within one month from the date on which it is agreed on or fixed, and we have also inserted words to allow the raiyat, if his landlord claims to purchase, the option of keeping the land.

19. We have further inserted in the same section a sub-section (5) providing that if the raiyat attempts to sell in contravention of the provisions of the section the sale shall be void as against his landlord.

20. We have omitted section 55 of the original Bill, which gave the landlord a right of pre-emption when the occupancy-right is bequeathed.

21. As regards gifts of the occupancy-right, we believe that the great majority of such gifts would be either of the nature of bequests or of merely fictitious transactions covering sales. It is only in the case of gifts of this latter class that the landlord seems to us to stand in need of any protection, and we think that sufficient protection will be afforded him by requiring that a gift must be made by a registered instrument, and that a copy of the instrument shall be forthwith served on the landlord so as to give him an opportunity of questioning the transaction if he sees any ground for believing that it is not bonâ fide. We have, however, exempted from this requirement gifts by Muhammadans to persons within the prohibited degrees, as such gifts are usually substitutes for testamentary dispositions (section 35).

22. Lastly, we have added a section (36) restricting the right of pre-emption to proprietors and permanent tenure-holders and other tenure-holders authorized by them to exercise it, as it seems to us that the exercise of such a right by a temporary tenure-holder, otherwise than with the permission of a superior landlord having a permanent interest in the land, would give rise to difficulties and complications which it is desirable to avoid.

23. Great objection has been taken to section 56 of the original Bill, which provided that when a landlord acquires the occupancy-right, any raiyat afterwards taking the land shall have an occupancy-right in it: this section we have omitted.

24. We have also omitted section 57, which conferred the status of a settled-raiyat on every person inheriting an occupancy-right in land. The object of this latter section seems to us to be sufficiently secured by section 26, (4).

25. The next division of this chapter, headed "restrictions on sub-letting", is new. It is based on certain proposals put forward by the Government of Bengal, and having for their objects to discourage the purchase of the occupancy-right by non-agricultural speculators and to protect the sub-lessee of a raiyat. This latter object, we may observe, could be only in part carried out by the provisions inserted here. Further provisions for securing it will be found in Chapter VII, relating to under-raiyats, of which we shall presently have to speak.

26. The main enactments in this sub-division of the chapter are—

1st.—That if the portion of his holding sub-let by an occupancy-raiyat exceeds half the holding, he shall, on being registered in a public register as a tenure-holder under an Act, which the Local Government propose to introduce into the Bengal Council for this purpose, be deemed to have become a tenure-holder, the result of which will be that his sub-lessees will become raiyats, with an actual or potential right of occupancy (section 37).

2nd.—That if a raiyat sub-lets his holding or any part of it the sub-lease shall not be valid for a period exceeding seven years (section 38).

These enactments are qualified by certain provisions, the most important of which are—

1st.—That they shall not apply to the case of a raiyat who is compelled to sub-let by being disabled from cultivation by age, sex, disease, accident or temporary absence from home in certain cases, and

2nd.—That when a raiyat is converted into a tenure-holder, as above-mentioned, his rent shall be liable to enhancement on the same terms and subject to the same conditions as if he were an occupancy-raiyat, and thus the position of his landlord will in this respect remain unaffected.

27. These provisions gave rise to considerable difference of opinion, and we are not insensible of the inconvenience arising from allowing a change to be created in the legal relations of a raiyat, both towards his landlord on the one hand and towards his own sub-tenants on the other, as the result of his own acts; a change, moreover, which must be determined by an arbitrary line difficult to ascertain, and complicated by the numerous exceptions which the circumstances of the cultivators obviously demand. There seemed, however, to the majority of us to be no better way of placing restrictions on sub-letting (a practice which it is admittedly impossible to prohibit) than by rendering the sub-letting raiyat liable to the summary sale for arrears, which is to be made applicable to tenures, and at the same time enabling his sub-tenants to acquire rights of occupancy. These provisions illustrate the extreme difficulty of placing any substantial check on the practice of sub-letting, when it has once grown up. It will be observed that the converted tenure-holder, while liable to enhancement as an occupancy-raiyat, is in all other respects treated as a tenure-holder, and acquires with the liability to summary sale other incidents of tenure-holders, such as exemption from the pre-emption clauses, but that none of these provisions will come into operation until such time as he is registered. It was felt that to throw on the Courts the duty of ascertaining in a simple rent suit all the complicated conditions, which are connoted by his conversion, would be intolerable, and that the difficulty could only be met by the Local Government ascertaining and registering them. This it has undertaken to do.

28. The alterations which we have made in the provisions relating to the enhancement of the rent of occupancy-raiyats are considerable, both as regards form and substance.

We have removed the provisions relating to enhancement by means of a table of rates to a separate chapter following that relating to the record-of-rights and settlement of rents, and deal here only with enhancement in the ordinary way by contract or by a suit in Court.

29. As the Bill now stands amended the rent of an occupancy-raiyat cannot be enhanced by contract unless the contract is registered, and the following rules will apply to every such contract (section 41):—

(1).—The rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than four annas in the rupee (25 per cent.) the rent previously payable by the raiyat.

(2).—The contract must fix the rent for a term of at least seven years.

(3).—If the enhanced rent exceeds by more than two annas in the rupee (12½ per cent.) the previous rent, the contract must fix the rent for a term of at least fifteen years.

(4).—The registering officer must, before registering a contract under this section, ascertain that the contract is in accordance with the provisions of the Act, and that the raiyat entering into it acts as a free agent. It will be observed that under the revised section the registering officer, instead of being required to approve a contract and to satisfy himself that it is fair and equitable, is now merely required to satisfy himself that it is in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

30. Further, it is provided (section 42) that where land, which has been previously held by a tenant at a money-rent, is let to a settled-raiyat of the village or estate in which it is situate, that raiyat shall not be bound to pay for it any rent higher than that which was paid for it by the previous tenant, except in pursuance of a registered contract, and that the rules just referred to shall apply to every such contract.

31. As regards enhancement by suit our object has been, while laying down rules which will be substantially just to both landlords and tenants, to devise a system which would avoid those elaborate and difficult inquiries, the necessity for which has made the present enhancement law an almost useless instrument in the hands of the landlords.

With this view we have specified the grounds on which an enhancement suit can be instituted, as follows (section 43):—

(a).—That the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity.

(b).—That there has been a rise in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(c).—That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord.

(d).—That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

32. An enquiry had shown that an authoritative Table of Rates could be prepared by the Government of Bengal only for exceptional tracts, and no other general method has been submitted to us for placing before the Courts the information with respect to productive powers of the land which would enable them to apply the rules for enhancement on the ground of increase in those powers. But the zamíndárs objected to the total elimination of this as a legal ground of enhancement, and, as it was part of the old law, it has been retained. Enhancements on this ground when the increase is caused by the landlord's improvement will be facilitated by the system of enquiry and registration provided for hereafter; but enhancements on the ground of increase of productive powers caused by fluvial action will still, we fear, be liable to the same difficulty, caused by the absence of any proof of the former productive powers of the soil, as has rendered this ground of enhancement futile in past years.

34. It has been urged that, in applying the proportion rule in the case of prices, some deduction should be made to cover the effect of these increased prices on the cost of cultivation. We are however content for the present to leave the protection of the raiyat in this respect to the other restrictions on enhancements, especially to section 48, which provides that the Court shall not in any case decree an enhancement, which appears under the circumstances of the case to be unfair or inequitable. But the point will receive further consideration when the alterations made in this chapter have been subjected to public criticism.

35. The difficulty which, as we have explained, stands in the way of enhancement on the ground of an increase in the productive powers of the land, applies with no less force to the proposal to limit the maximum enhanced rent to one-fifth of the average annual gross produce. The majority of the Committee were of opinion that it would be almost impossible to ascertain in each instance the average annual gross produce expressed in staple crops, and weighty objections have also been taken to the principle underlying that proposal. We have accordingly struck out the provision to the above effect contained in section 75 (d) of the original Bill. As a set-off against this we have increased the stringency of another limitation contained in the original Bill by providing that, when rent is enhanced on the first ground mentioned above, the enhancement shall not amount to more than 8 annas in the rupee (50 per cent.), and that, when it is enhanced on the second or fourth of those grounds, the enhancement shall not amount to more than 4 annas in the rupee (25 per cent.), and by providing, as above stated, that the Court shall not in any case decree an enhancement which appears under the circumstances of the case to be unfair or inequitable (section 48).

36. In connection with enhancement up to the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats of the same class, we have in section 44 introduced a clause [(c)], based on section 20 of the North-Western Provinces Tenancy Act, providing for cases in which local custom may make it necessary to take into consideration the caste of a raiyat.

37. As regards enhancement on the ground of an improvement made by the landlord, we have laid down no hard-and-fast rule, but have merely provided [section 46 (b)] that in determining the enhancement to be allowed the Court shall have regard to—

(i) the increase in the value of the produce caused by the improvement,

(ii) the cost of the improvement;

(iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and

(iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent.

And, in order to avoid perplexing inquiries into matters long past, we have provided [section 46 (a)] that the Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered, that is to say, registered in accordance with the rules which are laid down in Chapter IX, and which, as will be seen, are so framed as to secure that all requisite information will be duly placed on record.

38. The leading rule adopted by us for enhancement on the ground of increase of productive power arising from fluvial action is suggested by that proposed by the Rent Commission, and is to the effect that the landlord shall not have more than half the value of the net increase in the produce of the land [section 47 (c)].

39. Section 78 of the original Bill, which limited the right to bring successive enhancement suits, has now (section 50) been restricted to suits on the ground that the rent paid is below the prevailing rate, and suits on the ground of an increase of prices; but the restriction will now apply to cases in which a suit for enhancement has been dismissed on the merits as well as to cases in which enhancement has been decreed, and the period which must elapse between successive enhancements has been extended from ten to fifteen years.

40. The grounds on which a suit for reduction of rent may be brought are in the amended Bill (section 51) limited to the following:—

(a) that the soil of the holding has, without the fault of the raiyat, become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other like calamity, and

(b) that there has been a fall in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality.

In either case the Court is to direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

41. Section 52 of the amended Bill, which provides for the preparation of authoritative price-lists, differs from the corresponding section of the original Bill in certain particulars; but the only alteration which we need notice here is that the new section empowers the Local Government to direct price-lists to be prepared for past years as well as for current years. Materials for such price-lists exist in the statements of prices published regularly by the Bengal

Government during the past 12 years, and if it be possible to correct these lists and render them a trustworthy record of local prices, the work of the Courts in enhancing rents on the ground of a rise in price will be greatly simplified.

42. Section 80 of the original Bill, which provided for the enhancement of the rent of pasture lands, has been omitted, as it is understood that the letting of land to individual tenants for grazing purposes is so very rare that no special rules are needed to regulate it.

43. Section 81 of the original Bill, which prescribed a limit to the amount of the rent payable in kind by an occupancy-tenant or varying with the crop, has likewise been omitted, because it was found that local usage on the point was exceedingly complicated, large deductions being usually made from the crop for various purposes before dividing it, and that to draw a hard-and-fast line would very probably mislead the Courts and have an injurious effect.

44. The section (53) providing for the commutation of rent payable in kind has been recast on the lines of section 16 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, 1883. As it now stands it admits of an application for commutation being made to certain officers, either by the landlord or the tenant, and empowers the officer to whom it is made to refuse it if it is opposed. Further, the new section allows a larger discretion than the original section in determining the amount of the money-rent to be paid. It merely provides that in making the determination the officer shall have regard to—

(a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and

(b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years.

CHAPTER VI.

NON-OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

45. Section 89 of the original Bill provided that the non-occupancy-raiyat, or, as he was termed in that Bill, the "ordinary raiyat", should pay such rent as might be from time to time agreed on between him and his landlord, but subject to the provisions of section 119, which made five-sixteenths of the average annual value of gross produce the maximum of the rent. We now propose to abandon this maximum for the reasons which led us to abandon the corresponding maximum in the case of the enhancement of an occupancy-raiyat's rent, and the question accordingly arises whether any other restriction should be placed on contracts fixing the rent of a non-occupancy tenant. The majority of us are opposed to any such restriction, and accordingly the amended Bill leaves the parties free except in so far as it provides (section 57) that the rent shall not be enhanced after the raiyat has been admitted into occupation of the land, except by registered agreement or in the manner allowed by certain sections of the chapter to be presently noticed.

46. In section 58, which states the grounds on which a non-occupancy-raiyat is liable to be ejected, we have introduced a clause permitting him to be ejected, when he has for the first time been admitted to occupation of the land under a registered lease, on the ground that the term of the lease has expired; but we have provided in the following section (59) that a suit for ejectment on this ground shall not be instituted unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

47. We have also decided to strike out the clause giving the non-occupancy-raiyat compensation for disturbance, but have provided in lieu thereof (section 60) that when an ejectment suit is brought against a non-occupancy-raiyat on the ground of his refusal to pay an enhanced rent, the Court shall fix a fair and equitable rent, and the raiyat shall have the option of holding on at that rent for a term of five years, after which he will be liable to be ejected on the same conditions as after the expiry of an initial lease, provided rights of occupancy have not accrued to him in the meantime.

CHAPTER VII.

UNDER-RAIYATS.

48. We have already (supra paragraphs 26 and 27) referred to the new provision introduced into the Bill which, by converting an occupancy-raiyat who sub-lets half his land into a tenure-holder, confers upon his sub-lessees the status and advantages of raiyats. The chapter now under consideration provides a certain amount of protection to under-raiyats who are not entitled to the benefit of that provision.

Section 62 provides that the landlord of an under-raiyat holding at a money-rent shall not be entitled to recover rent exceeding the rent which he himself pays by more than the following percentage of the same, namely :—

(a) when the rent payable by the under-raiyat is payable under a registered lease or agreement—fifty per cent.; and

(b) in any other case—twenty-five per cent.

And section 63 provides that an under-raiyat shall not be liable to be ejected by his landlord, except at the end of an agricultural year, and after a written notice to quit has been served on him in the prescribed manner not less than six months before the expiration of that year.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO RENT.

49. This chapter opens with the provisions relating to the right of tenure-holders and raiyats to hold at a fixed rent, which have been transferred from the opening of the original chapter relating to tenure-holders. The only change made in these provisions which seems to call for notice here is the addition of a clause to sub-section (2) of section 64, providing that, if an enactment should hereafter be passed requiring the registration of permanent tenures or of tenancies at fixed rates, the well-known presumption from twenty years' holding shall cease to apply to any tenancies which are not registered within the time fixed. The Local Government, we understand, propose shortly to introduce into the Bengal Council a Bill establishing a registration system of the nature just referred to, and, if that Bill becomes law, it will, we believe, with the aid of this clause, afford, so far at least as those classes of tenancies are concerned, the best remedy for the hardship which the landlords complain of as caused to them by the retention on the Statute Book of the presumption in question. The above presumption will also cease to apply when a record-of-rights has been prepared (see infra para. 77)

50. In section 66, (2), we have omitted the hard-and-fast rule laid down in the corresponding section (96) of the original Bill, that in calculating the addition to be made to the rent of a tenure on account of an addition to the area comprised in it, 30 per cent. should be allowed for profits, risk and cost of collection; and have merely provided that the Court shall have regard to the profits to which the tenure-holder is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure.

51. In the section (67) relating to instalments of rent we have omitted as unnecessary the somewhat complicated proviso appended to section 98 of the original Bill.

52. We have in section 68 inserted a clause empowering the Local Government to try the experiment of making rules authorizing a tenant to pay his rent by postal money-order—a mode of payment which we think may in some cases be found convenient.

53. In sections 70 and 71 we have, instead of stereotyping the contents of the receipts and accounts to be furnished to tenants, given forms of these documents (in a schedule), and empowered the Local Government to alter them as convenience may require.

54. We have in section 70, (4), relaxed the stringency of the corresponding provision [section 100 (4)] of the original Bill by providing that a receipt not containing substantially the required particulars shall merely be "presumed until the contrary is shown" (instead of "deemed") to be an acquittance in full of all demands up to date.

55. It has been suggested that we should provide for applications for the withdrawal of rent deposited being exempted from Court-fees. We think such an exemption desirable, but it is within the power of the executive authorities to arrange for its being made, and we prefer to leave the matter in their hands.

56. We have, in the section (78) providing for ejectment from a non-transferable holding for arrears of rent, added a sub-section empowering the Court for special reasons to extend the period allowed for the payment of the rent.

57. We have empowered the Collector to depute an officer to divide or appraise the produce of a bhaoli holding, not only on the application of one of the parties concerned, but also in any case in which, in the opinion of the Magistrate of the District or Sub-Division, such action would be likely to prevent a breach of the peace [section 81 (2)].

58. We have further empowered the Collector in all cases to pass such order as he thinks just on the report of the officer deputed, and have provided that his order shall be final and be enforceable as a decree, unless he thinks fit to refer any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court [section 82 (4) and (5)]. This seems to us a simpler and more convenient procedure than leaving the parties to seek redress in the Civil Court in the first instance, as under the original Bill.

59. For section 117 of the original Bill we have substituted a section (set out in the margin) dealing comprehensively with the rights and liabilities of the landlord and tenant as to possession of the crop in cases where rent is taken by appraisement or division of the produce.

Rights and liabilities as to possession of crop.

83. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the produce.

(2) Where rent is taken by division of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to exclusive possession of the whole produce until it is divided.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord, but shall not be entitled to remove any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

The penal provision of section 117 of the original Bill has not been reproduced here, as the matter is sufficiently provided for in the more general penalty clause now inserted in Chapter XIX. (section 220).

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS AS TO LANDLORDS AND TENANTS.

60. We have introduced a new section (88) providing that when a raiyat holds at a fixed rent or fixed rate of rent his landlord shall not be entitled to prevent him from making an improvement.

61. We have in section 89 (3) empowered the Collector to decide finally any question between an occupancy-raiyat and his landlord—

(a) as to the right of the raiyat to make an improvement, and

(b) as to whether a particular work is an improvement.

62. We have, in order to facilitate the decision of disputes regarding improvements, introduced a section (92) based on section 80 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, 1883, providing that a landlord or tenant, desiring to have any evidence recorded regarding an improvement which has been made, may apply to a Revenue-officer to record it, and that the record so made shall be admissible in subsequent proceedings between the parties. We have also as intimated (supra para. 37) introduced a section (91) providing for the registration of improvements made by landlords.

63. Section 129 (4) of the Bill as introduced provided that improvements made by a raiyat before the commencement of the Act should be deemed to have been made in accordance with the Act unless it was shown that the landlord forbade the raiyat to make the improvement and was ready to make it himself. For this we have substituted a sub-section [section 93 (4)] providing that improvements made by a raiyat between the 2nd day of March, 1883 (the day on which the Bill was introduced) and the commencement of the Act, shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with the Act. This prevents the section from applying retrospectively to any improvements made before the introduction of the Bill.

64. We have in section 94 somewhat enlarged the list of matters to be taken into consideration by the Court in estimating the compensation to be allowed for an improvement, the most important additions being the condition of the improvement with reference to its duration, and that "in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land" the Court shall have regard "to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent".

65. We have re-drafted the section (95) relating to surrender by a tenant, on the lines of section 33 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, 1883, and, in order to remove a misapprehension which appears to exist in some quarters, have added a sub-section (5) expressly providing that when a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

66. The difficulties which arise in cases where a raiyat to all appearance abandons his holding, but the landlord cannot be sure whether he can safely assume the holding to have been abandoned and let it to another tenant, we have attempted to meet by the section set out in the margin.

Abandonment.

96. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) When a landlord enters under this section he shall cause a notice in the prescribed form to be published in such manner as the Local Government, by rule, directs, stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and has entered on it accordingly.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy-raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured as to the Court may seem just.

67. We have in section 99, which prohibits a landlord from measuring land more than once in ten years without the consent of the tenant or the permission of the Collector, allowed exceptions in the following cases, namely :—

(a) Where the area of the holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area.

(b) Where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation.

(c) Where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

68. In section 101, relating to the standard of measurement, we have introduced a sub-section empowering the Local Government after local inquiry to make rules declaring for any local area the standard or standards of measurement in use, and have provided that every such declaration shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown. This, we think, will render section 138 of the original Bill unnecessary, and we have accordingly omitted it. Other provisions connected with measurement will be found in the chapter (X) concerning the record-of-rights.

69. In the division of this chapter relating to the appointment of a manager to act on behalf of co-owners of an estate or tenure we have added a section (109) empowering the High Court to make rules defining the powers and duties of managers.

70. We have omitted the section relating to merger. It was in our opinion open to serious objection, not only from the particular point of view of the framers of the present Bill, inasmuch as it allowed of the occupancy-right being retained in the hands of a landlord, his tenants being thus reduced to the position of under-raiyats, but also from a more general point of view, inasmuch as it conferred on individuals a large and arbitrary power to introduce, without any sufficient reason, a serious complication into the law of property, and one moreover which would be likely to serve as a cloak for fraud.

The immediate requirements of this Bill are, we think, sufficiently met by the section (28) which we have introduced into the occupancy chapter, and to which we have already referred (supra para. 15); and for the rest we are of opinion, after giving our best consideration to the views of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Field, that the general question of merger is somewhat outside the proper scope of the present enactment.

CHAPTER X.

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT OF RENTS.

71. We have found it convenient to embody in a single chapter the two chapters of the original Bill relating to the above subjects, and to start with the record-of-rights, which is the simpler of the two.

72. The difficulty from the absence of a record occasionally felt, especially by a person who purchases an estate or tenure at a compulsory sale by auction, will, we think, be met by the new section (112) which admits, subject to certain conditions, of a record-of-rights being framed by Revenue-officer on the application of a proprietor or tenure-holder.

73. As regards the procedure in framing a record-of-rights, it will be observed that an important change has been made. Under Chapter XII of the original Bill the procedure was to be summary in all cases, whether there was or was not a dispute as to the entry which ought to be made in the record, and the result in all cases alike would have been merely an entry in the record, which would be primâ facie presumed to be correct, but would be open to be impugned in a Civil Court. In the amended Bill, on the contrary, a fuller opportunity is allowed for raising objections by a preliminary publication of the record, and if any entry, which it is proposed to make or which has been made, is called in question, the Revenue-officer is to inquire into the dispute according to the regular procedure of a Civil Court, and his decision is to have the force of a decree and to be appealable first to a special judge appointed to hear such appeals, and then, subject to the usual limitations of second appeals, to the High Court. Thus, in any case in which there is a dispute regarding an entry in the record, the question will be placed on the footing of a res judicata. Where, up to the time allowed after the preliminary publication of the record for preferring objections, no objection is made, the entry will be marked as undisputed, and as proposed in the original Bill will simply be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved. We think that, having regard to the large scale on which those operations will be conducted, and to the impossibility of being sure that any sort of publication would bring home to every individual concerned the precise nature of the entries being made regarding him, we could not venture to give an undisputed entry any authority higher than that just mentioned.

74. The operation termed a "settlement of rents" includes, in addition to the preparation of a record-of-rights, the settlement of all such rents of occupancy-tenants and tenure-holders holding otherwise than at fixed rents, as either the landlord or the tenant may apply to have settled.

The questions whether a rent is open to settlement, and, if so, the amount at which it should be settled, are of a complex nature depending on two very different sets of considerations. They depend in the first place on issues, relating to such matters as the existence of the tenancy, the extent of the land, the status of the tenant, the conditions under which he holds, &c., and possibly involving points of law, which could not satisfactorily be decided without the security afforded by an ultimate appeal to the highest judicial authority. They depend in the second place on considerations of an economical nature, such as the state of prices prevailing at different periods, the effect of improvements, and so forth, which it is universally admitted cannot be adequately dealt with either in the first instance or on appeal except after local inquiry and by persons possessed of special technical knowledge. The problem before us has been how best to provide for the separation of these two elements, so that each may be dealt with, and finally dealt with, by those most competent to deal with it. The solution of this problem proposed in the original Bill will be seen on referring to section 160 of that Bill. The modification above described in the record-of-rights procedure, and especially the introduction of the special judge, who will doubtless always be an officer possessing a familiarity with the local agricultural system, in addition to judicial qualifications, has opened the way to what appears to us to be a more satisfactory solution. What we propose is that when a rent, which has been settled or which it is proposed to settle, is disputed, the dispute shall be dealt with by the Revenue-officer in the same way as a dispute regarding an entry in the record-of-rights, that an appeal on the whole question shall then lie to the special judge, and that his decision shall be final unless, in a second appeal in respect of one of the record-of-rights entries with reference to which the rent has been settled, the High Court alters the decision of the special judge. In this case the High Court may settle a new rent, but in so doing is to be guided by the other rents shown in the rent roll. In other words, there can be no second appeal to the High Court merely on the ground that the rent has been pitched too high or too low, but if a second appeal is preferred, as it may be, on the ground that the special judge, owing to some error on a point of law, has, for example, found the holding to comprise more land or less land than it actually does comprise, and the appellant succeeds, the High Court can, without altering the rates, reduce or increase the rent, as the case may be.

75. We have, in section 120, provided that, when a landlord is entitled under the foregoing sections to apply to have the rent of a holding settled, the rent of the holding, whether he applies and has it settled or it is merely ascertained, shall not be enhanced for fifteen years, except on the ground of an improvement made by the landlord or of an increase of the area of the holding.

76. Section 121, providing for the payment of expenses, has now been made applicable to the preparation of a record-of-rights as well as to the settlement of rents.

77. The only other provision of this chapter which appears to call for notice is the new section (122) which enacts that when the particulars of a tenancy have been recorded under the chapter, the well known presumption arising from twenty years' holding at a fixed rent shall cease to apply.

CHAPTER XI.

TABLES OF RATES.

78. We have been guided, in dealing with the subject of this chapter, by the views of the Government of Bengal. It appears from the enquiries that have been made that, owing to the great diversity of rates, it would in most parts of the country be impracticable to frame general tables of rates applicable to large tracts; but in special tracts the preparation of such tables may still, in the opinion of the Government of Bengal, be found a preferable alternative to the plan of a general settlement of rents by the Revenue-officer. In the latter case the Revenue-officer goes on the ground and himself decides all questions at issue. In the former case the Revenue-officer merely ascertains and records general facts which will serve as a guide to the Courts, whose business it will be to apply them to the circumstances of particular disputes brought before them. We have, therefore, retained the procedure with only a few minor alterations, but it will no longer be so important a feature as it was in the original Bill.

CHAPTER XII.

RECORD OF PROPRIETOR'S PRIVATE LANDS.

79. In dealing with the difficult question of khámár or zeraat land we have provided two alternative methods of procedure—

(a) that of survey and registration of such land by a Revenue-officer, by order of the Local Government;

(b) that of enquiry on the application of the individual landlord or tenant concerned.

The former procedure would apply to large areas where the question is important, the latter to disputes about particular plots of land. At the request of the Government of Bengal the two methods of procedure have been left equally applicable to any part of the country. We have made no distinction in the description of this land between Bengal and Bihár, but we have directed regard to be had in every case to local custom, and, while making it incumbent on the Revenue-officer to record certain lands as the proprietor's private land, have endeavoured to assist him by certain guiding rules in cases not clearly coming under these heads. The section is reproduced below.

Rules for determination of proprietor's private land.

138. (1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land—

(a) land which is proved to have been cultivated as khámár, zeraat, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and

(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village-custom as proprietor's khámár, zeraat, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat.

(2). In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land the officer shall have regard to local custom and to the question whether the land was before the 2nd of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land, but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3). If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

CHAPTER XIII.

DISTRAINT.

80. The only changes made in this chapter to which it seems to us necessary to direct attention are the following :—

(a) Section 167 (2) of the original Bill, which made an application for distraint liable to the same Court-fee as a suit for the arrear of rent, has been omitted.

(b) Produce already stored has been exempted from distraint.

(c) The Court is empowered (section 141 (3) and (4)) to issue in certain cases an order prohibiting the removal of the produce pending the issue or execution of an order of distraint.

(d) It has been made clear (section 147) that crops which admit of being stored are not to be sold standing.

(e) Section 186 of the original Bill, which under certain circumstances imposed a penalty on persons on whose behalf an offence under section 185 is committed, has been omitted.

(f) On the other hand, express provision has been made in the first section of Chapter XIX for punishing abetment of the offences in question, and it has been made clear (section 158) that a person, whose property is distrained under cover of this chapter, but in a case to which it does not properly apply, has his remedy by suit against those who put the Court in motion.

(g) Section 187 of the original Bill, which empowered the Local Government to suspend the operation of the chapter, has been omitted.

CHAPTER XIV.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE.

81. We have excluded suits for penalties and suits for the recovery of possession of land from the special procedure prescribed in sections 191-197 of the original Bill.

82. We have introduced at the opening of this chapter a section (159), modelled on a section in the Presidency-towns Small Cause Court Act, empowering the High Court, with the approval of the Local Government, to make rules declaring that any portions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to suits between landlord and tenant, or shall apply subject to modifications. We trust that as experience is acquired of the working of the Courts under the new Act it may be found possible to exercise this power so as to effect further simplifications in procedure.

83. For ourselves we must confess that, after the most anxious consideration of the various schemes which have been propounded for shortening and simplifying the procedure in rent suits, we are unable to suggest anything of importance in this direction which would not involve a serious risk of failure of justice. In particular, while we are anxious to facilitate the service of summons and the proof of such service, we are unwilling to give any presumption of law against an absent defendant except on adequate proof of such service.

84. We have, however, with a view to avoiding, as far as possible, the complication and delay which arise from questions as to the landlord's title being raised in rent-suits, made an important amendment in the section (164) which requires a tenant, admitting that rent is due from him, but pleading that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, to pay the amount into Court. Our object is to force the issue of disputed title to be raised separately and independently of the rent suit, and we have therefore provided that the Court shall, on the money being paid in, cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person, and unless he, within three months, institutes a separate suit against the plaintiff and obtains an order restraining the payment of the money, it will be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

85. We have further added a section (165) providing that when a defendant in a rent suit admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff but disputes the amount, the Court shall, as a rule, require him to pay the amount admitted into Court.

86. We have provided (section 173) that when a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser he may claim, as alternative relief, that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court.

87. Section 207 of the original Bill provided that a landlord or a tenant might institute a suit for the determination of the nature and incidents of the tenancy. We have (section 174) substituted the simpler and cheaper procedure of an application, and have empowered the Court, to which the application is made, to direct that a Revenue-officer shall make a local enquiry into any matter it thinks fit.

CHAPTER XVI.

SUMMARY SALE FOR ARREARS.

88. We have, in accordance with what we understand to be the desire of the landlords, maintained the provisions of the law relating to the sale of patní tenures substantially intact, amending them only in matters of form and minor detail. The provisions so amended have now been transferred from the Schedules to the body of the Bill, and form the first division of this chapter.

89. The second division of it consists of a single section enacting that, if provision is made by law for the registration in a public register of any tenures other than patní tenures, the provisions of the chapter shall, subject to such modifications as the Local Government may by rule prescribe, apply to those tenures.

CHAPTER XVII.

CONTRACT AND CUSTOM.

90. The important question as to the extent to which freedom of contract between landlord and tenant should be restricted has been disposed of, in so far as a few particular points are concerned, in the sections of the Bill relating to those points (see e. g. paras. 29, 30 and 48 supra on the subject of contracts fixing rent). But we have thought it convenient to collect in one section at the opening of this chapter most of the restrictions which, in the opinion of the majority of us, it is necessary to place on the power to contract out of the provisions of the law.

The matters which are thus placed beyond the reach of contract will be seen to be as follows:—

(a) The acquisition of the status of settled-raiyat and of the occupancy-right (sections 24, 25 and 26).

(b) The incidents of the occupancy-right specified in section 31.

(c) The occupancy-raiyat's right to demand a reduction of rent under section 51.

(d) The right of either landlord or tenant to demand a commutation of a produce-rent under section 53.

(e) The protection afforded by the Bill to a non-occupancy-raiyat or an under-raiyat from ejectment except on specified grounds (sections 58, 59, 60 and 63).

(f) The right of a tenant to a reduction of rent on account of a diminution of the area of his holding (section 66).

(g) The right of a raiyat to make improvements and claim compensation for them (sections 88, 89, 90 and 93).

(h) The protection afforded to all tenants against ejectment except in execution of a decree (section 98).

91. With a view to encouraging permanent mukarrarí leases we have inserted in this chapter a new section (211) providing that nothing in the Act shall be deemed to prevent a landlord in a permanently-settled estate from granting a permanent mukarrarí lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant.

92. It has been admitted throughout our discussions that lands held on reclamation-lease, chur or dearah lands, and lands taken under the customs known as utbundi and hal-hasili must be treated exceptionally, and the three following sections of this chapter are intended to make such special provision regarding them as appears to us to be necessary.

93. Section 212 provides that nothing in the Act shall affect any contract for the reclamation of waste-land.

94. Section 213 provides that a raiyat holding chur or dearah land shall not acquire a right of occupancy in the land until he has held it for twelve continuous years, and that until he acquires the right of occupancy he shall be liable to pay whatever rent is agreed on between him and his landlord, but that the Court may upon the application of either party declare that the land has ceased to be chur or dearah land, and thereupon the provisions of the Act shall apply to it.

95. Lastly, section 214 enacts that nothing in the Act shall affect the conditions, customary or otherwise, under which land is held on either of the systems known as the utbundi and hal-hasili systems.

96. As already stated (paragraph 4) we have omitted Chapter VII of the original Bill, which was intended to provide for the case of a raiyat holding his homestead otherwise than as a part of his holding as a raiyat. As, however, the absence of any mention of such tenancies in the Bill might give rise to misapprehension, we have thought it well to insert a section (216) expressly providing that their incidents will be regulated by local custom.

CHAPTER XVIII.

LIMITATION.

97. We consider that a moderately short period of limitation should be fixed for the recovery by an occupancy-raiyat of land comprised in his holding, and, following the precedent presented by section 81 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, 1881, we have fixed the period at two years from the date on which he is ejected, adding a proviso to guard against the revival of causes of action already barred.

CHAPTER XIX.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

98. We have somewhat amplified the provisions of section 221, which empowers a landlord to act through his agent, and in order to remove a misapprehension which, notwithstanding the definition of "landlord" contained in the Bill, we have found to exist in some quarters, we have added a section (222) to make it clear that, when two or more persons are joint landlords, they must act together or through an agent appointed by them jointly.

99. In the course of our discussions various points have been raised with which we felt that we were unable to deal adequately without further information than that contained in the papers before us. On some of these points we should be glad to receive the advice both of the Local Government and of the High Court.

The principal questions are as follows:—

(1) Whether, with reference especially to landlord's improvements, it is desirable to empower Revenue-officers to arrange for the cutting of irrigation channels, the distribution of water and the payment of compensation, and, if so, what form such provisions should take.

(2) What modifications it may be desirable to make, whether by rules or otherwise, in the Code of Civil Procedure, with a view to expedite the trial of rent suits; and in particular whether it is desirable that landlords should be empowered to institute, by means of a single plaint, suits for arrears against a number of raiyats holding independently of each other.

(3) Whether any provision can safely be enacted restricting the right to claim a re-trial when a decree has been given ex parte. We are aware that a judge is in no way bound to admit a re-trial unless he is satisfied that the summons failed to reach the defendant or that he was prevented by some sufficient cause from appearing; but the representations made to us are to the effect that the due service of the summons is systematically denied, and that the Courts too readily accept the plea, thus encouraging tactics the only object of which is to interpose delay and to involve the landlord in unnecessary expense in recovering his dues.

The proposal before us was that ex parte suits should not be re-tried except upon the defendant depositing the amount decreed, but we were unwilling to adopt this proposal on the information before us and desired that it should be referred for the consideration of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court.

(4) A somewhat similar suggestion which has been made to us is that a defendant in a suit for arrears should not be allowed to appeal from a decree passed against him except on depositing the amount of the decree. On this suggestion, too, we should be glad to have the opinion of the Judges.

(5) A further point, and on this we desire to have the opinion of the Local Government, is whether the summary sale procedure can be applied to those independent taluqs the revenue of which was settled direct with Government, though the holders pay it through the zamíndár. These tenures apparently find no place in the Government registers, and it was proposed that the modified patní procedure should be applied to them.

(6) A similar proposal was made to render this procedure applicable to the recovery of arrears of Road Cess and Public Works Cess from rent-free tenure-holders. We decided to refer this point also to the Local Government.

(7) The necessity for further information respecting the conditions on which bastu or homestead land is held has already been noticed (supra para. 4).

(8) We are also anxious to be informed if the saving of customary conditions which we have specifically applied to utbandi and hal-hasili tenures should be extended to similar tenures under other names, and also if any special saving is necessary in regard to the special tenures under which land is held in the Chittagong division.

(9) Again, we desire to be informed whether it would be possible to specify, for the purpose of exemption from the pre-emption sections, any such transferable occupancy-rights as those in guzashta and gora holdings.

(10) Finally, we desire that the Government of Bengal may be consulted as to the possibility of improving the accuracy of the price-lists which have been published during the past twelve years, and the probable effect of basing a system of enhancement of rent mainly on these prices.

D. means Mr. Field's Digest.

C. B., the Bill prepared by the Commission.

B. B. the Bill submitted by the Bengal Government with letter No. 849, dated 27th July, 1881.

SECTION means the corresponding section of the Bill as introduced in March, 1883.

A Bill to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the Territories under the Administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Section 1 (1). Short title.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1884.

Section 1 (2). Commencement.

(2) It shall come into force on such date (hereinafter called the commencement of this Act) as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

[C. B., s. 1. B. B., s. 1.] Section 1 (3). Local extent.

(3) It shall extend by its own operation to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except the Town of Calcutta, the Division of Orissa, and the Scheduled Districts specified in the third part of the First Schedule of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874; and the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local Gazette, extend the whole or any part of this Act to the Division of Orissa.

[C. B., s. 2. B. B., s. 2. Section 2. Repeal.

2. (1) The enactments specified in Schedule I hereto annexed are repealed in the territories to which this Act extends by its own operation.

(2) When this Act is extended to the Division of Orissa, such of those enactments as are in force in that Division, or, where a part only of this Act is so extended, so much of them as is inconsistent with that part, shall be repealed in that Division.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any enactment hereby repealed shall be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

(4) The repeal of any enactment by this Act shall not revive any right, privilege, matter or thing not in force or existing at the commencement of this Act.

Section 86. (16) "Patní tenure" means a tenure of the kind described in Schedule II annexed to this Act, and includes the darpatní and other similar tenures referred to in that schedule.

CHAPTER II.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

Classes of tenants. 4. There shall be, for the purposes of this Act, the following classes of tenants, namely:—

(1) Tenure-holders, including under-tenure-holders,

(2) Raiyats and

Section 3 (6). (3) Under-raiyats, that is to say, tenants holding whether immediately or mediately under raiyats;

and the following classes of raiyats, namely:—

(a) raiyats holding at fixed rates, which expression includes raiyats holding either at a fixed rent or at a fixed rate of rent,

(b) occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats having a right of occupancy in the land held by them, and

(c) non-occupancy raiyats, that is to say, raiyats not having such a right of occupancy.

tion 3 (4). 5. (1) "Tenure-holder" means primarily a person who has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder the right to collect rents, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right and the persons who are to be deemed tenure-holders under section 37.

Meaning of tenure-holder and raiyat.

D., § 1.
B, s. 3.
B, s. 3. "raiyat" and land")
ction 3 (5). (2) "Raiyat" means primarily a person who has acquired land for the purpose of cultivating it by himself, or by members of his family, or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners, and, subject to section 37, includes also the successors in interest of persons who have so acquired land.

(3) A person shall not be deemed to be a raiyat unless he holds land either immediately under a proprietor or immediately under a tenure-holder.

(4) In determining whether a tenant is a tenure-holder or a raiyat the Court shall have regard to—

(a) local custom;

(b) the provisions of section 37, with respect to raiyats who sub-let more than half their holdings; and

(c) the nature of the right of tenancy as originally acquired, that is to say, whether it was a right to collect rents or a right to cultivate land.

(5) Where the area of a holding exceeds 100 standard bighás, and the whole or part of it is sub-let, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shewn.

CHAPTER III.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

Enhancement of rent.

Enhancement of rent. 6. (1) Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof— [D., s. 19 C. B., s. 7 B. B., s. 7.] Section 18.

Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

(a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by local custom, or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or

(b) that the tenure-holder, by receiving reductions of his rent, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded, and that the lands are capable of affording it.

(2) A reduction of rent granted to a tenure-holder on account of diluvion or for land taken under the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force for the acquisition of land for public purposes or companies shall not be deemed a reduction within the meaning of this section.

7. (1) Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, it may, subject to any contract between the parties, be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity. [D., § 28 C. B., ss. 9 & 12. B. B., ss 9 & 10] Section 21.

Limits of enhancement of rent of tenures

(2) Where no such customary rate exists, it may, subject as aforesaid, be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

(3) In determining what is fair and equitable the Court shall not leave to the tenure-holder as profit less than ten per centum of the balance which remains after deducting from the gross rents payable to him the expenses of collecting the rents, and shall have regard to—

(a) the circumstances under which the tenure was created, for instance, whether the land comprised in the tenure, or a great portion of it, was first brought under cultivation by the agency or at the expense of the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest;

(b) the improvements, if any, made by the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest; and

(c) the cost and risks of collection.

(4) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter III.—Tenure-holders. Secs. 8 to 16.)

[C B., s 10(a). B B., s 11(a).] Section 22.

Enhanced rent not to be more than double the previous rent.

8. Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, the enhanced rent fixed under the last foregoing section shall not be more than double the rent previously payable.

[C B., s. 10(a). B B., s 11(b).] Section 23.

Power to order gradual enhancement.

9 The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

[C B., s. 10(b) B B., s 11(c).] Section 24.

Rent once enhanced may not be altered for ten years.

10. When the rent of a tenure-holder has been enhanced by the Court or by contract, it shall not be again enhanced by the Court during the ten years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced.

Other incidents of tenures.

Other incidents of tenures.

Transfer and transmission of permanent tenures.

11. Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act in respect of registration, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

[C B., s. 13. B B., ss 13 & 17] Section 25.

Section 26.

Permanent tenure-holder not liable to ejectment.

12. A holder of a permanent tenure shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Patní tenures.

Patni tenures.

Power of patnídar to sub-let.

13. The holder of a patní tenure may, subject to the provisions of this Act, let the land comprised in his tenure or any part thereof.

[D., § 26. C B., s 14. B. B., s 13.] Section 37 (2).

[D., § 27. C B., s 53 (a) B. B., s. 45 (a).] Section 38.

Right of landlord of patní tenure to demand security from transferees.

14. (1) When a patní tenure is transferred, whether voluntarily, or by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale under this Act, the landlord may require the transferee to furnish substantial security to the amount of one half-year's rent of the tenure, for the payment of the rent and the fulfilment of the conditions of the tenure.

[D., § 29. C B., s. 53 (b). B B., s 45 (b).] Section 40 (1).

(2) In the case of a transfer by sale in execution of a decree, or by summary sale, if security is demanded by the landlord from the purchaser under this section and is not furnished within one month from the date on which it is so demanded, the landlord may attach and hold possession of the tenure to the exclusion of the transferee until the security is furnished.

Section 40 (2).

(3) While an attachment under this section continues, the landlord may collect the rents from the under-tenure-holders or raiyats, and, after deducting therefrom the cost of the attachment, the expenses of collection and the rent due to himself, he shall hold the balance in trust for the purchaser.

(4) If the rents so collected are not sufficient to discharge the cost of the attachment, the expenses of collection, and the rent due to the landlord, the purchaser shall be liable for the deficiency, and the landlord may proceed against him for the recovery of the same. Section 40 (3)

(5) If the security tendered under this section by any transferee is rejected by the landlord, the transferee may, within three months from the date of the rejection, apply to the Civil Court for an order directing the landlord to receive the security, and the Court, if satisfied of the sufficiency of the security tendered, may make such order, or, if not so satisfied, may make an order rejecting the application. [D., § 28 C B., s 53(b) B B., s. 45 (c).] Section 41 (1).

(6) No appeal shall lie from any order under this section. Section 41 (2)

Registration.

Registration.

Registration of voluntary transfers and successions.

15. (1) When a transfer of a permanent tenure (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under this Act) or a succession to such a tenure, takes place, the landlord shall, subject, in the case of a patní tenure, to the provisions of the last foregoing section, register the same on the joint application of the transferor and transferee, or on the application of the person succeeding, as the case may be, and on payment by the applicant of the fee next hereinafter prescribed:

[D., § 25. C. B., s. 46. B. B., s. 37] Section 27 (1)

Provided that a landlord may, if he thinks fit, refuse to register a transfer of a tenure if any arrear of rent is due thereon.

(2) The fee payable on an application under this section shall be as follows, namely:—

[D., s. 27. C. B., ss. 47, 49. B. B., ss 39, 41.] Section 27 (2)

(a) when rent is payable in respect of the tenure a fee of two per centum on the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than one rupee or more than one hundred rupees; and

(b) when rent is not payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two rupees.

(3) If a landlord refuses to comply with any application under this section, he shall deliver to the applicant a statement in writing of the reasons for his refusal, and if he fails to do so the applicant may institute a suit to recover from him such sum by way of penalty not exceeding one hundred rupees as the Court thinks fit. Section 27 (3)

Registration of transfer by sale in execution of decree other than decree for rent.

16. (1) When a permanent tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall, before confirming the sale under section 312 of the Code of Civil Procedure, require the purchaser to pay into Court the registration fee prescribed by the last foregoing section and such further fee for service of notice of the sale on the landlord as may be prescribed by the rules under section 22.

29 (2). (2) When the sale has been confirmed, the Court shall forthwith cause to be served on the landlord a notice of the sale, requiring him to register the same, and informing him that the registration-fee has been received and will be paid to him on demand when the registration has been effected; and the landlord shall, in the absence of sufficient cause, forthwith comply with the requisition.

30. 17. When a permanent tenure is transferred by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, or by summary sale under this Act, the landlord shall register the transfer without any application or requisition being made to him in this behalf, and without the payment of any fee.

Registration of transfer by sale in execution of decree for rent or by summary sale.

36. 46. 49. 37, and 41.] 31. 18. (1) When a transfer of a permanent tenure (not being a transfer by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent or by summary sale under this Act) has taken place, the landlord may, until the transfer has been registered under this chapter, hold the transferor and transferee jointly and severally liable for arrears of rent accruing after the transfer.

Effect of omission to register.

(2) A person becoming entitled to a permanent tenure by transfer or succession shall not be entitled to recover by suit, distraint or other proceeding any rent payable to him as the holder of the tenure, until the transfer or succession has been registered under this chapter, or a notice thereof has been served on the landlord in manner directed by rules under section 22.

35. 44] 33 (1). 19. (1) If a landlord refuses or neglects for a period of one month to register a transfer or succession which he is bound to register under the foregoing sections, the transferor or transferee, or, as the case may be, the person succeeding, may apply to the Civil Court to compel such registration.

Application to Court to compel landlord to register.

(32) 2. (2) The Court thereupon may issue a notice to the landlord, and, when the application is made by one party to a transfer, also to the other party or parties to the transfer, requiring him or them, as the case may be, to show cause, at a time and place therein specified, why the transfer or succession should not be registered.

32 (3) (3) If sufficient cause as aforesaid is not so shown, the Court may make an order directing the landlord to register the transfer or succession, and the making of such an order shall have the same effect as if the transfer or succession had been registered.

(4) If sufficient cause as aforesaid is shown, the Court may refuse to make an order, or may make such order as in its opinion will meet the circumstances of the case.

[C. B., ss. 50 and 51 B. B., ss. 42 and 43.] Section 33 (1). 20. (1) When a transfer (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under this Act) or a succession, registrable under the foregoing sections, has taken place, and no application is made for its registration within the six months following the date on which it has taken place, the landlord may apply to the Civil Court to authorize the registration of the transfer or succession and to compel the parties to the transfer, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to pay the fee mentioned in section 15.

Application by landlord to compel registration.

Section 33 (2). (2) The Court may thereupon issue a notice, calling on the parties to the transfer, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to show cause, at a time and place specified in the notice, why the registration should not be made and why they or he should not pay the fee.

Section 33 (3). (3) If sufficient cause as aforesaid is not so shown, the Court may make an order authorising the landlord to register the transfer or succession, and directing the transferee, or the person succeeding, as the case may be, to pay the fee. The making of such an order shall have the same effect as if the transfer or succession had been registered, and the order so made shall, so far as it directs the recovery of the fee, have the force of a decree in a suit.

(4) If sufficient cause as aforesaid is so shown, the Court may refuse to make an order, or may make such order as in its opinion will meet the circumstances of the case.

[C. B., s. 54. B. B., s. 46.] Section 34 21. When a transfer of, or a succession to, a tenure has been registered under the foregoing sections, every person to or from whom the tenure or any share thereof is transferred, or (as the case may be) every person succeeding to the tenure, shall be entitled to receive from the landlord as many copies as he may from time to time demand of the entry in the register relating to the tenure, certified by the landlord as a true copy: provided that for every copy so received he shall pay to the landlord such fee, not less than one anna or more than one rupee, as the Local Government may from time to time fix in this behalf.

Landlord to give copies of entries in the register.

[C. B. s. 45. B. B., s. 46.] Section 35 (3). 22. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by rules consistent with this Act and published in the official Gazette, prescribe forms for the registers to be maintained under the foregoing sections, and generally the procedure to be followed in regard to registration.

Power to make rules regarding registration.

Section 35 (3). (2) In making any rule under sub-section (1) the Local Government may provide that any breach thereof shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

General.

General. [B B., s 19 (1) & Expl. IV (c), proviso.] Section 44.

Continuance of existing occupancy-rights.

24. Every raiyat who immediately before the commencement of this Act has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land, shall, when this Act comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

Section 47.

Settled raiyats to have occupancy-rights.

25. (1) Every settled raiyat of a village or estate shall have a right of occupancy in all land held by him as a raiyat in that village or estate.

Section 47.

(2) Every person who, being a settled raiyat of a village or estate, held land as a raiyat in that village or estate at any time between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in that land under the law then in force.

Section 45 (1).

Definition of settled raiyat.

26. (1) Every person who for a period of twelve years whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act has continuously held as a raiyat land situate in any village or estate, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

(2) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed for the purposes of this section until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years held the land or some part of it as a raiyat.

Section 45 (1).

(3) A person shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have held land continuously in a village or estate, notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times.

(4) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held as a raiyat any land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is. Section 4

(5) Land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyati holding shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been held as a raiyat by each such co-sharer. Section 45

(7) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 96, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession more than a year.

Definition of village and estate.

27. For the purpose of the foregoing sections of this chapter— [B. B., Expl. II] Section 48.

(a) Village means an area included in a village map of the revenue-survey within the same exterior boundary, including such outlying portions (if any) as appear from the map to belong to the village, or, where no such maps have been prepared, such area as any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf may determine after local inquiry held on such notice as the Local Government considers sufficient for giving information to all persons interested.

(b) Where two or more estates have been created by one or more partitions taking place, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, but since the first day of January, 1858, the area comprised in the parent estate of which they would have formed part if no such partition had taken place shall be deemed to be a single estate.

Effect of acquisition of occupancy-right by landlord.

28. If the landlord of a raiyat having a right of occupancy acquires, by purchase or otherwise, the interest of the raiyat, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist, but nothing in this section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person. Section

Special provisions as to joint owners and farmers.

29. (1) A person holding land as a raiyat shall not be prevented from acquiring an occupancy-right in the land by reason only that he is jointly interested in the land as proprietor or tenure-holder.

(2) A person holding as an ijárádár or farmer of rents shall not by such holding acquire a right of occupancy in the land, but if a person acquires a right of occupancy in land he shall not lose it by subsequently holding the land in farm. [D., § 40 Expla I C. B., s Expl. IV B. B., s Expl. IV Section proviso (D., § 40 Expl. V C. B., s Expl Expl. Expl. (4) B B., s Expl. III Expl IV Section

Saving as to khámár land.

30. Nothing in this Chapter shall confer a right of occupancy in a proprietor's private lands known in Bengal as khámár, nij or nij-jot, and in Bihár as zírat, nij, sír or kamat, where any such land is held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 31—35.)

31. Where a raiyat has a right of occupancy in respect of any land, the following provisions shall apply, namely:—

Incidents of occupancy-right.

(a) He may use the land in any manner which does not render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy; but shall not be entitled to cut down trees in contravention of any local custom.

(b) He may make improvements on the land as by this Act provided.

(c) He shall pay rent at fair and equitable rates.

(d) He shall not be ejected by his landlord from the land, except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed on the ground—

(i) that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or

(ii) that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

(e) He may surrender his holding in accordance with this Act.

(f) His right of occupancy in the land shall, subject to the rights reserved to the landlord by this Act, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed by will in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

(g) He may, subject to the provisions of this Act, sub-let his land or any part thereof.

(h) His right of occupancy in the land shall, if he dies intestate in respect of it, descend in the same manner as any other immoveable property: provided that in any case in which, under the law of inheritance to which he is subject, his other property goes to the Crown, his right of occupancy shall be extinguished.

Restrictions on transfer.

32. (1) The right of a raiyat to sell his occupancy-right shall be subject to a right of pre-emption on the part of his landlord.

Landlord's right of pre-emption on voluntary sale of occupancy-right.

(2) For the purpose of enabling the landlord to exercise his right of pre-emption, the raiyat shall, if he intends to sell his occupancy-right to any person other than the landlord, file in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, for service on the landlord, a written notice of his intention, stating the person to whom he intends to sell the right, the terms on which he intends to sell, and the incumbrances, if any, to which the right is subject, and shall defer proceeding with the sale until the expiration of six weeks from the date on which he files the notice.

(3) The Court or officer in whose office the notice is filed shall forthwith cause it to be served on the landlord in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule direct. Section 51, (3).

(4) The landlord may, within the period of six weeks from the date of the notice being filed, claim to purchase the occupancy-right from the raiyat at such price as may be agreed on between them, or, if they cannot agree on a price, at such price as may be fixed by the Civil Court on an application made to it in this behalf by the landlord within the said period of six weeks; and if the landlord so claims and, within one month from the date on which a price is agreed on or fixed by the court, tenders that price to the raiyat, the raiyat shall either abstain from selling the land, or sell it to the landlord at that price.

(5) If a raiyat sells his occupancy-right to any person other than the landlord without having filed the notice required by this section, or within the period of six weeks from the date of the notice being filed, the sale shall be void as against the landlord. Section 51, (4).

(6) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring a Civil Court to associate with itself for the purpose of fixing the price of an occupancy-right under this section such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

33. Where an occupancy-right is sold in execution of a decree, and two or more persons, one of whom is the landlord, respectively advance the same sum at any bidding, the bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the landlord. [Act XIV of 1882, s. 310.] Section 52.

Landlord's right of pre-emption on sale in execution.

34. (1) Where an occupancy-right has been mortgaged by the raiyat and an order absolute for foreclosure is applied for in respect of it under section 87 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the Court shall, if it proposes to make the order, cause a notice of the application to be served on the landlord, and shall defer making the order for a period of one month from the service of the notice. Section 53, (1). IV of 1882.

Landlord's right to take the place of mortgagee on foreclosure.

(2) If the landlord within the said period of one month pays into Court the amount requisite to redeem the mortgage, the Court shall pay that amount to the plaintiff in the suit, declare the landlord entitled to stand in the place of the plaintiff, and pass an order absolute for foreclosure in favour of the landlord. Section 53, (2).

(3) An order absolute passed under sub-section (2) shall have the same effect as if the landlord had been the mortgagee and the plaintiff in the suit. Section 53, (3).

35. (1) A gift of an occupancy-right in land shall not be valid against the landlord unless it is made by a registered instrument. Section 54, (1).

Restrictions on gifts of occupancy-right

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 26—42.)

(2) The registering officer shall not register any such instrument except on payment of the prescribed fee for service on the landlord of notice of the registration.

Section 54 (2). (3) When any such gift has been registered, the registering officer shall forthwith serve notice of the registration on the landlord.

(4) In the case of gifts made by Muhammadans, nothing in this section shall apply to a gift to a person within the prohibited degrees.

Meaning of landlord for purposes of foregoing sections.

36. For the purpose of the last four foregoing sections the term landlord shall mean exclusively either—

(a) a proprietor under whom immediately the land is held by the raiyat;

(b) a permanent tenure-holder under whom immediately the land is held by the raiyat; or

(c) any other tenure-holder under whom immediately the land is held by the raiyat, provided that such tenure-holder holds immediately under the proprietor or a permanent tenure-holder and is authorized in writing by the proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, as the case may be, to exercise the rights of a landlord for the purposes of the said sections.

Restrictions on sub-letting.

Conversion of sub-letting occupancy-raiyats into tenure holders.

37. If the portion of his holding sub-let by an occupancy-raiyat exceeds more than half his holding, he shall, on being registered in a public register as a tenure-holder under any Act which may be passed for the registration of tenure-holders, be deemed to have become a tenure-holder within the meaning of this Act.

Provided as follows:—

(a) Nothing in this section shall apply to any person who is disabled from cultivation by age, sex, disease, accident or temporary absence from home on military or domestic service or a pilgrimage and who sub-lets his holding or any part thereof for a term not exceeding the duration of his disability

(b) If a person is converted into a tenure-holder by virtue of this section his rent shall be liable to enhancement on the same terms and subject to the same conditions as if he were an occupancy-raiyat.

Explanation. A person who has been converted into a tenure-holder by virtue of this section does not by reason of the portion of his holding sub-let ceasing to be more than one-half the holding become again converted into a raiyat.

Restrictions on term of sub-lease.

38. If an occupancy-raiyat sub-lets his holding or any part thereof, the sub-lease shall not be valid for a term exceeding seven years.

Provided as follows:—

(a) Where a raiyat is disabled from cultivation by age, sex, disease, accident or temporary absence from his home on military or domestic service, or a pilgrimage, nothing in this section shall prevent him or be deemed to have prevented him from sub-letting his holding or any part thereof for a term not exceeding the duration of his disability;

(b) In the case of a sub-lease granted before the commencement of this Act the term of seven years shall for the purposes of this section be computed from the commencement of this Act.

Enhancement of rent.

Enhancement of rent.

Presumption as to fair and equitable rent.

39. The rent for the time being payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable until the contrary is proved. [D., § 42, B. B., s. 21 (d).] Section 59.

Restriction on enhancement of money rents.

40. Where an occupancy-raiyat pays his rent in money, his rent shall not be enhanced, except as provided by this Act. [B. B., s. 21 (d).] Section 60.

Enhancement of rent by registered contract.

41. (1) The money rent of an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by registered contract, subject to the following conditions:— Section 59 (1)

(a) The rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than four annas in the rupee the rent previously payable by the raiyat. Section 59 (2)

(b) The contract must fix the rent for a term of at least seven years.

(c) If the enhanced rent exceeds, by more than two annas in the rupee, the previous rent, the contract must fix the rent for a term of at least fifteen years.

(2) The registering officer shall, before registering a contract under this section, ascertain that the contract is in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and that the raiyat is competent and willing to enter into it, and understands its nature. Section 59.

Enhancement on re-letting.

42. (1) Where land which has been previously held by a tenant at a money-rent is let to a settled raiyat of the village or estate in which it is situate, the raiyat shall not be bound to pay for it any rent higher than that which was paid for it by the previous tenant, except in pursuance of a registered contract for enhancement of the rent. Section 61.

(2) The provisions of the last foregoing section shall apply to every such contract.

Enhancement of rent by suit.

43. The landlord of a holding held at a money-rent by an occupancy-raiyat may, subject to the provisions of this Act, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds, namely:— [D., § 43 (1) and (2). C. B., s. 22 (1), (3) and (4). B. B., s. 23 (1), (3) and (4).]

(a) That the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity. Section 78

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter V.—Occupancy-raiyats. Secs. 44—50.)

(b) That there has been a rise in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(c) That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord.

(d) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of prevailing rate.

44. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground that the rent paid is below the prevailing rate—

(a) The enhanced rent shall not exceed the previous rent by more than eight annas in the rupee.

(b) If in the opinion of the Court the prevailing rate of rent cannot be satisfactorily ascertained without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize by rule in that behalf.

V of 1872.

XII of 1879, s. 20.

(c) In determining under this section the rate of rent payable by a raiyat his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that by local custom caste is taken into account in determining the rate; and whenever it is found that by local custom any description of raiyats hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with that custom.

(d) In ascertaining the prevailing rate of rent the amount of any enhancement authorized on account of a landlord's improvement shall not be taken into consideration.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of rise in prices.

45. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of rise in prices—

(a) The Court shall have regard to the lists of prices periodically published under the authority of the Local Government, and shall compare the average prices during the quinquennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other quinquennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison.

(b) The Court shall not enhance the rent so that the enhanced rent exceeds the previous rent by more than four annas in the rupee.

(c) Subject as aforesaid, and subject also to section 48, the enhanced rent shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the average prices during the last quinquennial period bear to the average prices during the previous quinquennial period taken for purposes of comparison.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of landlord's improvement.

46. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a landlord's improvement—

(a) The Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with this Act.

(b) In determining the amount of enhancement the Court shall have regard to—

(i) the increase in the productive power of the land caused or likely to be caused by the improvement;

(ii) the cost of the improvement;

(iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and

(iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent.

(c) The Court may make its decree conditional, and subject to review and reconsideration in the event of the improvement not producing the estimated effect within a specified time.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of increase of productive powers due to fluvial action

47. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in productive powers due to fluvial action—

(a) The Court shall not take into account any increase which is merely temporary or casual.

(b) The enhanced rent shall not exceed the previous rent by more than four annas in the rupee.

(c) The Court may enhance the rent to such an amount as it may deem fair and equitable, but not so as to give the landlord more than one-half of the value of the net increase in the produce of the land.

Enhancement to be fair and equitable.

48. The Court shall not in any case decree any enhancement which appears under the circumstances of the case to be unfair or inequitable.

Power to order progressive enhancement.

49. If the Court passing a decree for enhancement considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent will be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached.

C.B., s. 23 (d). R. B. s. 24 (d)] Section 77.

Limitation of right to bring successive enhancement-suits.

50. (1) A suit instituted for the enhancement of the rent of a holding on the ground that the rent paid is below the prevailing rate, or on the ground of an increase in prices, shall not be entertained if within the fifteen years next preceding its institution the rent of the holding has been enhanced by a contract made after the second day of March, 1883, or if within the said period of fifteen years the rent has been commuted under section 53 or a decree has been passed under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act enhancing the rent on either of the grounds aforesaid or any ground corresponding thereto or dismissing the suit on the merits.

Reduction of rent.

Reduction of rent. [D., § 47. C. B., s 25 (2) and (3). B. B., s. 25 (2) & (3).] Section 79.

51. An occupancy-raiyat holding at a money-rent may institute a suit for the reduction of his rent on the following grounds, and, except as hereinafter provided in the case of a diminution of the area of the holding, not otherwise, namely—

Reduction of rent.

(a) on the ground that the soil of the holding has without the fault of the raiyat become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other like calamity, or

(b) on the ground that there has been a fall in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

Price-lists.

Price-lists. [C. B., 122 B.B., s. 145]. Section 83 (1).

52. (1) The Collector of every district shall prepare, at such time or times of the year as the local Government fixes in this behalf, lists of the market-prices at harvest-time of staple food crops grown in such local areas as the local Government may from time to time direct, and shall submit them to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

Price-lists of staple crops.

(2) The Collector may, if so directed by the Local Government, prepare for any local area like price-lists relating to such past times as the Local Government thinks fit, and shall submit the lists so prepared to the Board or Revenue for approval or revision.

Section 83 (2).

(3) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette.

Section 83 (3).

(4) Any such price-list so published shall, in any proceedings under this chapter, be conclusive evidence of the prices prevailing in the local area at the time to which it relates.

(5) The Collector shall, fifteen days before submitting a price-list to the Board of Revenue under this section, publish it within the local area to which it relates in the manner in which notices are usually published, and if any landlord or tenant of land within the local area within the said period of fifteen days presents to him in writing any objection to the list he shall submit the same to the Board of Revenue with the list.

Commutation.

Commutation. [C. B., s. 86. B. B. ss. 90 and 92.] Section 82 (1).

53. (1) Where an occupancy-raiyat pays rent for a holding in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or at rates varying with the crop, or partly in one of those ways and partly in another, either the raiyat or his landlord may apply to have the rent commuted to a money-rent.

Commutation of rent payable in kind.

(2) The application may be made to the Collector, or sub-divisional officer, or to an officer making a settlement of rents under Chapter X, or to any other officer specially authorized in this behalf by the Local Government.

(3) On the receipt of the application the officer may determine the sum to be paid as money-rent, and shall order that the raiyat shall, in lieu of paying his rent in kind, or otherwise as aforesaid, pay the sum so determined.

(4) In making the determination the officer shall have regard to— Section 82 (2).

(a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and

(b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years.

(6) If the application is opposed, the officer may, for reasons recorded in writing, refuse to grant it.

Power to make rules.

Power to make rules. [C. B., ss. 122 and 230. B. B. ss. 145 and 24 (c).] Section 84.

54. The Local Government may, from time to time, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, make rules—

Power to make rules.

(a) for the guidance of officers engaged in the preparation of price-lists under section 52;

(b) determining what food crops shall be deemed to be staple crops for the purposes of this chapter in any local area, and

(c) for the guidance of officers registering contracts under section 41 and section 42.

CHAPTER VI.

NON-OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

Section 88.

55. This chapter shall apply to raiyats not having a right of occupancy, who are in this Act referred to as non-occupancy-raiyats.

Application of chapter.

Section 89.

56. When a non-occupancy-raiyat is admitted to the occupation of land, he shall become liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between himself and his landlord at the time of his admission.

Initial rent of non-occupancy-raiyat.

57. The rent of a non-occupancy-raiyat shall not be enhanced except by registered agreement or by agreement under section 60.

B., ss. 72 (5)] tion 90

58. A non-occupancy raiyat shall be liable to ejectment on one or more of the following grounds, and not otherwise :—

Grounds on which non-occupancy raiyat may be ejected

(a) On the ground that he has failed to pay an arrear of rent.

(b) On the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

ion

59. A suit for ejectment on the ground of the expiration of the term of a lease shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of expiration of lease.

60. (1) A suit for ejectment on the ground of refusal to agree to an enhancement of rent shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat, unless the landlord has tendered to the raiyat an agreement to pay the enhanced rent, and the raiyat has within three months before the institution of the suit refused to execute the agreement.

Conditions of ejectment on ground of refusal to agree to enhancement.

(2) A landlord desiring to tender an agreement to a raiyat under this section may file it in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf for service on the raiyat. The Court or officer shall forthwith cause it to be served on the raiyat in the prescribed manner, and when it has been so served it shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to have been tendered.

(3) If a raiyat on whom an agreement has been served under sub-section (2) executes it, and within one month from the date of service files it in the office from which it issued, it shall take effect from the commencement of the agricultural year next following.

(4) When an agreement has been executed and filed by a raiyat under sub-section (3), the Court or officer in whose office it is so filed shall forthwith cause a notice of its being so executed and filed to be served on the landlord in the prescribed manner.

(5) If the raiyat does not execute the agreement and file it under sub-section (3) he shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have refused to execute it.

(6) If a raiyat refuses to execute an agreement tendered to him under this section, and the landlord thereupon institutes a suit to eject him, the Court shall determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding.

(7) If the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined he shall be entitled to remain in occupation of his holding at that rent for a term of five years from the date of the agreement, but on the expiration of that term shall be liable to ejectment under the conditions mentioned in the last foregoing section, unless he has acquired a right of occupancy. Section 93 (2).

(8) If the raiyat does not agree to pay the rent so determined the Court shall pass a decree for ejectment.

(9) In determining what rent is fair and equitable the Court shall have regard to the average rent payable by raiyats for land of a similar description and with like advantages in the vicinity, but shall not allow any enhancement exceeding eight annas per rupee of the previous rent. Section 93 (9).

(10) A decree for ejectment passed under this section shall take effect from the end of the agricultural year in which it is passed. Section 92 (9).

Explanation of "admitted to occupation".

61. Where a raiyat has been in occupation of land and a lease is executed with a view to a continuance of his occupation, he is not to be deemed to be admitted to occupation by that lease for the purposes of this chapter, notwithstanding that the lease may purport to admit him to occupation.

CHAPTER VII.

UNDER-RAIYATS.

Limit of rent recoverable from under-raiyats.

62. The landlord of an under-raiyat holding at a money rent shall not be entitled to recover rent exceeding the rent which he himself pays by more than the following percentage of the same, namely :—

(a) When the rent payable by the under-raiyat is payable under a registered lease or agreement—fifty per cent. ; and

(b) In any other case—twenty-five per cent.

Restriction on ejectment of under-raiyats.

63. An under-raiyat shall not be liable to be ejected by his landlord, except at the end of an agricultural year and after a written notice to quit has been served on him in the prescribed manner not less than six months before the expiration of that year.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO RENT.

Rules and presumptions as to amount of rent.

Rules and presumptions as to amount of rent.

64. (1) Where a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the rent or rate of rent shall not be liable to be increased except on the ground of an alteration in the area of the holding.

Rules and presumptions as to fixity of rent.

[D. §§ 20 & 37. C. B., ss. 6 & 16. B. B., ss. 6 & 15.] Section 14.

(2) If it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under this Act that a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement:

[D. §§ 21 & 38. C. B., ss. 6 & 17. B. B., ss. 6 & 16.] Section 15.

Provided that if it is required by or under any enactment that in any local area tenancies or any classes of tenancies at fixed rents or rates of rent shall be registered as such on or before a date specified by or under the enactment, the foregoing presumption shall not after that date apply to any tenancy or, as the case may be, to any tenancy of that class in that local area which has not been so registered.

[D. § 38. C. B., s. 16. Expl. I. B. B., s. 15. Expl. I.] Section 16.

(3) When a raiyat has paid as rent a fixed share or the value of a fixed share of the produce of the land, the rent or rate of rent shall not be deemed to have been changed within the meaning of this section merely by reason of the amount paid having varied from year to year, or by reason of the rent having been commuted with the consent of both the raiyat and his landlord to a fixed money rent.

[D. § 37. C. B., s. 16. Expl. II. B. B., s. 15. Expl. II.] Section 17.

(4) The operation of this section, so far as it relates to land held by a raiyat, shall not be affected by the fact of the land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding.

[D. § 20. C. B., s. 6. B. B., s. 6.] Section 19.

(5) Nothing in this section shall apply where the land is held for a term of years or the tenancy thereof is determinable at the will of the landlord.

Section 120.

65. If a question arises as to the amount of a tenant's rent or the conditions under which he holds in any agricultural year, he shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to hold at the same rent and under the same conditions as in the last preceding agricultural year.

Presumption as to amount of rent and conditions of holding.

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

Alteration of rent in respect of alteration in area.

66. (1) Every tenant shall—

(a) be liable to pay additional rent for all land proved by measurement to be in excess of the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, and

(b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any diminution of the area of his holding caused by diluvion or otherwise, unless it is proved that the land lost was added to the area of the holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

(2) In determining the amount to be added to the rent the Court shall have regard to the rates payable by tenants of the same class for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and, in the case of a tenure-holder, to the profits to which he is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure.

(3) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable as the diminution of the total yearly value of the holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the holding.

Payment of rent.

67. (1) A money-rent payable by a tenure-holder shall be paid in such instalments and on such dates as may have been agreed upon between the tenure-holder and his landlord; in the absence of agreement, in such instalments and on such dates as may be customary; and in the absence of any agreement or custom, in such instalments and on such dates as the Local Government may fix by rule for any local area.

(3) Any instalment or part of an instalment of rent not duly paid at or before the time when it falls due shall be deemed an arrear.

Appropriation of payments.

69. (1) When a tenant makes a payment on account of rent, he may declare the year or the year and instalment to which he wishes the payment to be credited, and the payment shall be credited accordingly.

(2) If he does not make any such declaration, the payment may be credited to the account of such year and instalment as the landlord thinks fit.

Receipts and accounts.

Tenant making payment to his landlord entitled to a receipt

70. (1) Every tenant who makes a payment on account of rent to his landlord shall be entitled to obtain forthwith from the landlord a written receipt for the amount paid by him, signed by the landlord.

(2) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterfoil of the receipt.

(3) The receipt and counterfoil shall specify the several particulars shown in the form of receipt given in Schedule III to this Act, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(4) If a receipt does not contain substantially the particulars required by this section, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

B, s. 51 , s 49 ion 191.

Tenant entitled to full discharge or statement of account at close of year.

71. (1) Where a landlord admits that all rent payable by a tenant to the end of the agricultural year has been paid, the tenant shall be entitled to receive from the landlord, free of charge, within three months after the end of the year, a receipt in full discharge, signed by the landlord.

(2) Where the landlord does not so admit, the tenant shall be entitled, on paying a fee of four annas, to receive within three months after the end of the year, a statement of account specifying the several particulars shown in the form of account given in Schedule III to this Act, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(3) The landlord shall prepare and retain a copy of the statement containing similar particulars.

Penalties and fine for withholding receipts and statements of accounts and failing to keep counterparts.

72. (1) If a landlord refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant a receipt containing the particulars prescribed by section 70 for any rent paid by the tenant, the tenant may, within six months from the date of payment, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty, not exceeding double the amount or value of that rent, as the Court thinks fit.

(2) If a landlord refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same the receipt in full discharge or the statement of account for any year prescribed in section 71, the tenant may, within the next ensuing agricultural year, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding double the aggregate amount or value of all rent paid by the tenant to the landlord during the year for which the receipt or account should have been delivered.

(3) If a landlord fails to prepare and retain a counterfoil or copy of a receipt or statement as required by either of the said sections, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Deposit of rent.

Application to deposit rent in public office.

Deposit of rent.

73. (1) In any of the following cases, namely:—

[D. s. C. B & B. B. & 91.] Section

(a) when a tenant tenders money on account of rent and the landlord refuses to receive it or refuses to grant a receipt for it;

(c) when the rent is payable to co-sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of the co-sharers for the money, and no person has been empowered to receive the rent in their behalf; or

(d) when the tenant entertains a bonâ fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent;

the tenant may present, to such officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf for the local area in which the holding is situate, an application in writing for permission to deposit in his office the full amount of the money then due.

74. (1) If it appears to the officer to whom an application is made under the last foregoing section that the applicant is entitled under that section to deposit the rent, he shall receive the rent and give a receipt for it under his official seal.

(2) The officer may, if he thinks fit, before receiving the rent, examine the person who has signed the statement required under the last foregoing section.

(3) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the rent had been received—in case (a) of the last foregoing section, by the person to whom the rent was tendered;

in case (b) of that section, by the person specified in the application as the person to whom the rent was payable;

in case (c) of that section, by the co-sharers jointly; and

(2) The payment may, if the Local Government so direct, be made by postal money-order.

(3) If no payment is made under this section before the expiration of three years from the date on which a deposit is made, the amount deposited may, in the absence of any order of a Civil Court to the contrary, be repaid to the depositor upon his application and on his returning the receipt given by the officer with whom the rent was deposited.

(4) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by an officer receiving a deposit under the foregoing sections; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

Ejectment from non-transferable holding for arrears.

78. (1) When an arrear of rent remains due in respect of a non-transferable holding at the end of the Bengali year where that year prevails, or at the end of the month of Jeyt where the Fusli or Amli year prevails, the landlord may, whether he has obtained a decree for the recovery of the arrear or not, and whether he is entitled by the terms of any contract to eject the tenant for arrears or not, institute a suit to eject the tenant.

(2) A decree passed in favour of the plaintiff in any such suit shall specify the amount of the arrear and of the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or, when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court re-opens.

(3) The Court may for special reasons extend the period of fifteen days mentioned in this section.

Order for appraising or dividing produce.

(a) if either the landlord or the tenant neglects to attend, either personally or by agent, at the proper time for making the appraisement or division, or

(b) if there is a dispute about the quantity, value or division of the produce,

the Collector may, on the application of either party, and on his depositing such sum on account of expenses as the Collector may require, make an order appointing such officer as he thinks fit to appraise or divide the produce.

(2) The Collector may, without such an application, make the like order in any case where in the opinion of the Magistrate of the District or Sub-division the making of the order would be likely to prevent a breach of the peace.

(3) Where a Collector makes an order under this section, he may by order prohibit the removal of the produce until the appraisement or division has been effected.

113.

82. (1) When a Collector appoints an officer under the last foregoing section, the Collector may, in his discretion, direct the officer to associate with himself any other persons as assessors, and may give him instructions regarding the number, qualifications and mode of selecting those assessors (if any), and the procedure to be followed in making the appraisement or division; and the officer shall conform to the instructions so given.

Procedure where officer appointed.

(3) When the officer has made the appraisement or division, he shall submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector. Section 115 (1).

(4) The Collector shall consider the report, and after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard and making such enquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass such order thereon as he thinks just. Section 115 (2).

(5) The Collector may, if he thinks fit, refer any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court, but, subject as aforesaid, his order shall be final and shall be enforceable as a decree.

(6) Where the officer makes an appraisement, the appraisement papers shall be filed in the Collector's office. [C. B., s. 85, B. B., s. 89.] Section 118.

83. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the produce.

Rights and liabilities as to possession of crop.

(2) Where rent is taken by division of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to exclusive possession of the whole produce until it is divided.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord, but shall not be entitled to remove any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

Liability for rent on change of landlord.

84. (1) A tenant shall not, when his landlord's interest is transferred, be liable to the transferee for rent which became due after the transfer and was paid to the landlord whose interest was so transferred, unless the transferee has given notice of the transfer to the tenant. Penalty for exaction by landlord from tenant of sum in excess of the rent payable.

86. Every tenant from whom, except under any special enactment for the time being in force, any sum of money or any portion of the produce of his land is exacted by his landlord in excess of the rent lawfully payable, may, within six months from the date of the exaction, institute a suit to recover from the landlord, in addition to the amount or value of what is so exacted, such sum by way of penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding five hundred rupees; or, when double the amount or value of what is so exacted exceeds five hundred rupees, not exceeding double that amount or value.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS AS TO LANDLORDS AND TENANTS.

Improvements.

Improvements

[C. B., s. 29. B. B., s 69.] Section 126.

Definition of improvement.

87. (1) For the purposes of this Act the term "improvement," used with reference to a raiyat's holding, shall mean any work which adds to the letting-value of the holding, which is suitable to the holding and consistent with the purpose for which it was let, and which, if not executed on the holding, is either executed directly for its benefit, or is, after execution, made directly beneficial to it.

(2) The following shall be presumed until the contrary is shown to be improvements within the meaning of this section:—

(a) the construction of wells, tanks and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for the purposes of agriculture, or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture;

(b) the preparation of land for irrigation;

(c) the drainage, reclamation from rivers or other waters, or protection from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water, of land used for agricultural purposes, or waste-land which is culturable;

(d) the reclamation, clearance, enclosure or permanent improvement of land for agricultural purposes;

(e) the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein, or additions thereto; and

(f) the erection of a suitable dwelling-house for the raiyat and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

(3) But no work executed by the raiyat of a holding shall be deemed to be an improvement for the purposes of this Act if it substantially diminishes the value of the estate or tenure of his landlord.

Right to make improvements in case of holding at fixed rates.

88. Where a raiyat holds at a fixed rent or a fixed rate of rent, his landlord shall not be entitled, as such, to prevent him from making any improvement in respect of his holding.

Right to make improvement in case of occupancy-holding.

[C. B., s 77 B. B., s 69 Section 127

89. (1) Where a raiyat has an occupancy-right in his holding neither the raiyat nor his landlord shall, as such, be entitled to prevent the other from making an improvement in respect of the holding, except on the ground that he is willing to make it himself.

(2) If both the raiyat and his landlord wish to make the same improvement, the raiyat shall have the prior right to make it, unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord.

(3) If a question arises between the raiyat and his landlord—

(a) as to the right to make an improvement, or

(b) as to whether a particular work is an improvement,

the Collector may, on the application of either party, decide the question, and his decision shall be final.

Right to make improvement in case of non occupancy holding.

[C. B., s B. B., s 69] Section 128

90. (1) A non-occupancy-raiyat shall be entitled to erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family, with all necessary out-offices; but shall not, except as aforesaid and as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make any other improvement in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission.

(2) A non-occupancy-raiyat who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

Registration of landlord's improvements.

91. (1) A landlord may register any improvement which he has lawfully made or which has been lawfully made at his expense or which he has assisted a tenant in making, by application to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may appoint.

(2) The application shall be in such form, shall contain such information, and shall be verified in such manner, by local inquiry or otherwise, as the Local Government by rule directs.

(3) The officer receiving the application may reject it if it has not been made within twelve months—

(a) in the case of improvements made before the commencement of this Act—from the commencement of this Act;

(b) in the case of improvements made after the commencement of this Act—from the date of the completion of the work.

Application to record evidence as to improvement.

92. (1) If any landlord or tenant of a holding desires that evidence relating to any improvement made in respect thereof be recorded, he may apply to a Revenue-officer, who shall thereupon record the evidence in the presence of the parties, unless he considers that there are no reasonable grounds for making the application, or it is made to appear that the subject-matter thereof is under inquiry in a Civil Court.

(2) When any matter has been recorded under this section, the record thereof shall be admissible in evidence in any subsequent proceedings between the landlord and tenant or any persons claiming under them.

B., ss 20 nd 29] on 129.

Compensation for raiyats' improvements.

93. (1) Every raiyat who is ejected from his holding shall be entitled to compensation for improvements which have been made in accordance with this Act by him, or by his predecessor in interest, and for which compensation has not already been made.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejectment of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat between the 2nd day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act.

tion 139.

(5) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under this section for an improvement, such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

Section 131.

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

94. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under the last foregoing section for an improvement, regard shall be had—

(a) to the amount by which the letting-value, or the produce, of the holding, or the value of that produce, is increased by the improvement;

(b) to the condition of the improvement, and the probable duration of its effects;

(c) to the labour and capital required for the making of such an improvement;

(d) to any reduction or remission of rent or any other advantage given by the landlord to the raiyat in consideration of the improvement; and

(e) in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land, to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the landlord and raiyat may, if they think fit, agree that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

Surrender and abandonment.

Surrender and abandonment.

Surrender.

95. (1) A raiyat not bound by a lease or other agreement for a fixed period may, at the end of any agricultural year, surrender his right and interest in the holding.

[D § 12 (3). C. B., s. 79 (3). B B., s 72 (3).]

(2) But, notwithstanding the surrender, the raiyat shall continue to be liable for the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender, unless he gives to his landlord, at least three months before he surrenders, notice of his intention to surrender.

Section 139.

(3) In the following cases the Court shall for the purposes of this section presume, until the contrary is shown, that such notice was so given, namely:—

(a) if the raiyat takes a new holding in the same village from the same landlord during the agricultural year next following the surrender;

(b) if the raiyat ceases, at least three months before the end of the agricultural year at the end of which the surrender is made, to reside in the village in which the surrendered holding is situate;

(c) if the landlord himself, at any time during the agricultural year next following the surrender, lets to another tenant or cultivates the holding or any part thereof.

(4) The raiyat may, if he thinks fit, cause the notice to be served through the Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate.

(5) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

[D. s. 12 (4). C.B., s. 79 (4) B B, s. 72 (4).] Section 140.

Abandonment.

96. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) When a landlord enters under this section he shall cause a notice in the prescribed form to be published in such manner as the Local Government by rule directs, stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and has entered on it accordingly.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy-raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured as to the Court may seem just.

Sub-division of holding.

Sub-division of holding. [B B, ss 21 (b), 37.] Section 150.

Portion of holding not transferable.

97. Nothing in this Act shall entitle a tenant whose holding is transferable to transfer or bequeath, without the consent of his landlord, a portion only of the land comprised in the holding so that it may be held from the landlord by the transferee or the person to whom it is bequeathed as a separate holding.

Ejectment.

Ejectment. [C. B., s. 79 (5), (6) & (7). B. B, s. 72 (5), (6) and (7).] Section 149.

No ejectment except in execution of decree.

98. No tenant shall be ejected from his holding except in execution of a decree.

Measurements.

Measurements. [D. § 58 C.B., s. 75. B. B., s. 67.] Section 133.

Landlord's right to measure land.

99. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section and any contract, a landlord may, by himself, or by any person authorized by him on this behalf, enter on and measure all land comprised in his estate or tenure.

(2) A landlord shall not, without the consent of the tenant, or the written permission of the Collector, be entitled to measure land more than once in ten years, except in the following cases:—

(a) Where the area of the holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area.

(b) Where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation.

(c) Where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

(3) The ten years shall be computed from the date of the last measurement, whether made before or after the commencement of this Act.

[D. s. 94 [B B, ss. & 177.] Sections and 135

Power for Court to order tenant to attend and point out boundaries.

100. (1) Where a landlord desires to measure any land which he is entitled to measure under the last foregoing section, the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, make an order requiring the tenant to attend and point out the boundaries of the land.

(2) If the tenant refuses or neglects to comply with the order, a map or other record of the boundaries and measurements of the land, prepared under the direction of the landlord at the time when the tenant was directed to attend, shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

[D. § 94. C B, s. 76 B.B., s. 68 (c).] Section 137.

Standard of measurement.

101. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue-officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made according to the Government measure of 14,400 square feet to one standard bíghá

(2) If the rights of the parties are regulated by any different local measure, the Government measure shall be converted into the local measure for the purposes of the suit.

[D. § 98. C. B., s. B.B., s. Section 1

(3) The Local Government may, after local enquiry, make rules declaring for any local area the standard or standards of measurement locally in use in that area, and every declaration so made shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Managers.

Manager [D § 16 C. B., s 56 B B., s 57 (1)] Section 142.

Power to call upon co-owners to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager.

(a) inconvenience to the public, or

(b) injury to private rights,

the District Judge may, on the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in the estate or tenure, direct a notice to be served on all the co-owners, calling on them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager:

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims, and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876.

(2) He shall give such security for the proper discharge of his duties as the District Judge directs.

(3) He shall, subject to the control of the District Judge, have, for the purposes of management, the same powers as the co-owners jointly might but for his appointment have exercised, and the co-owners shall not exercise any such power.

(4) He shall deal with and distribute the profits in accordance with the orders of the District Judge.

(5) He shall keep regular accounts, and allow the co-owners or any of them to inspect and take copies of those accounts.

(6) He shall pass his accounts at such period and in such form as the District Judge may direct.

(7) He may make any application which the proprietors could make under section 112.

(8) He shall be removeable by the order of the District Judge, and not otherwise.

[C.B., s 68. B B., s. 60.] Section 148.

Power to restore management to co-owners.

108. When an estate or tenure has been placed under the management of the Court of Wards, or a manager has been appointed for the same under section 104, the District Judge may at any time direct that the management of it be restored to the co-owners, if he is satisfied that the management will be conducted by them without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights.

Power to make rules.

109. The High Court may from time to time make rules defining the powers and duties of managers under the foregoing sections.

CHAPTER X.

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT OF RENTS.

Record-of-rights.

Record-of-rights Section 164.

Power to order preparation of record-of-rights.

110. (1) The Local Government may in any case with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and may, if it thinks fit, without such sanction in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that a record-of-rights shall be prepared for all tenancies or any class of tenancies in a local area by Revenue-officers to be from time to time appointed by the Local Government.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section without the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council are the following, namely :—

(a) where the landlord or a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants applies for such an order and deposits for the payment of expenses such amount as the Local Government directs ;

(b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally; and

(Chapter X.—Record-of-rights and Settlement of Rents. Secs. 111—117.)

(c) where the local area is comprised in an estate or tenure which belongs to or is managed by the Government or the Court of Wards.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

Section 164

111. Where an order is made under the last foregoing section the particulars to be recorded shall be specified in the order, and may include some or all of the following, namely :—

Particulars to be recorded.

(a) the name of each tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy raiyat or under-raiyat;

(c) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land held by him;

(d) the name of his landlord;

(e) the rent payable;

(f) the mode in which that rent has been fixed, whether by contract, by order of a Court or otherwise;

(g) if the rent is a gradually increasing rent, the time at which, and the steps by which, it increases;

(h) the special conditions, if any, under which the tenant holds.

112. On the application of a proprietor or tenure-holder, and on his depositing the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record the particulars specified in the last foregoing section with respect to the estate or tenure or any part thereof.

Power for Revenue-officer to record particulars on application of proprietor or tenure-holder.

Sections 157 to 159.

113. (1) When the Revenue-officer has completed the record he shall cause a draft thereof to be locally published in such manner and for such period as the Local Government by rule directs, and shall receive and consider any objection which may be made to any entry therein during the period of publication.

Publication of record.

(2) After the expiration of this period the Revenue-officer shall finally settle the record, and shall cause it to be locally published in such manner as the Local Government by rule directs, and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this Chapter.

114. If at any time before the final publication of the record under the last foregoing section a dispute arises as to the correctness of any entry which the Revenue-officer proposes to make or has made therein, the Revenue-officer shall hear and decide the dispute, and for that purpose shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government under this Act, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits, and his decision shall have the force of a decree.

Procedure in case of dispute as to entries in record.

XIV of 1882.

115. (1) The Local Government shall appoint one or more persons to be a Special Judge or Special Judges for the purpose of hearing appeals from the decisions of Revenue-officers under the last foregoing section.

Appeals from decisions of Revenue-officers.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Special Judge from the decision of a Revenue-officer under the last foregoing section, and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals shall, as nearly as may be, apply to all such appeals.

XIV of 1882

(3) Subject to the provisions of Chapter XLII of the Code of Civil Procedure, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the decision of a Special Judge as if he were a Court subordinate to the High Court within the meaning of the first section of that Chapter.

XIV of 1882

116. (1) Every record made under this Chapter shall distinguish between the disputed and the undisputed entries therein

Undisputed entries in record to be presumptive evidence.

(2) Every undisputed entry in the record shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

Section 165

Settlement of rents.

117. (1) The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that the rents of all tenants or of any class or classes of tenants in any local area shall be settled by Revenue-officers to be from time to time appointed by the Local Government in this behalf:

Settlement of rents

Power to order Revenue-officers to settle rents.

Section 151.

Provided that the Local Government shall not make such an order until it is satisfied after local enquiry that the making of the order would be expedient.

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section are the following, namely :—

(a) any case in which a Revenue-officer may be directed under this Chapter to prepare a record-of-rights, and

(b) where a settlement of revenue is being made in respect of the local area.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made, and an order so notified shall continue in force until it is rescinded by an order notified in like manner.

(4) While an order under this section continues in force in respect of any tenants, a Civil Court shall not entertain a suit under this Act for the enhancement or reduction of the rents of any of those tenants.

ion 15

Procedure for settlement of rents.

118. (1) When a Revenue-officer is directed under this Chapter to make a settlement of rents he shall ascertain and make a record of the particulars specified in section 111, and such other particulars, if any, as the Local Government may direct him to ascertain and record.

(2) If at any time before the rent-roll is finally published as hereinafter provided, a dispute arises as to the correctness of any entry which the officer has made or proposes to make in the record under sub-section (1), the provisions of sections 114 and 115 shall apply.

n 153.

(3) In the case of a tenure the rent of which is liable to alteration, or an occupancy-raiyat's holding, the officer shall, on the application of either landlord or tenant, settle a fair and equitable rent in respect thereof.

on 153

(4) For this purpose he shall presume, until the contrary is proved, that the existing rent is fair and equitable, and shall have regard to the rules laid down in this Act for the guidance of the Civil Court in settling rents.

(5). In all proceedings under sub-sections (3) and (4) the officer shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government under this Act, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure, and his decision in every such proceeding shall have the force of a decree.

of

(6). An appeal shall lie from every such decision to the Special Judge appointed under section 115, whose decision thereon shall be final, subject to this qualification, that if in a second appeal under sub-section (2) of this section the High Court alters the decision of the Special Judge in respect of any of the particulars with reference to which the rent of any holding has been settled, the Court may settle a new rent for the holding, but in so doing shall be guided by the rents of the other holdings of the same class comprised in the same rent-roll, as ascertained or settled under this section.

(7) When the Revenue-officer has recorded the particulars and settled the rents which he is required to record and settle, he shall prepare the draft of one or more rent-rolls, showing the particulars recorded by him, and, when he settles the rent, the amount of the rent as settled.

(8) Section 113 shall apply to every rent-roll made under this section as if it were a record within the meaning of that section, and section 116 shall apply to all entries made in any such rent-roll under sub-section (1) of this section.

Time at which alteration of rent is to take effect.

119. When any rent is altered under the last foregoing section, the alteration shall take effect from the beginning of the agricultural year next after the final publication of the rent-roll.

Period for which rents as settled are to remain unaltered.

120. When a landlord is entitled to apply to have the amount of the rent of a holding settled under section 118, sub-section (3), the rent of the holding as ascertained or settled under this chapter shall not be enhanced during a period of fifteen years from the date of the final publication of the rent-roll, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of an alteration in the area of the holding.

Supplemental.

Supplemental. Section 163.

Expenses of proceedings under Chapter

121. Where an order is made under this chapter on the application of a landlord, or of several landlords or tenants, or for the purpose of settling or averting a serious dispute between tenants and their landlords, all expenses incurred by the Government in carrying out the provisions of this chapter in any local area, including the salaries of all officers employed exclusively in carrying out those provisions therein, and such portions as the Local Government may, from time to time, fix of the salaries of officers employed in carrying out those provisions therein in addition to their other public duties, shall be defrayed by the landlords and tenants in that local area whose rents are ascertained or settled under this chapter, in such proportions as the Local Government, having regard to all the circumstances of each case, may determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable from him as if it were an arrear of revenue due by him.

Presumption as to fixity of rent not to apply where record has been prepared.

122. When the particulars mentioned in section 111, clause (b), have been recorded under this chapter in respect of any tenancy, the presumption under section 64 shall not thereafter apply to that tenancy.

CHAPTER XI.

TABLES OF RATES.

[B. B., ss. 131 & 132. Section 62.

Power to direct preparation of table

123. The Local Government may, by an order in the official Gazette, direct a Revenue-officer to take steps to prepare for any local area, with the aid of such assessors as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, a table showing for each class of land comprised in that area the rate of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats.

[B. B., s. 133. Section 63

Contents of table.

124. The table shall specify—

(a) the several classes of land for which, having regard to the nature of the soil, situation, means of irrigation and other like considerations, it is necessary to fix different rates of rent; and

(Chapter XI.—Tables of Rates. Secs. 125—134.)

[B.B., s. 133.] Section 64

(b) the rate of rent fairly and equitably payable by occupancy-raiyats holding land of each such class;

Principle on which rent-rates are to be fixed.

125. In fixing the rate of rent for any class of land under section 124 regard shall be had—

(a) to the rates of rent ordinarily payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of that class at the time when the table is prepared;

(b) to the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets about the time at which those rates were fixed, or, if that time or the average prices about that time cannot readily be ascertained, to the average prices about any other time which it may appear equitable and practicable to take for the purpose of comparison;

(c) to the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets at the time at which the table is prepared; and

[C. B., s. 23, (b). B. B., s. 24, (b).] (d) to the following rule, namely, that when the rate of rent for any class of land is raised on account of an increase in the average prices of staple food crops the new rate shall not bear to the old rate a higher proportion than the increased average prices bear to the former average prices:

[C. B., s. 23, (c). B. B., s. 24, (c).] Provided that the rate fixed for any class of land shall not exceed the existing rate by more than four annas in the rupee.

[B. B., s. 137.] Section 65.

Local publication of the table

126. When the Revenue-officer has prepared the table, he shall publish it in the local area to which it relates, in the vernacular language prevailing in that local area, in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

[B. B., s. 138.] Section 66

Revenue-officer to deal with objections.

127. Any person objecting to any entry in the table may present a petition to the Revenue-officer within a period of one month after the publication; and the Revenue-officer, with the aid of the assessors, shall consider any such objection, and may alter or amend the table.

[B. B., s. 139.] Section 67.

Table to be submitted to superior Revenue-authorities

128. If no objection is made within the said period of one month, or, where objections are made, after those objections have been disposed of, the Revenue-officer shall submit the table, together with his proceedings, a report setting forth the grounds of his decision on each point, and any petitions of objection which may have been received, through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board of Revenue for approval.

[B. B., s. 140.] Section 68

Proceedings of Board of Revenue thereupon.

129. The Board of Revenue may amend the table submitted under the last foregoing section in any manner which appears to it proper, and may allow in whole or in part any objection forwarded therewith or subsequently made, or may return the case for further enquiry.

[B. B., s. 141.] Section 69.

Publication of table after final sanction.

130. When a table of rates has been sanctioned by the Board, it shall be submitted to the Local Government, which, after considering such objections as may be submitted to it in writing, may amend the table in any manner it thinks fit, and may direct, if it thinks fit, that the table or amended table shall be published in the official Gazette with a specification of the local area to which it applies.

[B. B., s. 142.] Section 70.

Period for which table remains in force.

[B. B., s. 143. Section 71.

Table to be conclusive evidence.

132. The publication of a table under section 130 shall be conclusive evidence in any proceeding under this Act—

(1) that the proceedings for the preparation of the table have been duly conducted in accordance with this Act; and

(2) that, except as in this Act provided, the rates shown in the table for each class of land are the fair and equitable rates payable for land of that class by occupancy-raiyats within the local area to which the table applies.

Section 72.

Expenses incurred in preparing table how defrayed.

133. All expenses incurred by the Government in preparing a table of rates for any local area, including the salaries of all officers employed exclusively in its preparation, and such portions as the Local Government may from time to time fix of the salaries of officers employed in its preparation in addition to their other public duties, shall be defrayed by occupancy-raiyats and their landlords in that local area in such proportions as the Local Government may from time to time determine; and the proportion of those expenses so to be defrayed by any person shall be recoverable from him as if it were an arrear of land-revenue due by him.

[B. B., s. 144. Section 73.

Suit to enhance where table is in force.

134. When a table is in force under the foregoing sections for any local area, the landlord of any holding within that area, held by an occupancy-raiyat at a money rent, may institute a suit to enhance the rent then payable on the ground that it is below that which would be payable at the rates shown in the table; and the Court

(Chapter XII.—Records of Proprietor's Private Lands. Secs. 135—138.)

shall enhance the rent in accordance with the rates shown in the table: Provided that—

1st.—Where the rent of any land comprised in the holding would, by reason of a change having taken place in or in regard to the land since the raiyat or his predecessor in interest began to hold it, be fixed under this section at a higher rate, and would, but for that change, have been fixed under this section at a lower rate, the following rules shall apply, namely:—

(a) if the change has been effected solely by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the Court shall fix the rent of that land at the lower rate;

(b) if the change has been effected partly by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or his predecessor in interest, and partly by the agency or at the expense of the raiyat or his predecessor in interest, the Court shall fix the rent of the land at such rate intermediate between the higher rate and the lower rate as, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it thinks fair and equitable; and

(c) if it is not proved that the change has been effected by the agency or at the expense of the landlord or the raiyat, or the predecessor in interest of either of them, the Court shall fix the rent of the land at a rate equal to the lower rate, together with half the difference between the higher rate and the lower rate.

2ndly.—When the raiyat proves that by contract or by custom, or on some equitable ground, he is entitled to hold at a rate lower than the rate applicable under this section, the Court shall fix the rent at the lower rate.

3rdly.—Section 49 shall apply to all decrees for enhancement passed under this section, and section 50 shall apply to all suits for enhancement under this section as if they were suits for enhancement under Chapter V on the ground that the rent is below the prevailing rate or on the ground of an increase in prices.

Illustrations

(a) The rates shown in the table for land of a certain description are—

when the land is irrigated from a well . Rs 4 per acre,
when the land is not so irrigated . . Rs 2 „

The holdings of A, B, C and D, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description irrigated from wells constructed on those holdings respectively.

The well on A's holding is an ancient one existing from a time anterior to the tenancy: that on B's holding has been constructed by the landlord since the commencement of the tenancy: that on C's holding has been constructed by the raiyat: that on D's holding has been constructed by the landlord and raiyat, each contributing some portion of the labour and materials. The rents of the holdings of A and B must be fixed at Rs. 4 per acre, that of C's holding at Rs. 2 per acre, and that of D's holding at such rate intermediate between Rs. 2 and Rs. 4 as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

(b) The rates shown in the table for land of a certain description are as follows:—

when such land is irrigated from a branch of a river . . . . Rs. 4 per acre, when such land is not so irrigated . . Rs. 2 „

The holdings of E and F, occupancy-raiyats, are composed of land of that description, and were not irrigable until 40 years ago, when, owing to a change in the course of a neighbouring river, a new branch established itself contiguous to them. E has been in occupation of his holding 50 years, F only 30; the rent of E's holding must be fixed at Rs. 3, that of F's holding at Rs. 4.

CHAPTER XII.

RECORD OF PROPRIETOR'S PRIVATE LANDS.

Power for Government to order survey and record of proprietor's private lands.

135. The Local Government may, from time to time, make an order directing a Revenue-officer to make a survey and record of all the lands in a specified local area which are a proprietor's private lands within the meaning of section 30. [B B. ss. 76 to 82.] Sections 7 to 13

Power for Revenue-officer to record private land on application of proprietor or tenant.

136. In the case of any land alleged to be a proprietor's private land, on the application of the proprietor or of any tenant of the land, and on his depositing the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record whether the land is or is not a proprietor's private land.

Procedure for recording private land.

137. When a Revenue-officer proceeds under either of the two last foregoing sections, the provisions of sections 113, 114, 115 and 116 shall apply.

Rules for determination of proprietor's private land.

138. (1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land— [C. B., s 51. B B., ss. 3 & 75.] Section 5.

(a) Land which is proved to have been cultivated as khámár, zirat, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and

(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village custom as proprietor's khámár, zirat, sír, nij, nij-jot or kamat.

(2) In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land

(Chapter XIII.—Distraint. Secs. 139—142.)

the officer shall have regard to local custom and to the question whether the land was before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land; but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

(3) If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

CHAPTER XIII.

DISTRAINT.

[B. B., ss. 101, 104, 123.] Section 166

Cases in which an application for distraint may be made.

139. Where an arrear of rent is due to the landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat, and has not been due for more than a year, and no security has been accepted therefor by the landlord, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy to which he is entitled by law, present an application to the Civil Court requesting the Court to recover the arrear by distraining, while in the possession of the cultivator,

(a) any crops or other products of the earth standing or ungathered on the holding;

(b) any crops or other products of the earth which have been grown on the holding and have been reaped or gathered and are deposited on the holding, or on a threshing-floor or place for treading out grain, or the like, whether in the fields or within a homestead:

Provided that an application shall not be made under this section—

VII (B. C.) of 1876.

(1) by a proprietor or manager as defined under the Land Registration Act, 1876, or a mortgagee of such a proprietor or manager, unless his name and the extent of his interest in the land in respect of which the arrear is due have been registered under the provisions of that Act; or

(2) for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the holding in the preceding agricultural year, unless that sum is payable under a written contract or in consequence of a proceeding under this Act or an enactment hereby repealed; or

[B. B., ss. 71, 125.]

(3) in respect of the produce of any part of the holding which the tenant has sub-let with the written consent of the landlord.

[B. B., ss. 104-5.] Section 167.

Form of application.

140. (1) Every application under the last foregoing section shall specify—

(a) the holding in respect of which the arrear is claimed, and the boundaries thereof, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification;

(b) the name of the tenant;

(c) the period in respect of which the arrear is claimed;

(e) the nature and approximate value of the produce to be distrained;

(f) the place where it is to be found, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification; and

(g) if it is standing or ungathered, the time at which it is likely to be cut or gathered.

(2) The application shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the signing and verification of plaints; and, if the application so verified contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, that person shall be subject to punishment according to the provisions of the law for the time being in force for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence.

[B. B., ss. 105 & 106] Section 16

Procedure on receipt of application.

141. (1) The applicant shall, at the time of filing an application under the foregoing sections, file in Court such documentary evidence (if any) as he may consider necessary for the purposes of the application.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, examine the applicant, and shall, with as little delay as possible, admit the application or reject it, or permit the applicant to furnish additional evidence in support of it.

(3) Where a Court cannot forthwith admit or reject an application under sub-section (2), it may, if it thinks fit, make an order prohibiting the removal of the produce specified in the application pending the execution of an order for distraining the same or the rejection of the application.

(4) When an order for distraining any produce is made under this section at a considerable time before the produce is likely to be cut or gathered, the Court may suspend the execution of the order for such time as it thinks fit, and may if it thinks fit make a further order prohibiting the removal of the produce pending the execution of the order for distraint.

[B. B. Section 1

Execution of order of distraint

142. If an application is admitted under the last foregoing section, the Court shall depute an officer to distrain the produce specified therein, or such portion of that produce as it thinks fit; and the officer shall proceed to the place where the produce is, and distrain the produce by

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIII.—Distraint. Secs. 143—152.)

taking charge of it himself or placing some other person in charge of it in his behalf, and publishing a notification of the distraint in accordance with rules to that effect to be made by the High Court:

111.] Provided that produce which from its nature does not admit of being stored shall not be distrained under this section at any time less than twenty days before the time when it would be fit for reaping or gathering.

[08.] 70

143. (1) The distraining officer shall, at the time of making the distraint, serve on the defaulter a written demand for the arrear due, and the costs incurred in making the distraint, with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the distraint is made.

Service of demand and account.

(2) Where the distraining officer has reason to believe that a person other than the defaulter is the owner of the property distrained, he shall serve copies of the demand and account on that person likewise.

(3) The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally; but if a person on whom they are to be served absconds or conceals himself, or cannot otherwise be found, the officer shall affix copies of the demand and account on the outer door of the house in which he usually resides.

B., ss. 109 & 110] n 171

144. (1) A distraint under this chapter shall not prevent any person from reaping, gathering or storing any produce, or doing any other act necessary for its due preservation.

Right to reap, &c., produce.

(2) If the person entitled to do so fails to do so at the proper time, the distraining officer shall cause any standing crops or ungathered products distrained to be reaped or gathered when ripe, and stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used for the purpose, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood, or shall do whatever else may be necessary for the due preservation of the same.

(3) In either case the distrained property shall remain in the charge of the distraining officer, or of some other person appointed by him in this behalf.

. 113] n 172.

145. (1) Unless the demand, with all costs of the distraint, be immediately satisfied, the distraining officer shall issue a proclamation specifying the particulars of the property distrained and the demand for which it is distrained, and notifying that he will, at a place and on a specified day, not being less than three or more than seven days after the time of making the distraint, sell the distrained property by public auction:

Sale proclamation to be issued unless demand is satisfied.

Provided that when the crops or products distrained from their nature admit of being stored but have not yet been stored, the day of the sale shall be so fixed as to admit of their being made ready for storing before its arrival.

(2) The proclamation shall be stuck up on a conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate for which the arrears of rent are claimed.

[B B., s 114] Section 173.

146. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort, if the distraining officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

Place of sale.

[D., s. 111.] Section 174

147. (1) Crops or products which from their nature admit of being stored shall not be sold before they are reaped or gathered and are ready for storing.

When produce may be sold standing.

(2) Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, and the purchaser shall be entitled to enter on the land by himself, or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and do all that is necessary for the purpose of tending and reaping or gathering them.

[B.B., s. 115.] Section 175.

148. The property shall be sold by public auction in one or more lots, as the officer holding the sale may think advisable; and if the demand, with the costs of distraint and sale, is satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distraint shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Manner of sale.

[B. B., s. 116.] Section 176.

149. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorised to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day, or (if a market is held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until that day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Postponement of sale.

[B B., s. 117.] Section 177.

150. The price of every lot shall be paid at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold.

Payment of purchase-money

[B. B., s. 118.] Section 178

151. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Certificate to be given to purchaser.

[B B., s 119.] Section 179.

152. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay the costs of the distraint and sale, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made by the Local Government in this behalf.

(2) The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale; and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose property has been sold.

[B. B., s 120.] Section 180.

153. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

Certain officers may not purchase.

[B B, ss. 111, 112 & 123.] Section 181.

154. (1) If at any time after a distraint has been made under this chapter, and before the sale of the distrained property, the defaulter, or the owner of the distrained property where he is not the defaulter, deposits in the Court issuing the order of distraint, or in the hands of the distraining officer, the amount specified in the demand served under section 143, with all costs which may have been incurred after the service of the demand, the Court or officer, as the case may be, shall grant a receipt for the same and the distraint shall forthwith be withdrawn.

Procedure where demand is paid before the sale

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay it into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section, the Court shall pay therefrom to the applicant for distraint the amount due to him, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the property distrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

(5) A landlord shall not be deemed to have consented to his tenant's sub-letting the holding or any part thereof merely by reason of his having received an amount deposited under this section by an inferior tenant.

[B. B., s. 124.] Section 182.

155. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under the last foregoing section, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

Amount paid by under-tenant for his lessor may be deducted from rent.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under the last foregoing section to institute a suit for the recovery from the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

[B.B., s. 1 Section 18

156. When land is sub-let, and any conflict arises under this chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

Section

157. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail; but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid to the owner of the property under section 152 without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

Distraint of property which is under attachment.

158. No appeal shall lie from any order passed by a Civil Court under this chapter; but any person whose property is distrained on an application made under section 140 in any case in which such an application is not permitted by section 139 may institute a suit against the applicant for the recovery of compensation.

Suit for compensation for wrongful distraint.

CHAPTER XIV.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE.

159. (1) The High Court may, from time to time, with the approval of the Local Government, make rules declaring that any portions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to suits between landlord and tenant as such or to any specified classes of such suits, or shall apply to them subject to modifications specified in the rules.

Power to modify Civil Procedure Code in application to landlord and tenant suits.

XIV of 1882

(2) Subject to any rules so made, and subject also to the other provisions of this Act, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to all such suits.

XIV of 1882

160. (1) The cause of action in all suits between landlord and tenant as such shall, for the purposes of the Code of Civil Procedure, be deemed to have arisen within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the recovery of the land in respect of which the relation of landlord and tenant exists, between the parties.

Section 1

Jurisdiction in proceedings under Act.

XIV of 1882

(2) When under this Act a Civil Court is authorized to make an order on the application of a landlord or a tenant, the application shall

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIV.—Judicial Procedure. Secs. 161—168.)

be made to the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the recovery of possession of the holding.

Náibs or gumáshtas to be recognized agents.

161. Every náib or gumáshta of a landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord shall, for the purposes of every such suit, be deemed to be the recognized agent of the landlord within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure, notwithstanding that the landlord may reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is to be instituted or is pending.

Special register of suits.

162. The particulars referred to in section 58 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in the case of such suits, instead of being entered in the register of civil suits prescribed by that section, be entered in a special register to be kept by each Civil Court, in such form as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe in this behalf.

Procedure in rent-suits.

163. The following rules shall apply to suits for the recovery of rent:—

(a) Sections 121 to 127 (both inclusive), 129, 305, and 320 to 325C (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any such suit.

(b) The plaint shall contain, in addition to the particulars specified in section 50 of the Code of Civil Procedure, a statement of the situation, designation, extent, and boundaries of the land held by the tenant; or, where the plaintiff is unable to give the extent or boundaries, in lieu thereof a description sufficient for identification.

(c) The summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit, unless the Court is of opinion that the summons should be for the settlement of issues only.

(d) The service of the summons may, if the Court so directs, be effected, either in addition to or in substitution for any other mode of service, by forwarding the summons by post in a letter addressed to the defendant and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866.

(e) A written statement shall not be filed without the leave of the Court.

(f) The rules for recording the evidence of witnesses prescribed by section 189 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply, whether an appeal is allowed or not.

(g) The Court may, when passing the decree, order on the oral application of the decree-holder the execution thereof, unless it is a decree for ejectment for arrears.

(h) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him. XIV of 1882. [C. B., s 198. B B., s 220.] Section 200.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to third person.

164. (1) When a defendant admits that money is due from him on account of rent, but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due. Section 199

(2) Where such a payment is made the Court shall forthwith cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person.

(3) Unless the third person within three months from the receipt of the notice institutes a suit against the plaintiff and therein obtains an order restraining payment out of the money, it shall be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to recover from the plaintiff, money paid to him under sub-section (3).

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to landlord.

165. When a defendant admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff on account of rent, but pleads that the amount claimed is in excess of the amount due, the Court shall, except for special reasons to be recorded in writing, refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Provision as to payment by instalments.

166. When a defendant is liable to pay money into Court under either of the last foregoing sections, if the Court thinks that there are sufficient reasons for ordering that the money be paid by instalments, it may take cognizance of the defendant's plea on his paying into Court such instalment as the Court directs.

Court to grant receipt.

167. When a defendant pays money into Court under either of the said sections, the Court shall give the defendant a receipt, and the receipt so given shall operate as an acquittance in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had been given by the plaintiff or the third person as the case may be. Section 199 (3).

Appeals in rent-suits.

168. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal, in any suit instituted by a landlord for the recovery of rent where— [D., § 178 C.B., ss. 157 & 220 B B., ss 173 & 242.] Section 198.

(a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XIV.—Judicial Procedure. Secs. 169—172.)

(b) the decree or order is passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise final jurisdiction under this section, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed fifty rupees;

unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant:

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, if it appears that the judicial officer has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or has acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity; and may pass such order as the District Judge thinks fit.

[C B., ss 96 & 98 (b) B B., ss 128 & 130, cl. (b)] Section 201

Date from which decree for enhancement takes effect.

169. A decree for enhancement of rent under this Act, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of an agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next following; and, if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next but one following; but nothing in this section shall prevent the Court from fixing for special reasons a later date from which any such decree shall take effect.

[B R., ss 21 (a), 31, 44 & 45 Vic, C 41, s. 14] Section 202

Relief against forfeitures.

170. (1) A suit for the ejectment of a tenant, on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and the landlord, liable to ejectment, shall not be entertained unless the landlord has requested the tenant, where the damage or breach is capable of remedy, to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the damage or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the damage or breach, and whether, in the opinion of the Court, the damage or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the damage or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

(3) The Court may, from time to time, for special reasons, extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2).

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the damage or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the damage or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

Rights of ejected raiyats in respect of crops and land prepared for sowing.

[C B., s 80 B. B., s 73. Section 203

171. The following rules shall apply in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding:—

(a) When the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment.

(b) When the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectment, together with reasonable interest on that value.

(c) But a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section where, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage.

(d) If the landlord elects under this section to allow a raiyat to retain possession of the land, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectment may deem reasonable.

Section 205

Adjustment of mutual claims in ejectment-proceedings.

172. (1) In all suits and proceedings for ejectment, the Court shall inquire into and determine all claims under this Act by the landlord against the tenant as such, or by the tenant against the landlord as such.

Section 206

(2) If it appears to the Court that the amount payable by the landlord to the tenant as such exceeds the amount payable by the tenant to the landlord as such, the decree or order for ejectment (if any) shall, unless the landlord and tenant come to an arrangement regarding the payment of the excess sum, specify a time within which it must be paid into Court.

(Chapter XV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree. Secs. 175—179.)

(3) If it is so paid within the time specified, the Court shall eject the tenant; and if it is not so paid, the Court shall refuse to eject the tenant.

Power for Court to fix fair rent as alternative to ejectment.

173. When a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser he may, if he thinks fit, claim as alternative relief that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court, and the Court may grant such relief accordingly.

Application to determine incidents of tenancy.

174. (1) The Court having jurisdiction to determine a suit for the recovery of land held by a tenant may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant, determine all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land held by the tenant;

(b) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy-raiyat, or under raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether his rent is liable to enhancement; and

(c) the rent payable by him at the time of the application.

of 2.

(2) If in the opinion of the Court any of these matters cannot be satisfactorily determined without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government by rule directs.

(3) The order on any application under this section shall have the effect of and be subject to the like appeal as a decree.

CHAPTER XV.

SALE FOR ARREARS UNDER DECREE.

General powers of purchaser as to avoidance of incumbrances.

175. Where a transferable holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, the purchaser shall take subject to the interests defined in this chapter as 'protected interests' but with power to annul the interests defined in this chapter as 'incumbrances.'

Provided as follows:—

(a) a registered and notified incumbrance within the meaning of this chapter shall not be so annulled except in the case hereinafter mentioned in that behalf;

(b) the power to annul shall be exercisable only in manner by this chapter directed.

Protected interests.

176. The following shall be deemed to be protected interests within the meaning of this Chapter— [D §§ 12 (11) and 155. C. B., ss. 226, Expl., & 210, B. B., ss 228. Expl., & 232] Section 208 (1).

(a) any under-tenure existing from the time of the permanent settlement;

(b) any under-tenure recognized by the settlement proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement;

(c) any lease of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals, places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made;

(d) any right of occupancy;

(e) any right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; and

(f) any right or interest which the landlord at whose instance the holding is sold, or his predecessor in title, has expressly and in writing given the tenant for the time being permission to create.

Meaning of "incumbrance" and "registered and notified incumbrance".

177. For the purposes of this Chapter—

(a) the term "incumbrance" used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created by the tenant on his holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a protected interest as defined in the last foregoing section. Section 208, (1).

(b) The term "registered and notified incumbrance" used with reference to a holding sold or liable to sale in execution of a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect thereof, means an incumbrance created by an instrument registered under the Indian Registration Act, 1877, and of which a copy has, not less than three months before the accrual of the arrear, been served on the landlord in manner hereinafter provided. [C. B., s. 206 Expl. B. B., s. 228 Expl.] Section 208 (2). III of 1877.

Application for sale of holding.

178. When a decree has been passed for an arrear of rent due for a transferable holding, and the decree-holder applies under section 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure for the attachment and sale of the holding in execution of the decree, he shall produce a statement of the annual rent of the holding, and, if the holding is a permanent tenure, a copy of so much of the register kept under Chapter III of this Act as relates to the tenure. [C. B., s. 201. B. B., s. 223 Section 209. XIV of 1882.

Proclamation announcing sale.

179. (1) When an order has been passed for the sale of a holding upon an application made under the last foregoing section, [D. § 153. C. B., s. 203. B. B., s. 225.] Section 210

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree. Secs. 180—186.)

the proclamation made under section 287 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in addition to stating and specifying the particulars mentioned in that section, announce—

XIV of 1882.

(a) in the case of a tenure, that the tenure will first be put up to auction subject to the registered and notified incumbrances and will be sold subject to those incumbrances if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, and that otherwise it will, if the decree-holder so desires, be sold on a subsequent day, of which due notice will be given, with power to annul all incumbrances; and

(b) in the case of an occupancy-holding, that the holding will be sold with power to annul all incumbrances.

(2) The proclamation shall, besides being made in the manner prescribed by section 289 of the said Code, be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf.

[C B., s 206. B B., s 228(a) and Expl.] Section 211

Sale of tenure subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and effect thereof.

180. (1) When a tenure has been advertised for sale under the last foregoing section, it shall be put up to auction, subject to registered and notified incumbrances; and, if the bidding reaches a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, including the costs of sale, the tenure shall be sold subject to such incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may in manner provided by section 184, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance upon the tenure not being a registered and notified incumbrance.

[C B., s. 207. B B., s 229(a) Section 212 (1)

Sale of tenure with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

181. (1) If the bidding for a tenure put up to auction under the last foregoing section does not reach a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs as aforesaid, and if the decree-holder thereupon desires that the tenure be sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, the officer holding the sale shall adjourn the sale and make a fresh proclamation under section 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, announcing that the tenure will be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances upon a future day specified therein, not less than fifteen or more than thirty days from the date of the postponement; and upon that day the tenure shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

XIV of 1882.

[D., § 156 C. B., s. 210. B B., s. 232.] Section 212 (9)

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 184, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the tenure.

Application of foregoing provisions to holdings at fixed rates.

182. The foregoing sections shall apply to a holding at a fixed rent or rate of rent as if it were a tenure

[D., s. 2 (b).] Section 211

Sale of occupancy-holding with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

183. (1) When an occupancy-holding has been advertised for sale under section 179, it shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may in manner provided by section 184, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the holding.

Section 211

Procedure for annulling incumbrances under the foregoing sections.

184. (1) A purchaser having power to annul an incumbrance under any of the foregoing sections and desiring to annul the same, may, within one year from the date on which he first has notice of the incumbrance, present to the Collector an application in writing, requesting him to serve on the incumbrancer a notice declaring that the incumbrance is annulled.

(2) Every such application must be accompanied by such fee for the service of the notice as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf.

(3) When an application for a service of a notice is made to the Collector in manner prescribed by this section, he shall cause the notice to be served in compliance therewith, and the incumbrance shall be deemed to be annulled from the date on which it is so served.

[B B., s 23 (c).] Section 211

Power to direct that occupancy-holdings be dealt with under foregoing sections as tenures.

185. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that occupancy-holdings or any specified class of occupancy-holdings in any local area put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent due on them shall, before being put up with power to avoid all incumbrances, be put up subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and may by like notification rescind any such direction.

(2) While any such direction remains in force in respect of any local area, all occupancy-holdings, or, as the case may be, occupancy-holdings of the specified class in that local area, shall, for the purposes of sale under the foregoing sections of this chapter, be treated in all respects as if they were tenures.

[D § 246 C B., s 211 B B., s 23 Section 21

Rules for disposal of the sale-proceeds.

186. (1) In disposing of the proceeds of a sale under this chapter, the following rules, instead of those prescribed by section 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be observed, that is to say:—

XIV of 1882.

(a) There shall first be paid to the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the holding to sale.

(b) There shall, in the next place, be paid to the decree-holder the amount due to him under the decree in execution of which the sale was made.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XV.—Sale for Arrears under Decree. Secs. 187—193.)

(Chapter XVI.—Summary Sale for Arrears. Sec. 194.)

(c) If there remains a balance after these sums have been paid, there shall be paid to the decree-holder therefrom any rent which may have fallen due to him in respect of the holding between the institution of the suit and the date of the sale, but not more than six months after the date of the final decree.

(d) The balance (if any) remaining after the payment of the rent mentioned in clause (c) shall, upon the expiration of two months from the confirmation of the sale, be paid to the judgment-debtor upon his application.

(2) If the judgment-debtor disputes the decree-holder's right to receive any sum on account of rent under clause (c), the Court shall determine the dispute, and the determination shall have the force of a decree.

XIV of 1882. s., § 153. B., s 204. B., s. 226.] ection 217.

Holding to be released from attachment only on payment into Court of amount of decree with costs, or on confession of satisfaction by decree-holder.

187. (1) Sections 278 to 283 (both inclusive) of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.

(2) When an order for the sale of a holding in execution of such a decree has been made, the holding shall not be released from attachment unless, before it is knocked down to the auction-purchaser, the amount of the decree, including the costs decreed, together with the costs incurred in order to the sale, is paid into Court, or the decree-holder makes an application for the release of the holding on the ground that the decree has been satisfied out of Court.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to institute a suit to set aside the sale of a holding under this Chapter.

D., §§ 35, 36, 154. C. B., s. 205. B. B., s. 227.] Section 218.

Amount paid into Court to prevent sale to be in certain cases a mortgage-debt on the holding.

188. (1) When any person having, in a holding advertized for sale under this chapter, an interest which would be voidable upon the sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale,

(a) the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt bearing interest at twelve per cent. per annum and secured by a mortgage of the holding to him;

(b) his mortgage shall take priority of every other charge on the holding other than a charge for arrear of rent; and

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled.

[D., §§ 35, 36, 154. C. B., s. 205. B. B., s. 227.] Section 219.

Inferior tenant paying into Court may deduct from rent.

189. When a holding is advertised for sale under this chapter in execution of a decree against a superior tenant defaulting, and an inferior tenant, whose interest would be voidable upon the sale, pays money into Court in order to prevent the sale, he may, in addition to any other remedy provided for him by law, deduct the whole or any portion of the amount so paid from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord; and, that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, may in like manner deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

Decree-holder may bid at sale; judgment-debtor may not.

190. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the holder of a decree in execution of which a holding is sold under this chapter may, without the permission of the Court, bid for or purchase the holding. XIV of 1882. [C. B., s. 208 (1). B. B., s. 230 (1).] Section 220.

(2) The judgment-debtor shall not bid for or purchase a holding so sold.

Operation of sections 313 and 326 of Code of Civil Procedure excluded.

191. Sections 313 and 326 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sale under this Chapter. XIV of 1882. Section 221.

Registration of certain instruments creating incumbrances.

192. Notwithstanding anything contained in Part IV of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, an instrument creating an incumbrance upon any transferable holding which has been executed before the commencement of this Act, and is not required by section 17 of the said Registration Act to be registered, shall be accepted for registration under that Act if it is presented for that purpose to the proper officer within one year from the commencement of this Act. Section 222. III of 1877.

Notification of incumbrances to landlord.

193. Every officer who has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, registered an instrument executed by a tenant of a transferable holding and creating an incumbrance on the holding, shall, at the request of the tenant or of the person in whose favour the incumbrance is created, and on payment by him of such fee as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, notify the incumbrance to the landlord by causing a copy of the instrument to be served on him in the manner prescribed in Part VII of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, for the service of summons. [C. B., s. 206, Expl. B. B., s. 2. Expl.] Section 223. III of 1877.

CHAPTER XVI.

SUMMARY SALE FOR ARREARS.

Sale of patní tenures.

Right of proprietor to recover arrears from patnídár by summary sale.

194. If default is made in payment of the rent due in respect of a patní tenure held immediately from a proprietor, the proprietor Sale of patni tenures. [D., § 135. C. B., s. 133. B. B., s. 147.] Section 43.

(Chapter XVI.—Summary Sale for Arrears. Secs. 195—200.)

may, in addition to any other remedy given him by law, apply for the summary sale of the tenure in accordance with the rules contained in the following sections of this Chapter.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 8, cl (2) Schedule III.

Application for sale at beginning of year.

195. (1) On the first day of Baisákh, that is, at the commencement of the following year from that for which the rent is due, the proprietor may present a petition to the Collector, containing a specification of any balances that may be due to him on account of the expired year, in respect of all or any of the tenures described in the last foregoing section.

(2) The petition shall then be stuck up in some conspicuous part of the Collector's office, with a notice that if the amount claimed is not paid before the first of Jeth following, the tenures of the defaulters will on that day be sold by public sale in liquidation.

(3) The proprietor shall cause a similar notice to be stuck up at his own sadr kachari and a copy or extract of such part of the notice as applies to the individual case to be sent and similarly published at the kachari at which the principal business of the tenure is transacted, or at the principal town or village on the land of the defaulter's tenure.

(4) The proprietor shall be exclusively answerable for the observance of the forms prescribed by this section.

Service of notice.

196. (1) The notice required to be sent into the mufassal shall be served by a single peon, who shall bring back the receipt of the defaulter, or of his manager, for the same; or, in the event of inability to procure this, the signatures of three substantial persons residing in the neighbourhood, in attestation of the notice having been brought and published on the spot.

(2) If the people of the village object or refuse to sign their names in attestation, the peon shall go to the office of the nearest munsif, or, if there should be no munsif, to the nearest police-station, and there make voluntary oath of the same having been duly published. A certificate to this effect shall be signed and sealed by the said officers and delivered to the peon.

(3) If it appears from the tenor of the receipt or attestation in question that the notice has been published at any time previous to the fifteenth day of the month of Baisákh, it shall be a sufficient warrant for the sale to proceed upon the day appointed.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 8, cl. (3). Schedule III.

Application for sale in middle of year.

197. On the first day of Kártik, in the middle of the year, the proprietor may present a similar petition, with a statement of any balances that may be due on account of the rent of the current year, up to the end of the month of Asin, and to cause similar publication to be made of a sale of the tenures of defaulters, to take place on the first day of Aghan, unless the whole of the advertised balance is paid before the date in question, or so much of it as will reduce the arrear, including any intermediate demand for the month of Kártik, to less than one-fourth or a four-anna proportion of the total demand of the proprietor, according to the kistbandí, calculated from the commencement of the year to the last day of Kártik.

Proceedings when tenure holder contests demand.

198. (1) When a notice has been issued under the foregoing sections in respect of an arrear alleged to be due by a tenure-holder, the tenure-holder may, at any time before the day fixed therein for the sale of the tenure, present to the Collector a petition contesting the demand wholly or in part.

(2) The Collector on receiving a petition under sub-section (1) shall issue a summons to the proprietor requiring him to appear at a time and place specified therein, and show cause why the sale should not be stayed or the amount of the demand reduced, as the case may be, and shall, if practicable, hear the parties or such of them as appear, and determine the issues between them before the time fixed for the sale.

(3) If before the time fixed for the sale the Collector decides that no part of the arrear claimed is due, he shall dismiss the proprietor's application.

(4) If before that time he decides that any part of the arrear claimed is not due he shall reduce the demand accordingly, and his decision shall for the purposes of the proceedings under this chapter be conclusive.

(5) In cases not provided for by sub-sections (3) and (4) the tenure-holder's petition shall be dismissed, but such dismissal shall not affect his right to institute a suit to set aside the sale.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819 s. 14.

Tenure to be sold unless arrear deposited.

199. Except as provided by the last foregoing section, a tenure in respect of which a notice has been issued under the foregoing sections shall be sold on the day fixed by the notice unless before sunset of the previous day the amount of the demand, or, when that amount has been reduced under the last foregoing section, the reduced amount has been deposited in the Collector's office by the defaulter or some other person for payment to the landlord.

Bengal Regulation, VIII of 1819 s. 10. Schedule III.

Forms to be observed in case of sale.

200. (1) At the time of the sale, the notice previously stuck up in the kacharí shall be taken down, and the lots be called up successively in the order in which they may be found in the notice.

(2) A person shall attend on the part of the proprietor with a particular statement of the payments made up to the day of sale, on account of the balance of each advertised lot, with the receipt for, or certificate of, the notice directed to be published in the mufassal.

(3) No lot shall be put up to sale until the statement produced has been inspected, and the existence of a balance for the year ascertained therefrom, nor until the receipt for the notice has been read. The observance of these forms shall be recorded in a separate rubakari to be held upon each lot sold.

(4) If the sale is under a petition presented on the first day of Kártik the Kistbandí of the defaulter shall likewise be produced, in order that it may be seen that the balance remaining unpaid exceeds a four-anna proportion of the demand up to the date of sale; and the sale shall not take place unless this is ascertained.

(7) The proprietor shall be exclusively responsible for the correctness and authenticity of the papers to be thus exhibited, and the officer making the sale shall not be answerable in any respect, except for its fairness and publicity, and for the observance of the rules prescribed for his guidance in this Chapter.

Regu- VIII of 9. le III.

Mode of conducting sale.

201. (1) All sales of tenures under this Chapter shall be made in public kachari.

(2) The land shall be sold to the highest bidder, and every one except the defaulter shall be free to bid.

(3) Fifteen per cent. of the purchase-money shall be paid immediately the lot is knocked down.

(4) The officer conducting the sale may refuse to accept a bid, or to knock down a lot to any bidder, unless he has assurance to his satisfaction that the amount required to be deposited is in hand for the purpose, or will be produced within two hours.

(5) If the fifteen per cent. is not paid in cash within two hours of the sale, or an equivalent amount in Government securities is not lodged, the lot shall be resold on the same day.

(6) If the remainder of the purchase-money is not paid by noon of the eighth day, notice shall be given of resale on the following day, that is, on the ninth from the first sale, by proclaiming the same by beat of drum through the bázár of the sadr station of the district.

(7) The lot shall then be resold at the appointed time at the risk of the first purchaser, who shall forfeit the advance of fifteen per cent. already made, and be further answerable for any sum in which the proceeds of the second sale may fall short of the antecedent sale; such deficiency to be levied by the process for the execution of decrees of the Civil Courts.

(8) The forfeited deposit shall be applied to defray the expenses of the sale, and the surplus shall be credited to Government.

Title of purchaser.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 15. Schedule III.

202. (1) When the entire amount ofthe purchase-money has been paid in by the purchaser of a tenure under this chapter, the Collector shall grant him a certificate of the payment.

(2) Thereupon the purchaser shall acquire the tenure with power to avoid, in manner prescribed by section 184 for the avoidance of incumbrances, all liens, sub-tenancies, easements and other rights or interests created on the tenure by the tenure-holder or any of his predecessors in interest or any person claiming under him or them, except—

(a) a right of occupancy;

(b) a right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred; or

(c) any right or interest created under a power expressly conferred by the written instrument by which the tenure was created.

Purchaser to be put in possession.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 15. Schedule III.

203. When the purchaser of a tenure under this chapter has obtained a certificate in respect of the same under the last foregoing section, and the transfer of the tenure to him has been registered under Chapter III, he may apply to the Collector to put him in possession of the tenure, and the Collector shall thereupon put him in possession of the same, and for this purpose shall exercise all the powers conferred by the Code of Civil Procedure on a Civil Court giving possession to a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree.

XIV of 1882.

Recovery of money deposited by person interested to stay sale.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 13. Schedule III.

204. When any person having in a tenure advertized for sale under this chapter an interest which would be voidable upon such sale deposits in the Collector's office the amount requisite under section 199 to prevent the sale, the provisions of section 188 shall apply, and if the person is a tenant inferior to the tenure-holder the the provisions of section 189 shall also apply, as if the tenure was a holding advertized for sale under Chapter XV, and the payment had been made into Court to prevent the sale.

Suit to set aside sale.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s. 14. Schedule III.

205. (1) Any person aggrieved by a sale of a tenure effected under cover of the provisions of this chapter but not warranted by those provisions may institute a suit against the proprietor, at whose instance the sale was effected, to set aside the sale and recover compensation for the damage caused to him thereby.

(2) The purchaser of the tenure shall be made a party to the suit, and shall, if the sale is set aside, be entitled to recover in the suit from the proprietor compensation for the damage (if any) suffered by him.

Bengal Tenancy Bill.

(Chapter XVII.—Contract and Custom. Secs. 210—213.)

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s 17, cls. (5) and (6). Schedule III.

Suit for compensation by person whose interest becomes voidable in consequence of sale.

206. When a tenure has been sold under this chapter, any person having an interest therein which is under section 202 voidable by the purchaser may, within two months from the date of the sale, institute a suit against the defaulter to recover compensation for the damage caused to him by the sale:

Provided that no such suit shall be maintainable by any tenant inferior to the defaulter if at the time of the sale any arrear of rent was due from him.

Bengal Regulation VIII of 1819, s 17. Schedule III.

Disposals of proceeds of sales.

207. (1) The proceeds of a sale under this chapter shall be dealt with as follows, namely:—

(a) One per cent. shall first be deducted from the proceeds, and shall be carried to the account of the Government, for the purpose of meeting the expense of any extra establishments which it may be necessary to maintain for carrying into effect the provisions of this chapter.

(b) The arrear on account of which the sale may have been made (with interest and all charges incurred in bringing the tenure to sale) shall next be paid to the landlord.

(c) The balance (if any) remaining after the payments prescribed by clauses (a) and (b) shall be forthwith sent by the officer conducting the sale to the Treasury of the Collector, to be there retained in deposit to answer the claims of persons who may obtain decrees for compensation under section 206, until the expiration of two months from the date of the sale, and if within that period any suits are instituted under that section, until all such suits have been finally decided.

(d) The balance retained under clause (c) shall be applied in the first instance to the payment of the amounts of the decrees (if any) passed against the defaulter under section 206, being distributed rateably among the decree-holders according to the amounts of those decrees, when it is insufficient to discharge those amounts in full.

(e) The residue (if any) of the said balance shall be payable to the defaulter.

(2) Any person interested in money deposited under clause (c) may withdraw the whole or any part thereof, on substituting Government securities, bearing interest, in lieu of the money so held in deposit; such securities to be taken at the rate of discount or premium of the day, as shown by the Government Gazette last received.

Provision as to Sundays and holidays.

208 When any day specified in this chapter is a Sunday or holiday anything required or authorized under this chapter to be done on that day may be done on the next following day not being a Sunday or holiday.

Sale of other tenures.

Modified application of Chapter to other registered tenures.

209. If provision is made by law for the registration in a public register of any tenures other than those saleable under the foregoing sections of this chapter, those sections shall, subject to such modifications as the Local Government from time to time by rule prescribes, apply to the tenures so registered.

Sale of other tenures.

CHAPTER XVII.

CONTRACT AND CUSTOM.

Provisions to take effect notwithstanding contract.

210. The provisions of this Act in respect of the following matters shall take effect notwithstanding any contract to the contrary:—

(a) The acquisition of the status of a settled raiyat and of the occupancy-right (sections 24, 25 and 26).

(b) The incidents of the occupancy-right specified in section 31.

(c) The right of an occupancy-raiyat to demand a reduction of rent under section 51.

(d) The right of either landlord or tenant to demand a commutation of a produce rent under section 53.

(e) The protection afforded by the Act to a non-occupancy-raiyat and an under raiyat from ejectment except on specified grounds (sections 58, 59, 60 and 63).

(f) The right of a tenant to a reduction of rent on account of the diminution of the area of his holding (section 66).

(g) The right of the raiyat to make improvements and claim compensation for them (sections 88, 89, 90 and 93).

(h) The protection afforded to all tenants against ejectment except in execution of a decree (section 98).

Permanent mukarrari leases.

211. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a landlord in a permanently-settled area from granting a permanent mukarrari lease an any terms agreed on between him and his tenant.

Contracts for reclamation.

212. Nothing in this Act shall affect any contract for the reclamation of waste land.

Chur and dearah lands.

213 (1) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, a raiyat holding land of the kind known as chur or dearah, that is to say, land ordinarily liable to improvement or deterioration by fluvial action, shall not acquire a right of occupancy in the land until he has held the land for twelve continuous years; and, until he acquires a right of occupancy in the land, shall be liable to pay such rent for his holding as may be agreed on between him and his landlord.

(2) But the Court may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant, declare that any land has ceased to be chur or dearah land within the meaning of this section, and thereupon all the provisions of this Act shall apply to the land.

Utbundi and hal-hasili systems.

214. Nothing in this Act shall affect the conditions, customary or otherwise, under which land is held on either of the systems known as the "utbundi" system and the "hal-hasili" system.

Section 226.

Saving as to service-tenures.

215. Nothing in this Act shall affect any incident of a ghátwálí or other service-tenure, or, in particular, shall confer a right to transfer or bequeath a service-tenure which, before the passing of this Act, was not capable of being transferred or bequeathed.

Section 85.

Homesteads.

216. When a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the incidents of his tenancy of the homestead shall be regulated by local custom.

Saving of custom.

217. Nothing in this Act shall affect any custom or customary right not inconsistent with, or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, its provisions.

CHAPTER XIX.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Penalties.

Penalties for illegal interference with produce.

[B. B., ss 91, 122.]

220. (1) If any person, otherwise than in accordance with this Act or some other enactment for the time being in force,

(a) distrains or attempts to distrain the produce of a tenant's holding, or

(b) resists a distraint duly made under this Act, or forcibly or clandestinely removes any property duly distrained under this Act, or

(c) except with the authority or consent of the tenant, prevents or attempts to prevent the reaping, gathering, storing, removing or otherwise dealing with any produce of a holding,

he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

XLV of 1860

(2) Any person who abets within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code the doing of any act mentioned in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have abetted the commission of criminal trespass within the meaning of that Code.

Agents and representatives of landlords.

Agents and representatives of landlords. Section 223.

Power for landlord to act through agent.

221. (1) Any appearance, application or act, in, before or to any Court or authority, required or authorized by this Act to be made or done by a landlord, may, unless the Court or authority otherwise directs, be made or done also by an agent of the landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord.

(2) Every notice required by this Act to be served on, or given to, a landlord shall, if served on, or given to, an agent of the landlord empowered as aforesaid to accept service of or receive the same, be as effectual for the purposes of this Act as if it had been served on, or given to, the landlord in person.

(3) Every document required by this Act to be signed or certified by a landlord, except an instrument appointing or authorizing an agent, may be signed or certified by an agent of the landlord authorized in writing in that behalf.

Joint-landlords to act collectively or by common agent.

222. Where two or more persons are joint-landlords, anything which the landlord is under this Act required or authorized to do must be done either by both or all those persons acting together, or by an agent authorized to act on behalf of both or all of them.

Powers of Revenue-officers.

Powers of Revenue-officers. Section 227.

223. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the procedure to be followed by Revenue-officers in the discharge of any duty imposed upon them by or under this Act, and may by such rules confer upon any such officer—

Power to make rules regarding procedure and powers of officers.

(a) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits;

(b) power to enter upon any land, and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same; and

(c) power to cut and thresh the crops on any land and weigh the produce, with a view to estimating the capabilities of the soil.

Rules.

Rules Section 228.

224. (1) Every authority having power to make rules under any section of this Act shall, before making the rules, publish a draft of the proposed rules for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

Procedure for making, publication and confirmation of rules.

(2) The publication shall be made, in the case of rules made by the Local Government or High Court, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, and in the case of rules made by any other authority, in the prescribed manner: Provided that every such draft shall be published in the official Gazette.

(3) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date, not earlier than the expiration of one month after the date of publication, at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration.

SCHEDULE II.

(See Section 3 (16).)

Extract from Preamble to Regulation VIII of 1819.

"In the exercise of the privilege * * * conceded to zamíndárs under direct engagements with Government, there has been created a tenure which had its origin on the estates of the Rájá of Bardwán, but has since been extended to other zamíndáris; the character of which tenure is, that it is a taluq created by the zamíndár, to be held at a rent fixed in perpetuity, by the lessee and his heirs for ever; the tenant is called upon to furnish collateral security for the rent, and for his conduct generally, or he is excused from this obligation at the zamíndár's discretion; but even if the original tenant be excused, still, in case of sale for arrears, or other operation leading to the introduction of another tenant, such new incumbent has always in practice been liable to be so called upon at the option of the zamíndár.

"By the terms also of the engagements interchanged, it is, amongst other stipulations, provided that, in case of an arrear occurring, the tenure may be brought to sale by the zamíndár, and if the sale do not yield a sufficient amount to make good the balance of rent at the time due, the remaining property of the defaulter shall be further answerable for the demand.

"These tenures have usually been denominated patní taluqs, and it has been a common practice of the holders of them to underlet on precisely similar terms to other persons who, on taking such leases, went by the name of darpatní taluqdárs: these, again, sometimes similarly underlet to be patnídárs; and the conditions of all the title-deeds vary in nothing material from the original engagements executed by the first holder."

Dissent.

I DISSENT from the report of the majority of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill.

The Committee commenced their sittings from the 21st November, 1883, and concluded their labours on the 13th March, 1884. They first met twice a week, and the members were required to give forty-eight hours' notice of amendments to be moved by them. From the 26th January the Committee resolved to sit thrice a week from 2 P. M. to 5-30 P.M.; and notices of amendments were required to be sent in to the Secretary the day before the meeting; and the amendments were circulated on the morning of the meeting. The new arrangement was proposed owing to the amount of work which remained undone, and also owing to the near approach of the Simla season; but I cannot refrain from remarking that, apart from personal inconvenience which it necessarily involved, it left the members scant time, scarcely ten hours, for the preparation of amendments, and six hours for their study, even if one gave his whole time to this work. I considered it my duty to protest against the arrangement, as it was neither fair to the individual members of the Committee, particularly to one in my position, being deprived of the opportunity of consulting those whose views I was understood to represent, nor to the momentous interests involved, but my protest was of no avail. The Committee certainly gave their best attention under the circumstances mentioned to the matters before them, and, as far as I was concerned, shewed me the utmost courtesy and consideration, but there was an unavoidable haste in disposing of momentous questions at the last moment, which could not but be regretted.

I wish the Rules of the Council had permitted the Committee to examine witnesses on practical questions connected with the Bill. The Committee, I doubt not, felt the necessity of this power. At the suggestion of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor the Committee in an informal way examined some experienced zamíndárs on the subject of sub-letting.

The Bill has undergone material alterations at the hands of the Committee, but its cardinal principles remain unchanged. In some respects the position of the zamíndárs has been made worse than what it was in the original Bill. On some minor points even-handed justice has been done to both the zamíndár and the raiyat. The middle-man of course gains much more than what he has under the existing law, but the bonâ-fide cultivator, in whose behalf the greatest anxiety was evinced in the Committee, will, I fear, be practically worse off than he is at present. I do not now wish to discuss the whole Bill, and will not therefore enter into details on these points.

My objections to the Bill have been principally based on these grounds, firstly, because it goes against the ancient and existing land-law of the country, taking away on the one hand and conferring on the other rights which are inconsistent with that law; secondly, because it assumes a construction of the Regulations, which is opposed to judicial decisions, and takes for granted statements and facts not supported by evidence; thirdly, because it does not fulfil the primary object for which it was originally sought, namely, the simplification of the procedure for the settlement and realization of rent; fourthly, because it is calculated to sow dispute and dissension between the landlord and the tenant and flood the land with litigation to the detriment of the peace and welfare of the agricultural community; fifthly, because it will tend to reduce a large proportion of cultivating raiyats into agricultural day-labourers; and sixthly, because, by abolishing the freedom of contract between the landlord and the tenant, and by making the Court and the Revenue-officer the referee and arbiter in all matters of zamíndárí management and raiyatí action, it will neutralize the vital principle of self-reliance in the agricultural population and destroy its backbone, hamper the free operation of economic laws, and stereotype the patriarchal phase of Government with the aggravating evil of litigation at almost every step. These objections, which I took when the Bill was introduced last year, have not, I am sorry to say, been removed by the alterations made by the Select Committee.

In specifying my objections to the Bill I do not propose to discuss it chapter by chapter or to traverse all its details. I propose to confine myself to the leading principles of the Bill and a few principal details.

Tenure-holders.

IN addition to the present class of persons who are recognised as tenure-holders, two other classes have been introduced, namely, (1) occupancy-raiyats who may sub-let more than half their holdings (section 37), and (2) raiyats, the area of whose holdings may exceed 100 standard bighás, the whole or part of which is sub-let; in this case the tenant will be presumed to be a tenure-holder unless the contrary is shown (section 5, sub-section 5). In the case of the first-mentioned person, who is called a converted tenure-holder, all the incidents of the status of a tenure-holder will hold good except his liability to enhancement of rent. A tenant of the last-mentioned class will be entitled to all the rights and privileges of a tenure-holder. With regard to the first, I cannot understand with what justice is an occupancy-raiyat exempted from his obligations under the Bill as to pre-emption and distraint, and the zamíndár in so far placed in a worse position, because the occupancy-raiyat chooses to sub-let more than half his holding. The conversion of an occupancy-raiyat of a holding, the area of which exceeds 100 bighás, into a tenure-holder, is, in my opinion, still more arbitrary. The status of a tenure-holder carries certain privileges, which the occupancy-raiyat does not possess, and for which, generally, a valuable consideration is paid to the zamíndár. For instance, a tenure is not, unfrequently, a permanent holding, heritable and transferable according to conditions of contract, and, under the present Bill, will enjoy favoured rates of rent and will be exempt from the rules of pre-emption and distraint. Surely, it cannot be contended that the conversion of the hundred-bighá jotedar into a tenure-holder under an edict of the legislature is consistent with the ancient or existing land-law of the country. In so far, it is a direct encroachment upon the rights of the proprietary class.

Then as to enhancement of rent of tenure-holders, section 8 of Regulation V of 1812 contained the following rule as to the rate at which auction-purchasers might collect:—"In the case of a dependant taluqdár, if the rent of the lands be computed according to the rates payable by raiyats or cultivators for land of a similar quality and description, a deduction shall be allowed from the gross rent in the adjustment of the jama of such dependant taluq at the rate of 10 per cent., for the taluqdár's profit or income, over and above a reasonable allowance for charges of collection according to the extent of the taluq." This section was repealed by Act X of 1859, which, however, contains no rule as to the grounds or limits of enhancement of the rent of tenure-holders and under-tenure-holders. But under case-law the rent may be enhanced up to the limit of the prevailing rate payable by the holders of similar tenures in the neighbourhood, or where no such prevailing rate is easily ascertainable, up to such a limit as shall not exceed 10 per centum of the collections after deducting the expenses of collection (vide Field's Digest). This case-law has been embodied in the present Bill, but with wide variations. For instance "customary rate" has been substituted for "prevailing rate", though the former is less easily ascertainable than the latter. Under the case-law the margin left to the tenure-holder as profit was not to exceed 10 per cent. of the collections, but under the Bill it is to be not less than 10 per cent. of the balance which may remain after deducting, not from the collections, which I take to be actual collections, but from the gross rents, not only the expenses but also "risks of collection". I may observe, I am not aware of any revenue-law under which an allowance is made for "risks of collection". Even the zamíndárs are not allowed any percentage for sums irrecoverable from raiyats on account of the Public Works and Road Cesses, though the liability is not their own, and though they collect the money for Government without any remuneration. It will be thus seen in what advantageous position is the tenure-holder placed under the present Bill compared with his position under the existing law. But this is not all. Under the existing law the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to be enhanced to any reasonable amount, but under the Bill the enhanced rent is not to be more than double the previous rent; under the existing law the enhanced rent is to be paid at once, but under the Bill the Court may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual and payable in five years; under the existing law there is no limit of period as to enhancement of rent, but under the Bill the period is limited to ten years. I allude to the last three provisions to show that while so little consideration has been shown to the zamíndár, who is the proprietor of the land, and who is responsible for Government revenue under the stern sun-set law, so much tenderness has been shown to the tenure-holder who is generally looked upon as an idle factor. Surely this is not the way to discourage sub-letting.

Raiyats at fixed rates.

FOR the first time a legal presumption was introduced by Act X of 1859 to the effect that if the rent of a raiyat had not been changed for a period of twenty years before the commencement of a suit, it shall be presumed that the land has been held at that rent from the date of the Permanent Settlement. Whatever the necessity of such a provision at the time of passing Act X of 1859, that necessity, it cannot be denied, no longer exists. The raiyats have advanced in intelligence and independence, and the practice of granting printed rent-receipts has become common in many parts of the country. They do not, therefore, now stand in need of the same measure of protection against enhancement which was considered necessary in 1859. On the contrary, the effect of this provision has been disastrous to the zamíndár. The Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds drew attention to this point in his memorandum on the Bill of the Rent Commission. He quoted several opinions showing that the law has thrown "an unfair burden of proof upon the zamíndár", and that "it bears very hardly upon auction-purchasers who are often unable to get possession of the zamíndárí papers of their predecessors". This, Mr. Reynolds observes, is forcibly represented by the Collector of Purniyá, who believes that "there is hardly an estate in the whole of Bengal in which the value of the proprietary right has not suffered from this presumption". Without entirely abolishing the presumption Mr. Reynolds recommended that its operation should be confined to cases in which uniform payment could be proved for twenty years before the period when the presumption was first introduced into the law. He proposed a further concession in favour of auction-purchasers by providing that the presumption shall not be pleaded against them. In making these recommendations Mr. Reynolds remarked, "In determining the principle upon which the Legislature should act it would seem that the main point to be considered is the practical effect of the presumption which was introduced into the Act of 1859". Has this presumption generally operated to defeat an unjust claim on the part of the landlord, or to maintain the tenant in a status to which he was not rightfully entitled? It is believed that to this question there can be only one answer. In the great majority of the cases in which the presumption has been successfully pleaded, it has had the effect of conferring upon tenants, whose holdings really originated subsequently to 1793, a privilege which was intended to be confined to those who had held from the date of the Permanent Settlement. If this is really the case, it does not seem inequitable that the rule should be modified in the manner which has now been suggested.

Mr. Reynolds, I am sorry to say, has since changed his opinion, but the validity and justice of his opinion remain all the same. Relying upon it, I moved the amendment of the law to the effect originally proposed by Mr. Reynolds, but neither my motion nor a very much modified proposal to allow the twenty years to count from before the date of the passing of the present Bill was accepted by the majority of the Committee. The Bill thus describes the incidents of holding at fixed rates;

Section 23.—A raiyat holding at a fixed rent or rate of rent—

(a) shall be subject to the same provisions with respect to the transfer of, and succession to, his holding as a tenure-holder, and

(b) shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Coupling this provision with the twenty years' presumption referred to I cannot resist the conviction that it will tempt raiyats, whether entitled to the presumption or not, to declare themselves to be raiyats at fixed rates, and thus defraud the zamíndár of his just rights, who, if he be strong enough to assert them, must go through an expensive and harassing process of litigation to do so.

The intention of the Legislature in introducing this law of presumption was to protect raiyats holding from the date of the Permanent Settlement from arbitrary enhancement of rent by unscrupulous zamíndárs, but the continuance of this provision will, I fear, have the effect of converting by a side-wind every occupancy-raiyat into a mukarrarídár or permanent tenure-holder. The consequence of this provision to good and bad zamíndárs is also striking. Where a zamíndár from a dislike of litigation, forbearance, or sympathy, has not enhanced the rent of a raiyat for more than twenty years, the raiyat, who has been careful enough to preserve his rent-receipts, will easily prove his case, while a zamíndár, who has shewn no such consideration or leniency, who has not scrupled to trouble and harass the raiyat with periodic enhancement, will necessarily have a decided advantage. The result will be that the good zamíndár will suffer and the bad zamíndár will gain.

Occupancy-raiyats.

THE occupancy-raiyat of the modern time is notoriously a creature of Act X of 1859, but I do not wish to revive the controversy on the subject. The twelve years' rule has been in existence for more than a quarter of a century, and it cannot be fair or just to disturb it now. The only fault found with the present law on the subject is that if a zamíndár were so disposed he could defeat the growth of the occupancy-right by shifting the raiyat from field to field. This practice, it is admitted, is not known in Bengal. But the Secretary of State, whilst strongly expressing himself in favour of the present twelve years' rule of continuous possession, has recommended the following modification. He would provide that "every resident raiyat shall have a right of occupancy in the land which he occupies and pays rent for, and that a resident-raiyat shall be one who, or whose ancestor, has occupied any land in the village or estate for twelve years." I do not at all subscribe to the equitableness of this provision. I do not think that it is fair or just that a squatter, because allowed to hold land in one part of an estate for twelve years, should, ipso facto, be entitled to hold land in all other parts of the estate as an occupancy or privileged raiyat. If in any part of the country the zamíndár has sought to nullify the growth of occupancy-right by shifting the raiyat from one plot of land to another, he has, it cannot be denied, acted within the law, and it would be as unreasonable to suppose that he has acted wrongly as to suppose that a tradesman is wrong in suing his debtor before the time, which would, under the law of limitation, bar his claim. As for preventing shifting, if it should be deemed absolutely necessary, I would have preferred to punish such an act by imposing a heavy penalty. But the Committee ruled, that the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India having finally decided the question, they were not competent to re-open it, but I cannot help remarking that the Committee have gone further than the area covered by the Secretary of State's decision. The original Bill contained the following provisions regarding the acquisition of the status of a settled raiyat:—

Section 45.—Every person who, for a period of twelve years, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held, as a raiyat, raiyatí land situate in any village or estate, shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, and though the land so held by him at different times during that period may have been different, be deemed to become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village or estate.

Again:

Section 47.—Every settled raiyat of a village or estate holding after the second day of March, 1883, as a raiyat, any raiyatí land comprised in that village or estate shall, notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, be deemed to acquire or have acquired in that land a right of occupancy under the law for the time being in force.

At the instance of the Bengal Government the Committee have greatly extended the theory of the settled raiyat and created a new legal presumtion in his favour. Thus:

Section 25.—(1) Every settled raiyat of a village or estate shall have a right of occupancy in all land held by him as a raiyat in that village or estate;

(2) Every person who, being a settled raiyat of a village or estate, held land as a raiyat in that village or estate at any time between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in that land under the law then in force.

Section 26.—(1) Every person who, for a period of twelve years, whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held as a raiyat land situate in any village or estate, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village or estate;

(2) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed for the purposes of this section until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years held the land or some part of it as a raiyat.

(3) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held land continuously in a village or estate, notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times.

(4) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held as a raiyat any land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

(5) Land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyatí holding shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been held as a raiyat by each such co-sharer.

(6) A person shall continue to be a settled raiyat of a village or estate as long as he holds any land as a raiyat in that village or estate and for one year thereafter.

(7) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 96, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat, notwithstanding his having been out of possession for more than a year.

These provisions, I submit, are wholly outside the decision of the Secretary of State. That authority would in no case reduce the period of occupation from twelve years as provided in section 25, sub-section (2), nor did he recommend any legal presumption that every raiyat shall be considered a settled raiyat with right of occupancy unless proved to the contrary. The Secretary of State, it would be observed, would recognise a "resident raiyat" as an occupancy-raiyat, but the provisions quoted above do not recognise residence as a condition of accrual of occupancy-right. In the second place, the Secretary of State does not refer to possession by two or more co-sharers as a proof of occupancy-right derived by each such co-sharer. In the third place, he does not say that, even if a settled raiyat leaves his holding and pays no rent, he shall be considered a settled raiyat "for one year thereafter". On the contrary, he declares payment of rent as an inalienable condition of the right. And lastly, the Secretary of State no where says that if a raiyat once abandons a holding and afterwards recovers possession by payment of compensation, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his being out of possession for more than a year. All these proposals, I repeat, are outside the sanction of the Secretary of State, and, as a matter of course, are so many encroachments upon the proprietary rights of the zamíndár.

It is observable that while a person holding land as a raiyat shall not be prevented from acquiring an occupancy-right in the land by reason that he is jointly interested in the land as proprietor or tenure-holder, and a person, though an ijárdár or farmer, shall not lose his right of occupancy in any land which he may subsequently hold in farm, it is declared that if the landlord acquires an occupancy-holding, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist (section 28). On what principle is this right denied to the landlord and conceded to the tenure-holder, who may be a permanent holder, and to the farmer, is not clear to me. It does seem strange and incomprehensible that the zamíndár alone shall not be allowed to enjoy the ordinary rights of a purchaser, simply because he happens to be a zamíndár.

On this point I venture to draw attention to the following remarks of Mr. H. L. Dampier, Senior Member of the Board of Revenue, deservedly regarded as a high fiscal authority in Bengal. He says: "It will be open to the whole world, with one exception only, to acquire by purchase or otherwise and to continue to hold certain rights described as occupancy-rights in a given piece of land. Such rights may be acquired and held by distant non-agricultural capitalists; by the zamíndárs of estates adjoining that within which the land lies; by the zamíndárs, resident or absentee, of the estate itself, if the land is included in a tenure; by any non-resident-holders of tenures, whether in the estate itself or in any other estate; by the very holders of tenures above the lowest under-tenure which includes the land. The one person who is debarred from holding this right, even if he acquires it by purchase from the person in whom it last vested, is 'the landlord', that is, by the definition the 'person or number of persons immediately under whom a tenant holds'; or, according to the proposal made by the Lieutenant-Governor towards the end of paragraph 14, the 'proprietor or permanent tenure-holder immediately under whom the raiyat holds'". The justice of these remarks is so evident that I need say nothing by way of comment.

Transfer of occupancy-holding and pre-emption.

THE question of transferability of the occupancy-holding has been discussed threadbare. I will not therefore repeat the arguments against it, which are already so well known. Suffice it to say that the measure will be equally injurious both to the zamíndárs and the raiyats; the former will have a valuable right unjustly taken away from them and be exposed to the intrusion of hostile persons into their estates, and the latter, under their peculiar circumstances, will, at no distant time, be reduced to the status of day-labourers by being sold out of their holdings, on which they depend for their subsistence. Neither under the Permanent Settlement Regulations nor under Act X of 1859 is an occupancy-holding transferable. When the question of the transferability of the occupancy-holding was first proposed by the Government of Bengal, the Government of India expressed its disapproval of it. The British Indian Association was invited to express its opinion on the subject, and it agreed to the legalization of the sale of the occupancy-holding in satisfaction of decree for rent, and suggested that, where a zamíndár might adopt this remedy, an occupancy-holding once so sold should be declared to have become a transferable tenure. The Lieutenant-Governor of the day practically adopted the suggestion. In a letter to the Government of India, dated the 2nd February, 1878, Mr. Secretary Reynolds wrote:

"The Lieutenant-Governor has with some reluctance withdrawn the proposal that the occupancy-right shall be generally transferable by private sale or other agreement. The weight of opinion is in favour of this proposal, as will be seen by a reference to the letter of the Board of Revenue, and His Honour is satisfied that such transfers would not have the bad effect which has been sometimes apprehended, and that they would not tend to transfer the land to classes whose ownership it might not be thought desirable to encourage. He believes that such a right of transfer would be much to the benefit of landholder and raiyat. It appears, however, that the landlord class are strongly opposed to the concession of any general right of transfer, and the Governor General in Council has expressed serious doubts as to the expediency of including such a provision in the Bill. The Bill, therefore, only proposes to recognize sales of occupancy-tenures at the request of the landlord in execution of decrees of Court, and to this the Lieutenant-Governor believes that no objection will be made."

The Bengal Government has since changed its opinion on the subject, and the concession made by the zamíndárs in 1878 necessarily goes for nothing. In the present Bill the transferability of the occupancy-holding is made general and absolute, subject to a rule of pre-emption. There is nothing in the Bill to prevent greedy land-jobbers or speculators from trafficking in land at the expense of the zamíndárs. As to right of pre-emption accorded to the zamíndár it will, I am afraid, prove in practice more a shadow than a substance. In the first place, the zamíndár will have to pay a consideration for land of which he is the proprietor, and which was never before transferable under the law. He will then have to run a competition with other bidders for the purchase of the land, and, if he cannot come to an agreement with the raiyat about the price, he must go through the expensive process of a reference to the Court for arbitrement, and must be prepared to pay the price adjudged by the Court. If the raiyats of a zamíndár in any considerable number become recusant and threaten him with the sale of their holdings, it will be difficult for him to keep out hostile people from the holdings unless he has a long purse to buy them up. Practically, therefore, this recognition of the transferability of the occupancy-holding may be worked by evil-disposed raiyats to the utter ruin of the zamíndár. It is noteworthy that while the zamíndár will have to go through the expensive process of obtaining the Court's decision as to price, the raiyat shall not be bound by that decision, for section 32, sub-section 4, says that when the zamíndár tenders a price to the raiyat, "the raiyat shall either abstain from selling the land or sell it to the landlord at that price". So the landlord will be entirely at the mercy of the raiyat.

Shadowy as the right of pre-emption will practically be, the amended Bill contrives to keep out of the purview of this provision all substantial raiyats, for under it the rule of pre-emption will not apply to tenure-holders, and all occupancy-raiyats who may sub-let more than half their holdings, or who may keep holdings of more than hundred bíghás in size part of which is sub-let, are, ipso facto, coverted into tenure-holders.

Enhancement of rent.

I HAVE already alluded to the question of the enhancement of the rent of tenure-holders, who are placed at a considerable advantage to the detriment of the zamíndár, a position which they had never before enjoyed under the Permanent Settlement Regulations or under Act X of 1859. With regard to the enhancement of the rent of occupancy-raiyats I wish to point out that at present the enhancement law has come to a dead-lock, and that one of the chief objects of fresh legislation is admitted to be to afford relief to the zamíndárs in this matter; but I am of opinion that the alterations made by the Committee will tend more to maintain the status quo than to secure justice to the landlord. In the first place under the existing law there is a perfect freedom of contract between the landlord and the tenant regarding enhancement of rent outside the Court, but under the Bill this freedom is entirely taken away, and it is provided that where the arrangement may be voluntary, the enhancement shall not exceed more than four annas in the rupee, that is to say, not more than two annas for a term of at least seven years, and if more than two annas, but not more than four annas in the rupee, for a term of at least fifteen years. Thus a serious disability is imposed upon the landlord in fixing rent outside the Court. When enhancement of rent is sought by suit, the grounds on which the enhancement may be applied for are thus set forth:

(a) That the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity.

(b) That there has been a rise in the average prices of staple food crops in the locality or at the usual markets.

(c) That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord.

(d) That the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

I am not prepared to say that the revised grounds will materially help the solution of the problem of enhancement. The first ground, "prevailing rate" is not made clear, and the same doubts and uncertainties that now hang round it remain unremoved. An attempt was made to explain it, but it was opposed by the Bengal Government. The second ground will, I am afraid, prove fictitious, for knowing as the Committee do, how unreliable are the price-lists prepared by Government officers, they cannot deny that it will be difficult to obtain reliable data for striking average prices, particularly, "in the locality or at the usual markets"—who is to fix the usual markets? The third ground will be made practically inoperative by the conditions which follow. As for the fourth ground, even if it be fairly worked, its application will be exceptional.

The rules providing for enhancement enquiries by the Revenue-officer will practically leave the whole matter to the discretion of the Revenue-officer. For instance, in ascertaining the prevailing rate, the Revenue-officer is directed to make a local enquiry, but he is not told on what principle he is to find the prevailing rate, and the result will be diversity of practice under diverse officers. In working out enhancement on the ground of rise in prices it is provided that—

(a) The Court shall have regard to the lists of prices periodically published under the authority of the Local Government, and shall compare the average prices during the quinquennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other quinquennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison.

(b) The Court shall not enhance the rent so that the enhanced rent exceeds the previous rent by more than four annas in the rupee.

(c) Subject as aforesaid, and subject also to section 48, the enhanced rent shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the average prices during the last quinquennial period bear to the average prices during the previous quinquennial period taken for purposes of comparison.

In carrying out the above provisions much will depend upon the price-lists, and, as I have already stated, those that are published in the Calcutta Gazette by Government are wholly unreliable. They are collected by the police, who cannot be expected to be over-scrutinous. They are not tested by any responsible agency, not to say that the wholesale and retail prices being generally mixed up, no fair average can be based upon them. Unless special care be taken to prepare the lists—and this remark applies to future lists—they cannot and ought not to be accepted by courts of justice as good and valid evidence. The question still recurs—how will the lists of past prices be prepared?

It will be observed that the value of all crops must be reduced to the price of paddy in Bengal, and that of Indian corn, barley and wheat in Bihár. The specification of the staple food-crops is left to the discretion of the Local Government, which may from time to time vary them. No allowance is made for valuable crops, such as tobacco, sugarcane, mulberry, potato, jute, &c. This rule is evidently founded on the principle of the Tithes Commutation Act of the United Kingdom. There is, however, I venture to submit, no fair analogy between tithes in England and rents in Bengal; for the former represented a fixed share or a tenth part of the crop, while the latter, though originally based on a share of the produce, have now greatly receded from the old standard. An English tithe is not susceptible of enhancement, whereas the Bengal money-rent is legally declared to be liable to enhancement. The question, therefore, arises whether the principle, which is held equitable in the commutation of tithes, would be fair and equitable in the enhancement of a money-rent? As far as I can judge, the difficulties in carrying out the principle will by no means be less than what they are under the existing law. As for enhancement on the ground of landlord's improvement, it is so much handicapped by restrictive conditions, that it will, I fear, prove an economic anomaly. After enumerating the circumstances which the Court should take into consideration in ordering enhancement on this ground, section 46 says that the Court shall consider the ability of the land to bear a higher rent. With such an uncertainty hanging over him, will any proprietor with two grains of common sense to rub against one another undertake any improvement?—if he cannot be sure of any return for his money, naturally, he wont lay out money. There are two other points connected with this subject. It was settled in previous correspondence between the Government of Bengal and the British Indian Association that enhancement of rent in any case should not be more than double the present rent, and that every enhancement of rent shall have a currency of ten years. These rules were embodied in the original draft Bill, but, at the instance of the present Bengal Government, both the rules have been altered. It is now declared that, when enhancement is sought on the ground of prevailing rate, the rent shall not exceed the previous rent by more than eight annas in the rupee or fifty per cent., and that, when it is sought on the ground of rise in prices, the enhanced rent shall not exceed the previous rentby more than four annas in the rupee or twenty-five per cent., and that every enhancement shall have a currency of fifteen years. It would be thus seen that there is no finality in the decision of Government, and that the more is conceded by the zámíndárs the more is demanded from them.

It is observable that where the enhancement is sought on the ground of the present rent being below the "prevailling rate", common sense suggests that the rent should be raised to the limit of the "prevailing rate"—it is not clear why a maximum limit of fifty per cent. should be fixed in such a case. Again, where the enhancement is sought on the ground of rise in prices, and the increase is to be given according to the rule of proportion, it is not equitable that there should be again a maximum limit of twenty-five per cent.

Commutation of produce-rents into money-payments.

THIS part of the Bill affects Bihár more than Bengal, and as my honourable collegaue, His Highness the Mahárájá of Darbhangá, will doubtless comment upon it, I need not say much upon it. I may, however, observe that the principle upon which the commutation is directed to be made, namely, (a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and (b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years, will tend to lower the present rents. I should add, that when the Bill was introduced, a distinct assurance was given that the present rents will not be lowered.

Non-occupancy-raiyats.
